Parks and recreation board works year around for snowmobilers

By Cheryl Peterson Editor

With the calendar turned to March and warmer temperatures on the horizon, snowmobile season is all but winding down in northeastern Michigan.

Of course, winter isn't completely over and the possibility of more snow is not unlikely. Even so, it's been a good season for snowmobiling – heavy snowfall and cold temperatures and good grooming made for "the best trails I've seen in a long time," according to Warren MacNeill, conservation officer with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Environment. The only thing that would have made them better would have been an early thaw in December, he explained, which would have given the trails a better base.

With a good base, lack of snow later in the season usually isn't a problem especially if the temperatures stay low, according to John Bernard, secretary of the Alcona County Parks and Recreation Board.

Good trails don't just happen in the winter, they must be maintained year 'round – which takes planning, money and dedication.

If it wasn't for the early planning and dedication to developing and building trails some 30 years ago, Alcona County wouldn't have the 90 miles of snowmobile trails today. According to Jim Quick, a former member of the parks and recreation board, the trail system in Alcona County was started in the early 1980s and began with six miles of trail near Vandercook Road west of Mikado toward Glennie.

That portion of the snowmobile trail in southwestern Alcona County developed rather quickly compared to the trail system in the Barton City area. The Glennie area trail followed many roads in the national forest, where the Barton City trail was literally carved out of the forest.

Quick explained development of the Glennie trails "started to move" in about 1984-85 with a lot of guidance from Joe Gates, a representative with the U.S. Forest Service. He was the one who suggested they follow existing roads in the national forest.

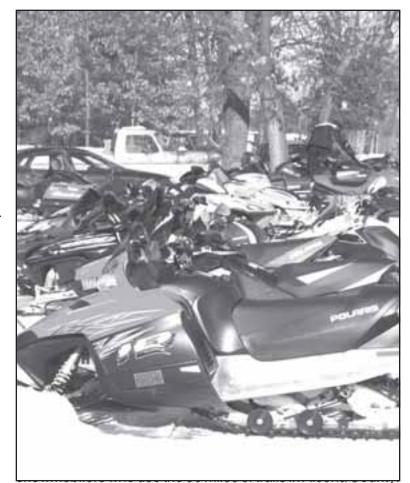

The Barton City trail development followed a couple of years later (1986-87) and moved slowly.

"The Barton City trail system took an unbelievable amount of work," Quick said. "We had to cut through the woods, put in three bridges...there was a tremendous amount of volunteer work involved. It was a handful of people who put time in – the work was never done.

"All of the bridges were built to forest service specs...A lot of excavators donated their time. We paid when we could, but most of the work was donated," Quick said.

Quick, who was on the parks and recreation board for 30 years, said some of the original members of the board were John Groskoviac, Chuck Moore, Gaylen Daffoe and Butch Woods. He was recruited by Groskoviac mainly because he was an avid snowmobiler - and still is. "It (is) pretty cool that this guy (Groskoviac) had the foresight to see the opportunity that putting in snowmobile trails could bring to Alcona County," Quick said.

And, that foresight is continuing to pay off today. Alcona County's snowmobile trail system (Glennie and Barton City trails connect together) connects to trails in Iosco, Oscoda and Alpena counties. "It's pretty neat to be able to tie in to other counties," Quick said. "Snowmobilers can leave from Oscoda (in Iosco County) and ride west on the trails all the way to Empire, Mich. on the other side of the state. "You

Two local teams place in Michigan Cat 500 Enduro race

There was a lot of snow-mobile racing action at the Lincoln ARA Site with more than 40 teams competing in different racing events during the 2011 Michigan Cat 500 race weekend.

Saturday's races were all sprint style racing events with too many winners to mention. However, the highlight of the day was the racers competing in the Points Championship for the TLR Cup Ser (www.tlrcup.com).

Lincoln was the final points race for this series and the racers put on an incredible show of speed and handling, reaching speeds of over 100 miles per hour on the halfmile oval track. The other benefit for having the TLR Cup Series here was that the spectators got free admission to the event on Saturday, after 11 a.m., thanks to the TLR Cup organization.

Sunday closed out the weekend with the running of the 500-lap, Pro600 Michigan Cat 500 Enduro. When the checkered flag fell, three sleds finished all on the same lap with second place finishing just 1.8 seconds behind the leader and third place was just over eight seconds behind.

The honors and the big trophy went to the No. 42

Millennium Racing Team out of Unionville, Mich. Drivers Grant and Cameron Vermeesch, a father-son team, have won this event before and did it again on a Polaris.

Second place went to the No. 21 Arctic Cat sled of Cadette Collision Racing out of Alpena, driven by Troy Dewald of AuGres, Mich. Third place went to Hoos Racing out of Ossineke. This is another Polaris team and the sled was driven by John Hoos, Matt Hoos and Cody Badour.

This does not conclude the snowmobile racing action in Lincoln this season. On Saturday vintage snowmobiles will invade the ARA site for the third annual Old Man's Iron 150 races. These are 1980 or older, single cylinder 350cc snowmobiles that race on a Le Mans-style course made of snow, rather than the ice track that was used last weekend.

For reserved parking for the upcoming weekend, call (989) 736-6150. For more information on the event, call (989) 736-9943.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,

As an Alcona County Commissioner, I have had the opportunity to listen to the prescription drug abuse prevention presentation conducted by Donna Hardies of Catholic Human Services.

I was shocked to learn that prescription drug abuse has resulted in over 250 deaths in northern Michigan since 2000, and that children ages 12 to 17 abuse prescription drugs more than they abuse ecstasy, crack/cocaine, heroin and methamphetamine combined. Children are obtaining these drugs from their own homes, from the homes of their grandparents or their friends.

Steps must be taken by each and every one of us to eliminate access to prescription drugs in our own homes by monitoring the quantities of our drugs, keeping track of refills and by keeping our drugs in a secure location and not in customary places like the medicine cabinet or a kitchen cabinet.

We must also remember that drugs prescribed for one person should never be shared with another adult or child. Abuse of drugs is a growing and dangerous threat. Each of us must do our part to eliminate this problem. Talk with your children, or your grandchildren, about the dangers of abusing prescription drugs. Let's put an end to the tragic loss of

If you have unused, unwanted, or expired drugs, please participate in the National Take Back Day scheduled for April 30. Watch for information on Take Back Day so that you can remove unneeded drugs from your

> Kathleen E. Vichunas Alcona County Commissioner

To the Editor,

On February 5, while wintering in Texas, we had the misfortune of having our home on the south shore of Hubbard Lake burn.

Our son, Mark, was able to get to the fire scene within two hours of our receiving the call. Mark had nothing but praise for the professionalism of the fire departments. While being extremely efficient at knocking down the flames and preventing the spread to two neighboring cottages, they still had time to confer with Mark about where important keepsakes (like a four generation old family Bible) were located so that they could be saved. Although our home is a total loss, we were able to salvage some items from our nearly 50 years of marriage, thanks to their efforts.

We would like to take this public opportunity to thank the volunteer fire departments from South Shore, Lincoln, Alcona, Hubbard Lake and Barton City for their exceptional work in single digit temperatures. Obviously, our "little up-north" volunteer departments are very good at what they do. We have a greater appreciation of their work now.

In a similar vein, we would be remiss in not mentioning Service Master of Alpena for their prompt arrival at the scene to take removed items away for restoration and storage. They also did yeoman work in tarping the ruins to prevent weather damage to any contents that could be salvaged later.

MSU Scholarship

Morgan Stewart of Harrisville has been awarded a $2,000 Pre-college Achievement Scholarship. Students in eight, nineth, and 10th grades for 2010-11 who attended a 2010 summer precollege program at Michigan State University were eligible for award nomination. Stewart was eligible from her participation in 4-H Exploration Days where she not only attended for the first time in 2010, but participated in the entertainment portion: "4-H's Got Talent."

Morgan Stewart

An eighth-grader at Alcona Middle School, Stewart is the daughter of Wes and Pat Stewart of Harrisville. She has been involved in 4-H for three years, as a member of the archery club, Ace Riders Variety club and most recently as a youth member of the Alcona 4-H Advisory Council. She is planning on attending the MSU College of Veterinary Medicine upon graduation.

According to Stewart, her experience in 4-H has been more than just corn and cows. "4-H is amazing! It helps you develop the life skills that you will need not only for college, but for life. It has made me realize that there is more to a kid's life than just sitting at home on Facebook or sitting in school. It has shown me that there are opportunities everywhere; you just need to take advantage of them. College is one of those opportunities"

On Stage

The Shoreline Players present a story that continues the theater's season of friendship with the winter production of "The Dixie Swim Club." The play is the story of five quirky southern women whose friendships began years ago on their college swim team. Each year they set aside a long weekend in August to meet at the same beach cottage on North Carolina's Outer Banks to recharge their relationships. "The Dixie Swim Club" focuses on four of those weekends spanning a period of 33 years and is a comedy about friendships that last forever.

"The Dixie Swim Club" will be on stage Friday, March 4 and Saturday, March 5 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, March 6 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $10 at the box office with dinner and a show tickets available at Tait's Bill of Fare for $25 for the Friday and Saturday performances. The Shoreline Players Theater is located on the former Wurtsmith Air Force Base in Oscoda, next to the Robert Parks Library. For more information on the Shoreline Season of Friendship or upcoming events go to www.shorelineplayers.org or call (989) 739-3586.

Art Show Applications

St. Joseph Health System (SJHS) Foundation is accepting artist applications for its bi-annual Huron Shoreline Art Show. The foundation is requesting applications by March 10 with submission of artwork by March 18. The works of art will be juried by art show committee members and selected pieces will be displayed throughout the health system. The foundation will hold "Meet the Artist" on April 7 from 5-7 p.m. at St. Joseph Hospital. Artists of selected artwork will be available to answer questions and take community members on tours where the artwork is displayed. Shelley Buresh, executive director of the foundation said, "Visual art can be beneficial in reducing stress, improving attitude and elevating mood. This is especially beneficial for the many patients and family members visiting St. Joseph Health System, as well as for the associates." For more information about the Huron Shoreline Art Show can go from Barton City to Mackinaw City, pay the bridge toll and go across the bridge into the U.P. It's come a long way.'

Planning and funding has come a long way as well. According to Gary Somers, treasurer of the parks and recreation board, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Environment funds the board's budget with an annual grant that is applied for each year. The state uses money collected from the permit fee required to ride on state trails to fund established groups that maintain trails throughout the state like the Alcona County Parks and Recreation

The annual grant application calls for the board to figure every aspect of the budget including maintenance (grooming, brushing and signing) expenses, trail improvement expenses, payroll expenses, equipment maintenance and new equipment needs - for the entire year, not just the 18 weeks of snowmobiling season (December 1 - March 31).

Somers said the grant for 2010-2011 was approximately $73,000. In past years the grant applications have been as high as $250,000 because new equipment was needed. Which, under new regulations, when the state allocates funds for equipment, the state owns the equipment and pays the organizations to maintain it.

Last year the group purchased a new trail trimmer/ chipper, according to Bernard, that attaches to a tractor and used in the off season to keep the trails trimmed. "This will really make a difference on the trails...and it's a big deal (to have it) because that job is so labor intensive. It would take a lot of guys to brush the trail," Bernard said.

Improving the trails each year is important to the board. "We try to do two improvements a year on the trails," Somers said. "We are dedicated to improving the trails for safety reasons." Making the trails better makes for safer and more enjoyable riding, Somers explained.

A huge job during the riding season is keeping the trails groomed. According to Bernard, during the height of the season a groomer can be on each trail six days a week. "We do a lot of grooming at night," Bernard said. "It's safer with being able to see the lights (of the groomer)...Plus, it's colder and after it's groomed, the trail sets up better. A lot of people don't understand how long it takes to groom half of the trail - it takes approximately 12 hours to groom the Barton City (portion of the trail).

In the beginning volunteers drove the groomers, but now the board employs six part-time people (depending on the amount of snowfall) who groom the trails. They can also afford to pay employees to do trail maintenance during the off season.

"For years we depended on volunteers to do trail maintenance," Bernard said. "They did the entire trail grooming, brushing, signing everything. It's because of the original guys that we are now able to pay people to do all of that. It doesn't have to be all volunteers now and that's pretty nice because it was overwhelming."

Even if the season is over, members of the board can be pleased with how it turned out. Mid-January through much of February made for excellent riding in northeastern Michigan this year, which was a boon to the economy. "I spoke with a lot of folks who normally go past us to the U.P. to ride," MacNeill said. "They were impressed with our trails. Many said they were the nicest trails in the state. I think this was one of the best seasons we've had in a long time." MacNeill and his partner, DNRE conservation officer Brian Engelhardt, spend 90 hours each on the snowmobile trails in Alcona County and Oscoda and Iosco counties.

Somers, who owns the Barton City General Store with his wife, Maureen, found that snowmobilers were staying closer to home this season because of the economy and high fuel costs. An avid snowmobiler himself, Somers said he is very pleased with how the trails have developed over the years. "The trail system has become much better primarily because of the amount of volunteer time that contributed to developmaintaining and them...the volunteer hours were immense. It's also because of the number of business people who helped...We thank all of those people and everyone who rides the trails," Somers said.

Members of the Alcona County Parks and Recreation Board include Carl Boyd, chairman; Wayne Seibert; Harry Harvey, Doug Lee, John Unkovich, Somers and Bernard. Alcona County Board of Commissioners Chairman Kevin Boyat is the liaison to the county board and Roger MacNeill is the liaison for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Environment.

How to keep up with your medications

Dear Savvy Senior,

What devices can you recommend to help forgetful seniors keep up with their medications? My 76-year-old mother takes nine different prescription drugs and that doesn't include all the vitamin supplements or over-thecounter medicines she takes. Any suggestions?

Concerned Daughter

Dear Concerned,

The challenge of juggling medications can be a problem for anyone, especially seniors who take multiple drugs for various health conditions.

Getting organized and being reminded are the two keys to helping your mom stay on top of her medication regimen. To help achieve this, there are a wide variety of inexpensive pill boxes, medication organizers, vibrating watches, beeping pill bottles and even dispensers that talk to you that can make all the difference. To find these types of products go to epill.com (800)549-0095 and forgetting-thepill.com (877) 367-4382 where you'll find dozens of affordable options.

If your mom needs a more comprehensive medication management system there are several good options here too. One of my favorites is the Maya from MedMinder (medminder.com, (888) 633-6463), a computerized pill box that will beep and flash when it's time to take her medication, and will call her if she forgets. It will even alert her if she takes the wrong pills.

This device can also be set up to call, e-mail or text caregivers letting them know if your mom misses a dose, takes the wrong medication or misses a refill. The cost for Maya is $20 per month which covers rental and service fees.

Some other good medication management systems worth a look at are TabSafe (tabsafe.com, (877) 700-8600) and the Philips Medication Dispensing System (managemypills.com, (888) 632-3261), both of which will dispense her medicine on schedule, provide reminders and will notify caregivers if her pills aren't taken. These systems run under $100 per month.

Another option that can help your mom keep on top of her meds is with a medication reminding service. These are services that will actually call, e-mail or text your mom reminders of when it's time for her to take her medicine and when it's time to refill her prescriptions. Some even offer extra reminders like doctor and dentist appointments, wake-up calls and

Companies that offer such services include mymedschedule.com, which provides free medication reminders via text message or email. Their website can also help you make easy-to-read medication schedules that you can print out for your mom to follow. Other similar companies worth a look are rememberitnow.com which also offers free text message and e-mail reminders and pillphone.com which charges around $4 per month.

If, however, your mom doesn't text or use a computer, OnTimeRx (ontimerx.com, (866) 944-8966), Snoozester (snoozester.com) or Daily Pill Calls (dailypillcalls.com, (866) 532-6855) may be the answer. With starting prices ranging between $4 and $10 per month, these services will call your mom on her home or cell phone (they can send text messages too) for all types of reminders including daily medications, monthly refills, doctor appointments and other events.

Or, if you're looking to keep closer tabs on your mom, services like Care Call Reassurance (call-reassurance.-com, (602) 265-5968) or CareCalls (parentcarecall.-com, (888) 275-3098) may be a better fit. In addition to the call reminders to your mom's phone, these services can be set up to contact you or a designated caregiver if she fails to answer or acknowledge the

Don't be hoodwinked by Nigerian scams

Senior News Line By Matilda Charles

Nigerian scams have been around almost as long as the Internet, and more seniors are falling for them as more of us go online.

Nigerian scams are elaborate ruses to separate you from your money. That's the bottom line. Here are two examples:

One version of the scams preys on your good nature via email. It might talk about needing "absolute confidentiality" and governments or churches that need to get cash out the country. They'll offer you money for your help — big money. You just need to pay an upfront fee which you'll never see again.

In another version, they'll ask you for your bank-account information so that all of their millions can be held safely in your bank account. You'll be paid, of course, they say. But how long do you think your money will stay in your account once you give them your account number?

The National Crime Prevention Council has a file with hints to help identify Nigerian scams. Beware if

- Claim to be from a foreign government or church.
- Ask for your help.

- Insist on confidential-
- Identify you by name. Ask for your banking information.
- Have a sense of urgency to act immediately.
- Promise to give you money for your help.

Some of the scams are very good, which is why so many people fall for them. But with a little investigation and a lot of suspicion, you can avoid these scams and hold on to your money.

Ask yourself: How did they get your name and address? Likely it came from a database of seniors.

To arm yourself with more information, go to the website www.fbi.gov/ and click on Scams & Safety. Look for Common Fraud Schemes.

Lady Tigers defeat Fairview but lose to Posen

By Dan O'Connor

Sports Writer

As the Alcona varsity girls' basketball team prepared for upcoming district tournaments, they had two games left in the regular season as final tune-ups – 46-20 loss against Posen and a 52-33 victory at Fairview to close the season.

The Lady Tigers were eager to face off against Posen again and see how they matched up against them. The Lady Tigers were defeated soundly the first contest of the season against the Vikings.

The Lady Tigers avoided a quick start by the Vikings weathering a few Posen runs before answering with a 8-2 run close the second quarter and trailed by only four points at the half -- 22-18. Posen changed defenses early in the second half and frustrated the Lady Tigers throughout.

Alcona was held to only two points for the duration of the second half which led to a 46-20 final. Karina Cole led Alcona with nine points while Amy Nowak chipped in with six and Lindsay Morang added four.

Wanting badly to bounce back from Tuesday's second half, the Lady Tigers took on the Fairview Eagles and again found themselves in a battle early on. Alcona lead 10-5 after one quarter but could only muster six points in the second quarter and led 16-10 at the break.

The Lady Tiger offense busted out in the second half scoring 36 points and finishing off a 52-33 win. Kayla Rasmussen led all scorers with 14 points, Cole added 12 points, Emily Nowak chipped in nine and Lexie Cook and Amy Nowak added six points.

The Alcona junior varsity won both games this week defeating Posen and Fairview. They finished with a 13 and 6 record on the season.

On Wednesday, March 2, the Lady Tigers (15-5) traveled to Indian River to take on Inland Lakes (8-9). If they are victorious, Alcona will host the district finals on Friday night at 7 p.m. against Whittemore-Prescott (10-9), Oscoda (5-14), or Johannesburg-Lewiston (16-4).

Tigers extend winning streak to six games

By Ron Yokom

Basketball Writer

The Alcona varsity boys' basketball team had another three game week last week. It was the third one this season.

It was also the most productive week for the Tigers. They won all three games to extend their winning to six in a row and their record to a pretty darn good 14-4.

They also won the first Huron Shores Conference tournament. Alcona finished with an undefeated season, 8-0, in conference play, the first conference championship, and the first conference tournament championship.

The week started with a trip to Fairview. The Eagles are a much improved team from the one Alcona faced in the opening game of the season. They showed it in the first quarter by jumping out to a 20-13 lead thanks to some sharpshooting from three-point range. They hit five in the first quarter.

Alex Cole decided enough of that and took over the second quarter, scoring 14 points and pushing the Tigers to a 35-30 lead at half-time. It took an 8-0 run to end the quarter. They also defended the three-point territory, limiting the Eagles to one.

The second half was delayed for almost a half hour due to a loose basket at one end that had to be repaired. The Eagles found their touch from three-point range and hit three of them early in the third quarter, taking the lead back at 43-40. Alcona came right back with a 9-0 run of their own and led 49-43. Fairview responded with five points to trail by one point before Bryan Layton hit a jump shot that gave Alcona a narrow 51-48 lead heading into the final period.

The fourth quarter was a high scoring affair with the Eagles trailing by only three points, 67-64, with two minutes left. They tried to get the ball back by fouling and hoping Alcona would miss their free throws. The only problem was they had to foul Jared Steiner because he was the only one handling the ball.

Steiner scored the Tiger's final seven points from the free throw line. He was seven for eight and kept Fairview at bay as they won a tough battle 74-66. Fairview wound up hitting 12 threes and that kept them in the game.

Cole led Alcona with 20 points, five rebounds, and three assists. Steiner added 18 points, 16 of those in the second half. Brock LaVergne and Layton had 14 points and nine rebounds each. Braden Yokom added four points, with Andrew Chamberlain and Zach Harmon scoring two each.

The junior varsity Tigers also won 64-46. Brian Finn and Austin Cole had 12 points each.

In the first game of the conference tournament the Tigers hosted Tawas and came away with a 60-42 victory. The Braves scored the first basket of the game and played a tight, aggressive man-to-man defense. It kept them in the game as they only trailed 16-14 after one quarter. Tawas took a brief lead on a three-pointer to start the second period, but three shots from behind the arc by Steiner helped Alcona lead 34-27 at the half.

Alcona increased their intensity in the third quarter limiting Tawas to four points and took a commanding lead of 17 points into the final period. Both teams continued the intensity but the Tigers had a little too much and prevailed with an 18 point victory.

Steiner led Alcona with 16 points including four for five from three-point range. Layton added 13, LaVergne 11, and Cole had 10 points to give Alcona four players in double figures for the second straight game. They did struggle from the charity stripe hitting only 16 of 33 attempts.

The JV team lost their game 53-43. Aaron Ritchie scored 14 points.

The championship game between Alcona and Whittemore-Prescott was played on a neutral court in Tawas. The Tigers jumped out to a quick 7-0 lead before the Cardinals could score. But Whittemore fought back to tie the score at 11 and led 15-14 for their last lead of the game. LaVergne, who scored nine of Alcona's first quarter points, hit a driving lay-up that gave the Tigers a 15-14 lead after one quarter.

The Cardinals had a talented team that continued to give the Tigers problems. Alcona would have nothing of that as they had their highest scoring quarter of the season, outscoring Whittemore 27-13 to take a commanding lead 42-27 at halftime. They did this with one starter, Yokom, on the bench with a sprained ankle. They closed out the quarter with a 10-0 run. LaVergne and Steiner led the onslaught with eight points each.

The third quarter was a low scoring one with Alcona coming out ahead 12-5 to increase their lead to 54-32 heading into the final period.

The final quarter saw Alcona still outscoring Whittemore 15-13 with the bench doing most of the damage. William Bates came off the bench to score seven points including a three-pointer and Alcona finished with a convincing 69-46 victory.

LaVergne finished with 22 points and 14 rebounds to lead Alcona. Steiner added 14 points with five assists and four steals. Layton played a fine game with 13 points and 12 rebounds. Cole added five points with five rebounds. Alcona again struggled from the line hitting only 12 of 23.

The Tigers have two games remaining in the regular season, both at home with AuGres and Mio, before the state tournament starts on Monday, March 7.

Keep It Local

Buying birdseed doesn't have to be an adventure. Many local grocery and hardware stores keep plenty on hand. A basic seed mix works because it has a little bit of everything, and black oil sunflower seed is good too, because most birds love it.

-Ice Fishing Tournament-

One hundred twelve anglers signed up for the 9th Annual Don McEwen Ice Fishing Tournament on free fishing weekend.

The temperature hit about 30 degrees and the wind was very strong. The portable shanties had to be staked down to keep from blowing off the lake. The fishing was okay

Pat Hill landed a 25 inch pike to take first place in that category. Dave Bosh caught a 10 inch perch; and Billy Boutash caught a 9.25 inch blue gill. Boutash has fished both days every year of the tournament and was named Fisherman of the Year.

Trevor Schrader caught a 15 inch bullhead and his father, George Schrader, won a prize for the coolest fishing shanty.

The kids tournament went very well also. A big thanks to all the sponsors and the people who donated prizes to make this tournament a success. All proceeds go to restocking fish in Jewel Lake.

-Youth Wrestling—

Eleven of the Oscoda Youth Owls Northeast Michigan Wrestling Association (NEMWA) wrestling team traveled to Bay Country for the NEMWA state finals over the weekend. The team, which consists of youth wrestlers from the Tawas area, Alcona County and Oscoda area, competed for the right to be called state champions.

Although not all 11 wrestlers placed in the finals, they did their community proud by competing with great sportsmanship and Owl pride. The ages of the wrestlers ranged from five to 14 years old.

Those placing at state finals are:

• Five-six year olds: Third place William Collier, 67 pound weight class; third place, Robert Shock, 40 pound weight class; and second place, David Williams-Schott, 55 pound weight class.

• Nine-10 year olds: Second place, Jacob Dettmer-Schott, super heavyweight class; and second place, Anthony Johnson, 95 pound weight class.

• 11-12 year olds: Second place, Knesley Johnson, 126 pound weight class.

• 13-14 year olds: Third place, Robert Ellman, light heavyweight class. This was Ellman's last year with the Oscoda NEMWA team. He will go on to high school next season.

Although the youth Owls NEMWA season is over, there are still some post season meets the team may attend.

Section 504 program may help save money and help Michiganders stay warm

U.S. Dept. of Agriculture pena, Benzie, Crawford, Rural Development's Section 504 Loan Program helps homeowners remove health and safety hazards and improve and modernize their homes.

The loan may be used to: Update an inefficient heating system or purchase a new central heating system, replace or add insulation, and replace broken or drafty doors and windows. With a new emphasis on alternative energy sources, it can also finance geothermal, solar, wind, wood and external woodstoves to make homes more energy efficient.

As heating costs continue to rise, many people are looking for cost-effective ways to stay warm. The 504 Loan is an affordable solution, with interest rates at one percent with terms up to 20 years for qualified homeowners. At these terms a $5,000 loan would result in a $23 per month payment. A $20,000 loan would result in a $92 per month payment plus escrow for taxes and insurance. Loans under $7,500 would not require placing a mortgage on the property.

The 504 loan may also be used to repair or install a well and/or septic system, replace or repair a roof, update the electrical system, repair the foundation, replace siding, make the home handicap accessible, and multiple other repairs.

'Many people in Michigan are facing the prospect of bearing the cold winter with inadequate heating systems," said Traverse City Area office director Shelly Fuller. "Rural Development's 504 Loan may help them finance essential repairs and upgrades that will keep them warm and help cut heating costs.'

To qualify for a 504 Loan through USDA Rural Development, applicants must meet eligibility requirements. As an example, the income limits for Alcona, Antrim, AlKalkaska, Lake, Manistee, Mason, Missaukee, Montmorency, Oscoda, Osceola and Wexford counties are as follows: One person: $18,450; two people: $21,100; three people: $23,700; four people: $26,350; five people: $28,450; six people: $30,550; and seven people: $32,650.

This is a statewide program, and a complete list of income limits can be found on the website at http:// www.rurdev.usda.gov/mi/.

For more information on this program, call (800) 944-8119 and ask to speak to either Dave Greenwood or Val Stewart.

USDA, through its rural development mission area, administers and manages more than 40 housing, business and community infrastructure, and facility programs through a network of 6,100 employees located in the nation's capital and 500 state and local offices.

On February 6 Brett Nelson of Lincoln and the Thunder Bay Wrecks won an exciting game in double overtime 2-1 over the Traverse City Bayshore Bruins to capture the District 7 Squirt AA (9-10 age group) Championship. This has earned them the right, with seven other teams from around the state, to compete for the Michigan Amateur Hockey Association State Championship on March 4-6 in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Cour-

Talk to the animals

By Kathryn Fritz Kniep Columnist

It's been a little busy at our house lately, what with the addition of one Princess and two pets, but we're working things out. Not long ago, for example my granddog, Bastie and I were chatting in the kitchen. The subject was whether he preferred his chicken poached or baked and he was leaning toward poached, when the Princess walked in.

Arms crossed, she gave me that look she gets when my behavior triggers thoughts of looking into a good nursing home. "Mom," she commented, "You do know that these dogs don't really talk to you, right?"

"Of course I do," I told her with a reassuring smile, turning to wash my chickensticky hands at the sink. No point in upsetting her. After all, I've had an overactive imagination all my life. Why tell her I'd had conversations with all three dogs before she even woke up?

The first little talk was with my fiercely loyal companion, Lady the cocker spaniel, who hauls herself out of bed --grumbling all the way -- at whatever hour I choose to get up. Lady is a quiet, devoted dog who finds herself in the somewhat awkward position of being the only girl animal in the house and the largest, besides.

Once she'd been outside and had her morning bisca', she curled up beside me and plopped a friendly paw on my leg. "Mama," she said, "Now you know ah love The Princess lak she was mah

"Uhuh," I agreed, stroking her silky ears.

"And ah don't think she means to, but she keeps hurtin' mah delicate feelin's," Lady went on.

"How?" I asked her gently.
"Well," Lady sighed, "she says that ah am smelly. And ah suppose, after all these years, ah am. But ah am, after all, a dog. What am ah supposed to do about it?"

"Nothing," I reassured her.
"You are a kind and wonderful girl and my BFF besides.
And you know, I'm not exactly getting younger. I'm probably getting smelly, too."

Lady chuckled, "Well, if you could just remind her that ah am raht here, after all, and ah can hear her, that would be nice."

"I will," I assured her. "I'll point it out the very next time it comes up."

My second morning conversation was with Bastie, as he curled on his blue blanket, shivering after his morning venture outside. "Grandmuzzer," he asked, "When does the 'orrible white stuff go away?"

"The snow?" I asked him.
"Yes, Grandmuzzer," he said. "I know it must go away h'eventually. I 'ave been 'ere in ze summer and zer was no snow on ze grass. But when, exactly does zis 'appen?"

exactly does zis 'appen?"
"Oh, Bastie," I told him,
"I'm sorry. I forgot you hadn't been here for spring before.
And you've been a real trooper this winter. You've gone out with the other guys, even on the really cold days.
But don't you feel like it's warming up a little now?"

warming up a little now?"
"Well..." Bastie considered,
"Yes, I suppose. And I do so appreciate ze warm coat you made me, Grandmuzzer. But my feets, zey get so very cold out zer still."

"I know," I told him, "and I'm sorry I can't figure out how to make boots for you. We're through February now. I can't tell you exactly when, but soon, Bastie, the 'orrible white stuff, it will go." Bastie grinned at that.

"You promise?" he asked.
"Cross my heart," I told

Shortly thereafter, my latest riser, Henri, joined me on the couch. Henri is a fluffy white and brown cocoanut cake of a dog, short legged and big-eyed and a true pacifist by nature. Now, however, as he sat warming his paws on my leg, he had a serious concern.

"Mom," he said. "Yesterday, when you and Dad went to go get groceries, Katrina let me outside. And when I came in, I might have stepped on Chapter's foot a little bit. And he had a regular hissy fit!

"He literally hissed – right in my face. He growled and he snarled and he spit at me! And then," and here, Henri lowered his voice, looking deeply aggrieved, "and then, Mom, he bit my butt! I tried to tuck it under and run away, but he bit it. Several times!" After a long moment, he added, "And it hurt!".

"I bet it did," I told him sympathetically. "What happened then?"

"Well," he said sadly, "Finally, I ran behind Lady. Then Katrina came and clapped her hands and yelled at Chapters and he ran the other way. But Mom," he said, his brow furrowing in consternation, "you always say we don't bite in this house."

"We don't," I assured him.
"I'll speak to Chapters again.
I know it doesn't help much,
but you have to remember that right now, he's a teenage cat. When he grows up a little more, he'll be easier to get along with."

"Mom," Henri plopped his chin in my lap with a sigh, "I don't think that cat will ever be easy to get along with. Just rub my head, okay?"

Later, when I walked out to the kitchen to refill my coffee, I found Chapters-theteenage-cat sitting on the counter. "Down," I told him, "I've told you before – stay off my counters. And while you're at it, don't bite Henri anymore."

For a moment before he jumped down, Chapter's yellow-green eyes met mine. "You," he said, "are not the boss of me." Then he slithered up the stairs to nap in the middle of my bed.

So actually, I guess, I had conversations with all four of the pets before the Princess woke up. Somewhere along the line, it appears I've become the complaint department for animals in our house. It would probably be best if we didn't tell the Princess that, either, though. She's apt to book that room in the home for me, and as crazy as it may be here, I'm not quite ready to go yet.

Besides, it's hard to find a good home that will take me and all my animals, too.

The good old days...

Blue jays and squirrels

By Bryan Layton

Outdoor Writer

Have you ever sat around and thought about how things used to be? I think most folks have and I am no exception.

As I get older, I find myself thinking about the past more and more and sometimes wish I could turn back the hands of time. Maybe I think about the past more often because I have more of it to think about. Hmmmm...

What has me cruising down memory lane this week is the white tailed deer. I sat in my chair looking out my front window on Saturday and started to remember some things as I stared at the bird feeder. I recalled a time when birds were not the only guests looking for a bite to eat. It seems like forever ago that it was legal to take a square of hay or a coffee can of corn and chuck it on the ground and wait for deer to sneak in and vacuum it up.

My entire family used to love it when they showed up. Many a dinner was eaten at our table with the kitchen light out so we wouldn't scare the deer away that were enjoying a bite as well. It was a highlight of the trip for family and friends that would visit us from downstate. It's rare that a visit goes by without someone asking about the deer and if we still see them. The reply is always the same, "Not very often these days."

It's not only the feeding of deer that is missed, but baiting is also a distant memory. That can of scattered corn or the apple peelings that Mom gave you after making apple butter worked great. Not only for deer but for whatever critter decided they needed a bite.

Fresh Water

I know it's cold out there, but birds still need fresh water. Birdbaths don't have to be fancy. Just make sure they're easy to clean and shallow, so small birds will use them. Many online or local sources carry de-icers or heated birdbaths. The birds will thank would dart in and out for hours like bandits as they carried away bits and pieces to munch on. It was fun to watch and time seemed to fly when you had some action going on in front of you. My kids used to enjoy that a lot as well. They would smile at the squirrels chasing each other around and sitting on saw you move.

I know this will cause some folks to gasp and possibly pass out but here goes -- I would like to see the powers that be reevaluate the baiting and feeding ban and make it legal again.

There, I said it. I talk to a lot of people and a large majority feel the same way. Make it legal for those who choose to use bait as a hunting tool and for those who wish for nothing more than to just enjoy some deer outside their window.

I know, I know, what about the TB thing? Has the ban on feeding and baiting improved the TB situation or do we owe unlimited doe permits all of the credit? I'm not a scientist but it seems to me that less deer means less TB.

Another benefit of making feeding and baiting legal again is the shot in the arm it would give the local stores. In an already crippled economy anything you can add to your "shelf" would help a great deal. I'm sure they would enjoy the extra income and breath a sigh of relief after the light bill was a little easier to pay. Food for thought, literally.

I had an opportunity to do some ice fishing last weekend as well. I made a trip to VanEttan Lake in Oscoda on Sunday. I kind of slept in so I was not the early bird on the ice. There were quite a few anglers dotted all over the lake. I didn't go far from shore -- right off F-41 -- and pulled in a few perch. Nothing big but it was very relaxing and was much better than sitting on the couch.

I made my way over to a few other folks that were enjoying the day as well and it seemed that everyone was catching fish. I didn't see any that would make the record book but there are some that will be enjoying a nice fish dinner very soon. I plan on a few more trips before the end of winter so there is more to come on this subject.

Take some time and get into the outdoors. Take a youngster along with you so they can have some good old days to talk about in the years to come

Employee of the Year

Northland Area Federal Credit Union has announced the 2010 Employee of the Year. Andrew Dorr, network administrator for Northland's IT Department, was the winner of the award. Dorr began his career with Northland in 2007 as a systems analyst. He has been the recipient of several internal awards presented by both co-workers and upper management. In 2010, he was promoted to network administrator and voted Employee of the Year. He holds an associates' degree in network administration and is pursuing a bachelor's degree in information security at Davenport University.

"Andrew is an outstanding employee. He displays a tremendous work ethic and a consistent willingness to serve the credit union beyond his job requirements. He's well respected by his colleagues and we're lucky to have him," said Mike Zeimen, senior vice president of Northland Credit Union.

Thelma Orr Scholarship

The Alpena Regional Medical Center (ARMC) Auxiliary is offering two $1,500 scholarships for students pursuing a course of study related to human medicine at any state accredited Michigan college or university. Those interested in obtaining a scholarship may secure an application from one of the following locations: The Gift Corner (located in main lobby of hospital), the ARMC information desk, the ARMC nursing department and the marketing and development department on the third floor.

The following are eligibility requirements for the scholarship: Must be a resident of Alpena, Alcona, Presque Isle, Montmorency, Iosco or Oscoda counties. Former applicants that have not received the scholarship may apply again. Applicant must be at least a secondyear student in the program. The completed application and attachments must be received (postmarked) in the Volunteer Office of ARMC no later than April 15. If asked, applicant must arrange an interview with the scholarship chairman or his/her designated alternate. The applicants will be notified of the final decision made by the Scholarship Committee after May 1. The recipients will be expected to attend the ARMC Auxiliary Banquet, May 26, to be recognized.

are can be a full time job. Knowing where they are online—which websites they're visiting and who they're talking to—is even harder, but is no less important.

The Better Business Bureau Children's Advertising Review Unit encourages parents to teach their kids and tweens about unsafe online situations and recommends looking out for seven stop signs.

According to a study by the Neilsen Norman Group, kids as young as nine years old are becoming just as capable—if not more so—than

> "The best way to keep your kids safe online is to keep the lines of communication open," said Wayne Keeley, director of the BBB Children's Advertising Review Unit. "Talk to them about the possible dangers and let them know that they can always come to you if they feel confused, threatened or bullied and let them know that they should stop and come talk to you whenever they find themselves in these seven situations online:

- You visit a website which asks for financial information like bank, credit or debit card numbers. Some websites may try to get at your wallet through your kids. Let your kids know that it is never acceptable to give out your bank, credit or debit card numbers to anyone.
- You visit a website that asks for personal information like your home address, first and last name, e-mail

Sit down with your kids address, phone or Social Security number. Your kids may not realize that information such as their full name, address, phone number or even their e-mail address or Social Security number can be very valuable to companies that want to market products to them and also to identity thieves or predators online.

Where is the hottest place in the atmosphere?

Answer: The thermosphere, or top layer, gets the hottest.

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Earth: Still Shaking and Baking

We live on the most dynamic planet in the solar system with volcanoes and earthquakes the easiest forms of tectonic movement that we can identify. This activity is all linked to the heat trapped within the Earth and how our planet is slowly dispersing it, 4.5 billion years after its creation. Consider that the Earth's crust is divided into about 15 major plates. These are similar to ice cubes jostling for position in a large pan of water. Plates, like the North American upon which we live, are floating on a denser and plastic asthenosphere located about seven to 45 miles beneath our feet. What drives the heat engine of the Earth are regions called mid-oceanic ridges, where the crust is being heated and forced upward because of its lower density. Volcanoes beneath the ocean's surface are erupting and causing the seafloor to spread apart over tens of millions of years to places where they meet resistance from other plates. Here they are pushed downward or subducted. Earthquakes and volcanoes are the order of the day in such locations. Still other plates ram each other at speeds of one to two inches per year thrusting up huge mountains like the Alps and Himalayas. Other plates chaff, building up pressure over hundred to thousands of years only to lurch, causing powerful earthquakes that can level cities and send tsunamis across thousands of miles of open seas to devastate distant coastlines. Lastly are the plumes of heat that seem to originate deep within the mantle of the Earth, rising and radiating their steady supply of energy to create volcanic hotspots. Hawaii is a prime example of such a location and so is Yellowstone National Park. If you want it any rougher, then go live on Io, the second smallest of the Galilean moons of Jupiter. There you'll only have to contend with a continual barrage of

STRANGE BUT TRUE By Samantha Weaver

- It was computer guru Jef Raskin who made the following sage observation: "Imagine if every Thursday your shoes exploded if you tied them the usual way. This happens to us all the time with computers, and nobody thinks of complaining."
- Most people think of Abraham Lincoln as an iconic president and the Great Emancipator, but many don't realize that he also was an inventor. He was issued patent No. 6,469 for an inflatable device he designed to help buoy river-going vessels over shoals.
- In Somalia it is common for a girl to be engaged before she is even born.
- If you get squeamish around bugs, you might not want to read the following little tidbit of information: Nearly every human carries around tiny eyelash mites that live out their entire lives on our faces including mating and laying eggs there.
- Due to a series of earthquakes in 1811 and 1812, the Mississippi River ran backward for a time.
- An enterprising inventor named Andrew Schneider has come up with the latest geek apparel: a solar bikini. With it, you can tan while also charging up your iPod. No word on whether there are solar swim trunks in the pipeline for men.
- J.K. Rowling's Harry Potter books are so popular worldwide that now they're not even being writing by Rowling herself. The booming bootleg industry in China seems to have taken the Potter series to heart, creating such titles as "Harry Potter and the Leopard Walk-Up-To Dragon," "Harry Potter and the Chinese Overseas Students at the Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry,' "Harry Potter and the Chinese Porcelain Doll," "Rich Dad, Poor Dad and Harry Potter" and "Harry Potter and the Filler of Big.'

Thought for the Day: "You don't get anything clean without getting something else dirty." — Cecil Baxter (c) 2011 King Features Synd., Inc.

MOMENTS IN TIME The History Channel

- On March 15, 45 B.C, Julius Caesar, the "dictator for life" of the Roman Empire, is murdered by his own senators at a meeting in a hall next to Pompey's Theatre. The conspiracy against Caesar encompassed as many as 60 noblemen, including Caesar's own protege, Marcus Brutus
- On March 20, 1345, according to scholars at the University of Paris, the Black Death, also known as the Plague, is created from what they call "a triple conjunction of Saturn, Jupiter and Mars in the 40th degree of Aquarius. It is now known that bubonic plague was carried by fleas.
- On March 14, 1879, Albert Einstein is born, the son of a Jewish electrical engineer, in Ulm, Germany. Einstein's theories of relativity drastically altered man's view of the universe, and his work helped make possible the atomic bomb.
- On March 17, 1905, future president Franklin Delano Roosevelt weds his fifth cousin once removed, Eleanor Roosevelt, in New York. In 1918, Eleanor was devastated to discover that Franklin was having an affair with her secretary, Lucy Mercer. When Eleanor threatened to leave him, his mother intervened and offered to support Eleanor financially if she would stay in the marriage.
- On March 18, 1911, Irving Berlin copyrights the biggest pop song of the early 20th century, "Alexander's Ragtime Band." In the first two decades of the 20th century, musical popularity was based not on the sale of recorded performances, but on the sale of sheet music. Future Berlin hits would include "White Christmas" and "God Bless America."
- On March 16, 1926, American Robert H. Goddard launches the world's first liquid-fueled rocket at Auburn, Mass. The rocket, fueled by liquid oxygen and gasoline, traveled for 2.5 seconds at a speed of about 60 mph, reaching an altitude of 41 feet and landing 184 feet away.
- On March 19, 1957, Elvis Presley puts down a $1,000 deposit on a $102,500 house in Memphis, Tenn. The Southern mansion on a 13.8-acre wooded estate was later named Graceland. Today, Graceland is the second-most-visited house in America, after the White House.

DNRE reports 14 hunting accidents in 2010, three fatalities in Michigan turned out to be the safest on record with only 14 casualty incidents reported, including three fatalities, according to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Environment (DNRE).

"Fourteen incidents is an all-time low for Michigan and hunting continues to be one of the safest outdoor recreation activities to participate in, with a continued drop in incident rates since implementation of mandatory hunter education and mandatory hunter orange," said Sgt. Jon Wood, DNRE's

The 2010 hunting season Hunter Education Program supervisor.

> Hunter safety training became mandatory for first-time hunters ages 12-16 back in 1971. In 1977, hunter orange became mandatory for hunters with exceptions for a few activities, such as archery and waterfowl hunting. In 1988, the hunter education law was expanded to require anyone born after January 1, 1960 to complete hunter education before obtaining a hunting license.

> Michigan's Hunter Education Program utilizes nearly 3,000 volunteer instructors across the state to certify hunters in safe and ethical safety while afield and conhunting practices. According to Wood, the volunteers are the backbone of the program. "Without these dedicated volunteers, hunting in Michigan would not be nearly as safe as it is today," Wood said. There were more than 23,000 students certified in 2010.

In addition to volunteers, Michigan conservation officers take active roles in hunter education efforts. Officers are routinely involved through classroom activities and field contacts.

"Conservation officers understand the importance of tinue to make enforcement of safety violations a top priority," said DNRE Law Enforcement Chief Gary Hagler. "Michigan is one of the top states for hunting, and we work every day to make it one of the safest as well.'

Hunter education class schedules can be found on the department's website at www.michigan.gov/dnre, and then by clicking on Outdoor Recreation, and by clicking on Hunting & Trapping.

Summaries of hunting incidents dating back to 2007 can be found online at www.michigan.gov/ conservationofficers.
