Leadership class focuses on New Economy principles

On September 29 a new nity project over the five-sesdirection is being forged for leadership in Alcona County and the surrounding region at least as it relates to the context of the Alcona Regional Leadership program.

No longer are the sessions based on static skill-building classes. Instead they are action oriented and focused on New Economy principles. With the help of Michigan State University (MSU) Extension facilitators, participants will lead the process, with an opportunity to accomplish an easy commusion time period. Resources from across the state will be available to assist participants through the learning processes. Technology, such as Skype, will be utilized to enhance communication.

On September 8 MSU Extension Specialist Dave Ivan, presented a public program at the Alcona High School auditorium. He shared his research about successful small to mid-sized communities across the nation, who

Hand cyclist trains for October marathon

By Cheryl Peterson

Anyone traveling on US-23 around Greenbush and Harrisville in the early morning hours might see an unconventional wheeled contraption powered by a human rider traveling along the side of the road.

The unconventional wheeled contraption is a hand bike and the human pedaling it is Kevin Bradley of Harrisville who is training for a marathon in October.

Bradley, who has been training all summer, also recently competed in the National Veterans Wheelchair Games in Pittsburgh, Pa. in August. He placed first in shot put, fourth in javelin, fourth in discuss and fifth in air gun categories in his division. He also placed 15th overall in the 10 kilometer (6.2 miles) hand bike race setting a personal record of 32 minutes, 30 seconds.

Events at the National Veterans Wheelchair Games showcase the athletic abilities and personal achievements of the nations' veterans with disabilities and also highlight the benefits of sports rehabilitative programs. The games, which are presented by Paralyzed Veterans of America (PVA) and the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA), are designed for veterans who use wheelchairs due to spinal cord injuries, amputations or neurological problems for athletic competition.

Bradley can attest to the benefits of sports rehabilitation. Since the first time he settled into a borrowed hand bike seat in early June to compete in a 5-10 kilometer race, he was hooked. Bradley received a bronze medal in the race, but the freedom and speed of the experience gave him the iniative to set a goal of getting his own bike.

With a borrowed, well used bike from the PVA Bradley began training from his home in Harrisville in June. Despite persistent malfunctions, he logged 200 miles in a couple of weeks and set goals of competing in 5K and 10K races.

Bradley graduated from Alcona High School in 1983. He served in the U.S. Air Force for 14 years living in Texas, Kansas, the Philippines, New York, Germany and Colorado. Throughout his military career Bradley worked as a medic and in the medical field. He was stationed in Bichester, England for several months in 1991 during the Gulf War.

It was about the mid-1990s when Bradley started noticing subtle changes in his body. In 1995 he was the manager of the emergency room at Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado and spent time teaching others during the course of his work. This is when he noticed that he had trouble grasping small objects, inserting IVs and suturing wounds. Bradley thought the problem was that he wasn't doing those things on a regular basis, and that he just needed to spend more time hands-on.

Later, during training to be certified on a search and

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor,

During the Labor Day parade in Harrisville, the Alcona County Library workers were invited to be part of the Alcona County Democrats' float. This was done to celebrate their victory in organizing for the basic right of collective bargaining. That basic right is what Labor Day remembers and celebrates.

Sadly, through an unintentional mistake, the word "workers" was left off a sign. This omission may have implied the library itself and Democrats were sharing a float. This is regrettable because it allowed those opposed to the library workers organizing to find a way to criticize them.

To be clear, the Alcona County Library is not involved in partisan politics. It is a public library, serving the needs of everyone in the community. It receives support from and is appreciated by people across the entire political spectrum.

The Democratic Party supports workers wherever and whenever they organize for the right of collective bargaining. Unions are what built the middle-class of America, and Democrats stand proudly with them. So, I accept responsibility for any confusion caused by the sign, but continue to stand in solidarity with the library workers.

Paul Peterson Chairman Alcona County Democratic Party

have used New Economy concepts to increase their economic viability. Using real-time technology, those in attendance at Ivan's presentation, helped the Leadership Committee choose two concepts most applicable to their northeast Michigan communities. These two concepts have become the foundation for the new leadership process; strengthening regional assets and strengthening quality of place.

This leadership pilot starts September 29 and continues every other Thursday through November 22. Class size is limited to 30 persons. Sessions start promptly at 5:30 p.m., ending at 8:30 p.m. and will likely require two to five hours of homework between classes. Each session is designed to build on the previous session.

The Alcona regional planning committee believes the process learned through these sessions will provide participants with a basic framework for accomplishing projects in their personal, volunteer and work environments, as well as establishing support for New Economy ventures in northeast Michigan.

"This process may be the programs across the state. The committee and the people I work with at MSU Extension are very excited about the opportunities we have to contribute to leadership development and increasing economic success across our communities," said Bonnie Wichtner-Zoia, Alcona MSU Extension educator and Leadership Program planning committee member.

The Alcona Regional Planning Committee posturered

model for similar leadership

The Alcona Regional Planning Committee partnered with several MSU Extension educators from other counties in Michigan to plan this new program.

"We are thankful to have such a strong partnership with the MSU Extension organization," said Dottie Haase, a member of the planning committee, "Our committee strives every year to develop a new theme and this year when the concept of a totally new process was suggested, we didn't hesitate to jump on board. What a thrill for us in northern Michigan to have this opportunity to pilot a brand new leadership concept."

The Alcona Regional Leadership Series is open to anyone who has an interest in personal and professional development. To register, call Alcona MSU Extension at (989)724-6478 or e-mail zoiay@msu.edu. Registration is $75 per person, which includes fees, materials and dinner at all sessions. The registration deadline has been extended to September 16.

Allen L. McFarland

Allan L. McFarland, 55, of Flint Mich. died Thursday, Sept. 1, 2011 at home.

He was born May 7, 1956 in Bay City, Mich. to Kenneth and Alice Faye (Craner) McFarland and had lived in Flint most of his life.

He was a longtime employee of the Accurate Gauge Co.

Mr. McFarland is survived by his father, Kenneth McFarland of Ludington, Mich.; one sister, Kimberly McFarland of Covington, Tenn.; one aunt, Janet (Jerry) Hale of Mikado; one niece, Stephanie (Lucas) Pyle; one great-niece and one great-nephew.

His mother preceded him in death in 1991.

The funeral was held on September 13 at Gillies Funeral Home, Lincoln. Burial will be in Mikado Cemetery.

Margaret M. Waasdorp

Margaret M. Waasdorp, 74, of South Branch, died on Thursday, Sept. 8, 2011 at Tendercare in Tawas City.

She was born in Caro, Mich. to Frank and Lillian (Darbee) Southworth on February 18, 1937. She graduated from Caro High School in 1955.

She married Curtis Waasdorp on May 30, 1981 in Saginaw, Mich.

Mrs. Waasdorp was a member and served as treasurer of the Curtisville Baptist Church. She was a member and served as secretary of the Curtisville Civic Association and a member of the Glennie Sportsman Club where she also served as treasurer.

She was a partner at Journeys Unlimited Travel Agency in Bay City, Mich. and worked as a waitress at Wolfgang's Restaurant, Cur-Lee's in Glennie and was a cashier at Rogers Food Pride in Glennie.

Mrs. Waasdorp is survived by her husband, Curtis; one son, Brian McCloy; three daughters, Susan McCloy, Lisa (Rick) Haines and Sandra Dickerson; five step-children; numerous grandchildren; many great-grandchildren; two brothers, Fred Southworth and Bert Southworth; three sisters, Paula Ott, Betty Phillips and Leone Wolfgang.

She was preceded in death by her parents; and one brother, Edwin Southworth.

The funeral was held Monday, Sept. 12 at the Hale Chapel of the Buresh Funeral Home. Interment was in Curtis Township Cemetery. The Rev. Donald Miller officiated. Memorial contributions may be made to Curtisville Baptist Church building fund or Glennie Sportsman Club.

Window Reflections

One way to prevent birds from flying into windows is to place strips of tape or streaks of soap at least 1-inch wide and 10 inches apart on the outside of your window. Vertical works best. This helps break up the reflection, and birds are less likely to hit the glass.

Flu Vaccines

Influenza (flu) is a contagious respiratory disease that can lead to serious complications, hospitalization, or even death. Anyone can get the flu, and vaccination is the single best way to protect against influenza. Even healthy children and adults can get very sick from the flu and spread it to family and friends. Flu viruses are constantly changing. Each flu season, different flu viruses can spread. Getting vaccinated against the flu every season protects against the three influenza viruses that research indicates will cause the most illness this season.

Alpena Regional Medical Center is hosting Flu Clinics Monday through Friday beginning September 12 from 6 a.m. until 7 p.m. in the Alpena Regional Medical Center Front Lobby. Flu shots are $25 (bring your Medicare card). Clinics are held on a walk-in basis, no appointment is necessary.

Health experts now recommend that everyone six months of age and older get vaccinated against influenza. Even healthy children and adults can get very sick from the flu, but certain people are at greater risk for serious complications if they get the flu, including:

- People 65 years and older
- Children younger than five, but especially children younger than two years old
- People with certain chronic health conditions like asthma and COPD, diabetes (both type 1 and 2), heart disease, neurological conditions, and certain other health conditions
  - Pregnant women

Who should NOT get a flu vaccine?

Influenza vaccine is not approved for use in children younger than six months so they should not be vaccinated, but their caregivers should be vaccinated instead. And people who are sick with fever should wait until their symptoms pass to get vaccinated. Some people should not be vaccinated before talking to their doctor. This includes:

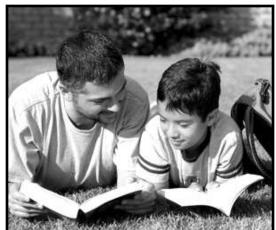

- People who have a severe allergy to chicken eggs
- People who have had a severe reaction to an influenza vaccination in the past.
- People who developed Guillian-Barré syndrome (GBS) within six weeks of getting an influenza vaccine previously.

Anyone with questions about whether or not should get a flu vaccine, consult their health care provider. For more information about the Alpena Regional Medical Center Flu Clinics, call (989) 356-7337.

rescue team, Bradley fell while conducting a high angle rescue and sustained a torn Achilles tendon. After surgery to repair it and a lengthy time off his feet so it could heal, he started getting back into his physical routine, which included running. He had trouble running in a straight line and had other balance issues. He chalked that up to being off of his feet for an extended period.

Symptoms persisted and in late 1997/early 1998 he was diagnosed with spinocerebellar ataxia (SCA) or Machado Joseph's disease (MJD) which is a neurological disease "in the same family as muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis, and Parkinson's disease," Bradley said. "It is rare. It causes muscles to weaken – everything from eye movement to speaking to gross motor skills."

After his honorable discharge from the Air Force, Bradley moved to Batavia, N. Y. and lived there for several years before moving back to Michigan to be close to family – his parents, Mary (Papin) and Robert "Joe" Hastings live in Black River. In October he purchased a house north of Harrisville and began remodeling it.

Prior to moving to the area, the only assistance he needed was a walker and Sage, his golden retriever who is a certified service dog, who helped him with balance issues when he walked. Now, he uses a power chair and Sage helps Bradley in other areas. He receives occupational therapy at the VA hospital in Detroit, Mich. and sees specialty doctors in Saginaw, Mich. and receives medical care at the VA clinic in Alpena.

Bradley is anxiously awaiting the receipt of his own hand bike – which is due any day. With it he will continue training for a 26 mile marathon in Detroit, Mich. in October. He has improved his 10K time to 24 minutes and keeps extending his rides to gain distance in preparation for the marathon.

In between training he continues to work on his house, with the assistance of Lisa West of Alpena. "She has been instrumental in helping get the technical requirements detailed in order to get grants from the VA housing department," Bradley said.

Kevin Bradley spent time at Lost Lake Woods Club training for trap shooting, an event at the National Veterans Wheelchair Games in which he hoped to compete. To keep his aim steady, he designed a device (above) in which Jack Robinson of Sunrise Welding and Fabrication in Lincoln constructed. Bradley will use this device on his fall hunt in Manitoba, Canada. Unfortunately, he didn't use it in competition as he was on the waiting list for that event. Courtesy photo.

Bradley is also looking forward to a hunting trip in Manitoba, Canada this fall. He will be traveling with several Alcona County hunters to hunt white tail deer with the assistance of Mike Campbell, who will be their guide. Bradley, who enjoys hunting and fishing, has been trying to qualify for a United States Outfitters (USO) program to go on a handicap hunt for six years now and has been unsuccessful.

He has been saving money for almost four years and a friend in New York has donated pay checks to help make the trip a reality. He is set to go in November.

Pflucker/Bielusiak pledge vows

Maria Cecilia Pflucker of Lima, Peru and John Eugene Bielusiak of Lansing, Mich. were married August 20, 2011 at Sunken Garden at Cooley Gardens in Lansing, Mich.

The Reverend Pam Smith officiated the ceremony witnessed by family, friends and co-workers of the groom.

The bride is the daughter of the late Nelly and Leonardo

The groom is the son of the late John and Rose Bielusiak. The bride was given away by Bob Wisener of Presque Isle, a close friend of the couple. The best man was Michael Bobbitt of Lansing, Mich. friend of the groom. The maid of honor was Julie Basagoitia, of Gainesville, Fla., friend of the bride.

A luncheon reception was held at Westbay Club Apartment Complex in the clubhouse. Guests came from Michigan, Indiana and Florida. The couple will honeymoon at a later date.

VFW Post No. 6754 Ladies Auxiliary

A POW/MIA service was conducted by Norma Alstrom and Sandy Light. The September 2011 business meeting was held with 12 members present. Emma Liske read the minutes for the August meeting and Sandy Light read the treasurer's report.

Marie Rhines will ask the post members if they plan to participate in the Buddy Poppy Program and advised the auxiliary members of the Outstanding Hospital Volunteer Program for 2012. Over the next few months, she asked the members to think of someone they could nominate as an Outstanding Hospital Volunteer. She also gave each member a listing of Michigan senators and representatives and their addresses so that we could write letters asking them to continue funding for veterans programs.

Frances Ziesman advised the members of the Camp Trotter silver dollar table at the fall conference and as a result, a donation was made. Norma Alstrom provided all the members with a jewel teardrop to wear during the month of September which has been designated as Military Suicide Prevention Month. Sandy Light reported that only two members have not yet paid their membership dues which hopefully will be done by the November 6 District 11 meeting.

The charter was draped for our departed sister, Iva Cornelius, who went to the her heavenly home on August 18, 2011. A National Home life membership was purchased for Donna Bushey. A cash donation was made to National Home to assist with the replacement of baby cribs. The Health and Happiness quota of 25 cents per member was paid and the five coins recognizing a veterans service were purchased and they will be placed in the "care" packages sent to service personnel serving in Iraq and Afghanistan over the next few months.

Marie Rhines needs names and complete addresses of veterans to receive these care packages. Norma Alstrom reported that after a large garage sale she was able to deliver ladies robes, nightwear and baby clothes to Shelter, Inc. in Alpena. President Vichunas reported on her attendance at the District 11 meeting held on August 7 in Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

For the good of the order, we were asked to remember the military personnel who are still serving our country as well as those returning home and, unfortunately, in some cases, returning home with disabilities.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 4 at 7 p.m. at the K. of C. Hall on US-23.

Michigan fire fighters battle Texas wildfires

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has sent firefighters and equipment to Texas to assist in battling the extensive wildfires throughout the state.

Under an interagency agreement that all 50 states participate in, the Michigan DNR sent four tractor/plows and eight staff to Texas in mid-June, and has been providing fresh crews for this equipment every 14-21 days since that time. A total of 40 DNR staff have been, or are currently, in Texas helping with wildfires. The latest replacement crews travelled to Texas on Tuesday, Sept. 6.

"Once the fires are over and our equipment and staff come home, the state of Texas will reimburse the department for our costs in providing these people and equipment," said Lynne Boyd, chief of the DNR Forest Management Division. "Having our staff down there not only assists Texas, but it also provides valuable training for our employees."

Jeff Vasher, a forest fire officer with the Michigan DNR, spent three weeks in Texas battling two of the largest fires in Texas history the 101 Ranch Fire and the Bastrop Complex Fire. He was involved in efforts that saved many homes. What he remembers most though from his time down there wasn't saving the homes, it was the people.

"People were constantly coming up to us and thanking us for our work, even after they had just lost everything to the fires," Vasher said. "We saved a lot of houses, but the devastation was just unimaginable. The spirit of the Texas people continued to shine. They even took the time to honor us at halftime of the Mineral Wells

Michigan has a long history of providing equipment and staff to other states as they battle fires. As a state, Michigan has also benefited greatly from this interagency agreement. Most recently in 2007, during the Sleeper Lake Fire in Luce County, over 230 firefighters from around the state and the Midwest battled the 18,500 acre fire.

"This agreement allows for a quick and relatively flawless response when a state is in need," said Boyd. "Our first priority is to ensure that Michigan has both the staff and resources to fight fires here. Once we know what we need to meet our needs here at home, we can offer up our services to other states.'

The Michigan firefighters and equipment are expected to continue to help in Texas until the fires are under con-

Free prostate cancer screening

Every three minutes a man should be combined with the finds out he has prostate cancer — the second-leading cause of cancer death in American men.

In fact, more than 240,000 cases are expected in 2011, making prostate cancer among men more prevalent than breast cancer among women. Some 34,000 men die from it this year...unless you do something to make a difference.

Prostate cancer is nearly 100 survivable if detected early. And early detection starts with screening.

Symptoms of prostate cancer include: Dull pain in the lower pelvic area, need to urinate often, difficulty beginning urination or holding back urine, weak or interrupted flow of urine, painful urination, blood in urine or semen, painful ejaculation, persistent bone pain, loss of appetite and/or weight, and frequent pain or stiffness in the lower back, hips, and upper thighs.

A digital rectal examination (DRE) and prostate specific antigen (PSA) are both used to diagnose prostate cancer. In a DRE, the physician will examine the prostate gland taking note of any abnormalities in size, contour or consistency. The DRE PSA test for increased prostate cancer detection.

The Alpena Cancer Center encourages healthy men over the age of 40 to have regular PSA testing. Diagnosis of prostate cancer is rare before the age of 40, but increases significantly after. One in 55 men between the ages of 40 and 59 will be diagnosed with prostate cancer while the rate increased to one in six for men 60 to

Since 90 percent of prostate cancer cases are diagnosed in the local and regional stages, nearly 100 percent of men treated at this stage will be disease-free after five years. With a new case occurring every 2.7 minutes worldwide, and a man dving every 19 minutes, prostate cancer is a serious condition that can, when detected in its early stages, be effectively treated and cured.

Alpena Regional Medical Center is hosting a free prostate screening (for men 60 years and older) on Thursday, Sept. 22 from 6 to 8 p.m. and Saturday, Sept. 24 from 8 a.m. to noon, both at the Alpena Cancer Center. Screening includes a PSA test and physical exam. Call (989) 356-8001 to pre-register for a screening.

You go girl -- a defense of womanhood

By Jim Gagnier

Guest Columnist

Let me state right off the bat that I am far from the model of a fair-minded man in dealing with the opposite sex.

I have had those little temper tantrums and ravings about women drivers when a young blonde cuts me off on a two lane highway.

And I have been guilty of all those snide remarks about "chick-flick" movies and how their plot lines seem to have all come from the same romance novels you see displayed at the local drug store.

I, too, have lamented the complete lack of feminine understanding of why a Michigan football game on a warm September afternoon is far more important then an uncut lawn.

I confess that I have even been guilty of that oft mentioned worst of all possible slights.... leaving a certain seat up in the most private room in the house.

So what I am about to say may stun some of the fairer sex who know me. I think women in the public eye today are getting a bum rap and it's coming from all quarters. And this seems to be true mostly with ladies in the political arena. They have been condemned as naive, unthinking, crude and downright stupid with vicious words both spoken and written. And the thing that really blows my mind is that a great deal of this mud slinging and character assassination is coming from the most unlikely of sources -- namely, other women. And it's this that I find so hard to understand.

First it was President Clinton's lady fair. We don't have to go through the litany of things she was accused of or the supposedly stupid things she said. But before we condemn her too much let's look at what she had to live with. Old Bill was hardly a model for her to look up to. As a matter of fact, he was hardly a model for any of us. So let's not be too hard on Hillary.

Next Sarah came along -you know the former governor of that obscure, unimportant state up north. Sure she did a great job up there her critics said but who couldn't? After all Alaska is a minor state in the union and she only had to deal with a small population and a limited budget.

Never mind that our current president never dealt with a payroll of more then 60 people as a senator. After all, he is a man so that's different. And what did she really accomplish besides taking on her own party and cleaning up the corruption, a lot of which was related to Alaska's long standing senator, who happened to be a man, by the way.

Yes, she was humiliated by Katie Courac on national television because she couldn't come up with a long list of intellectual magazines she had read like Time and Newsweek (Note: Sarcasm).

And she had the gall to be the mother of a daughter who had a child out of wedlock. Of course none of us today can relate to that situation, can we? And in this computer age, how many magazines do any of us, man or woman, read?

Then there's Michel Bachman who has recently been in the news as a possible presidential candidate, heaven forbid... Of course she had barely come on the scene when she was attacked on all sides as being the next thing to an imbecile. She apparently got her history mixed up about Paul Revere's ride and Concord in a television interview but come on....do any of us, man or woman, have a memory of every detail we learned in grade school? I recently read a vicious column about this incident in a Detroit paper and was amused that this critic also did not know the real reason behind Paul Revere's famous ride. And, by the way, the writer was a man.

The latest onslaught seems to be directed at Christine O'Donnel, you know the "I am not a witch" lady from Maryland. By now we should be familiar with the drill...Just another stupid woman who's trying to get into a man's world, right? And Nancy Pelosi has been demonized so often I'm starting to think she is the reincarnation of the Wicked Witch of the West.

So what's my point? Simply this... Women do not have a monopoly on stupid remarks. There are men that are pretty good at it too. We have a vice president who has spoken so many stupid and weird words that Mr. Obama is afraid to have an open microphone within 50 feet of him at any given moment And didn't our own beloved president once make a remark about bringing a program to "all 57 states?"

Bill Clinton, bless his heart, not only said some stupid things but even put certain stupid ideas into practice.

John Kennedy was a great president but he never could pronounce Cuba and some of his stupid deeds are legend. I mean would a smart man bring his mistress into the white house? And if you have to have a playmate, is it smart to have one that was the girlfriend of a Mafia king? Just think of the blackmail possibilities. George Bush, senior, once said "Read my lips...no new taxes." Now that had to be the classic stupid remark for any politician. And the latest example is potential presidential candidate Rick Perry who said the other day that the Federal Reserve Board was a bunch of terror-

I can go on and on but you get the message. There is absolutely no evidence that men are superior to women as far as intellect goes. And there is no case that women have a monopoly on stupid remarks. So why shouldn't women get into politics and maybe other fields as well? I'll leave it up to you. Have the men done such a great job of running all the local, state, and federal governments in this country so far? And I think you can include the business world and our churches in that question, too.

Ladies, quit beating up on each other. Don't let men convince you that your only place in this world is cooking or hanging over a sink full of dirty dishes. I like the idea of women getting into some of the fields of endeavor that have long been man's domain.

And for gosh sakes, when a woman is brave enough to enter a man's world, don't succumb to the temptation to join the men in tearing them to shreds. Even if you don't fully agree with their ideas give them a little credit for getting out there and trying to do something to get us out of this mess that we men have for the most part created.

And one more thing. I don't know why some of these great women movements like NOW are so silent while these women are being raked over the coals. After all, if they're all for advancing womanhood, you'd think they'd speak up once in awhile to defend it. But then again, in the long run, maybe it's up to all you ladies out there. When the subject comes up about a woman in the public eye, in the interest of gaining the respect your gender deserves, it might be a good idea to heed the old bromide. "If you can't say something nice about someone"...well, you know what I mean.

Furbearers offer good hunting opportunities

Prospects for the 2011 biggame hunting and furbearer seasons are very good, according to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) wildlife biologists. Michigan offers a diversity of species and a wide variety of seasons to maximize recreational opportunity.

First-time hunters are reminded there are two ways to qualify to purchase a hunting license. Generally, anyone who was born after January 1, 1960 must first complete hunter safety training and acquire a hunter education certificate to purchase a license. State law was amended in 2006 to allow novice hunters to purchase an apprentice license to go afield with a mentor before they complete hunter education. Hunters may participate with an apprentice license for up to two seasons, but must be accompanied by an adult mentor with a license for the same activity.

Youths may begin hunting at age 10, for small game with a firearm or deer with archery gear; age 12 to hunt deer or bear with a firearm or a crossbow. However, firearms deer and bear hunters who are younger than 14 are restricted to private land only.

Licenses are available at all retail license dealers and at the DNR E-License website at www.mdnrelicense.com.

The biggest change in deer hunting regulations this year is that hunters in the Lower Peninsula – outside of Deer Management Unit 487, where bovine tuberculosis is an issue – may use bait. Hunters are limited to a maximum of two gallons of bait that must be spread over a minimum of 100 square feet.

Bear

Season: Bear licenses are issued by a preference-point system for specific time periods and geographic areas. Hunting on the mainland of the Upper Peninsula runs from September 10 - October 26. On Drummond Island, the season is September 10 - October 21.

In the northern Lower Peninsula, the season is September 16-24 in the Red Oak, Baldwin and Gladwin units with an additional week (beginning September 9) in the north Baldwin unit and an archery-only season October 7-13 in Red Oak.

In the Upper Peninsula, the first five days are for bait hunting only. In the Lower Peninsula the first day of the season is bait only and the last two days (except for archery) are for hunting with dogs only.

Outlook: Bear hunting continues to be excellent in Michigan. With a population estimated to be in the 10,000 to 12,000 range, the DNR has made 11,742 licenses available and anticipates a harvest of about 2,000 bruins. Populations are at or near desired levels across most of their range.

E1k

Season: August 30 – September 2 and September 23-26; December 3-11; and

January 18-22, 2012 if needed.

Outlook: Michigan's elk population, which was above goal for a number of years, has been reduced to a level more in line with management goals. As a result, fewer licenses are available than in some recent seasons. A total of 155 licenses were made available for the 2011 season. Licenses are issued by lottery. The early season is held largely outside the core elk range.

In December, hunters are issued licenses for specific units within the core elk range, but hunters may opt to hunt outside the core area as well. If wildlife managers determine the harvest was insufficient to meet management goals, a January hunt will be held with additional licenses available to hunters who have already applied.

Deer

Season: An early antler-less-only hunt is September 15-19, in selected counties on private land. Check the 2011 Hunting and Trapping Digest for details. Youth early antlerless season is September 20-23 in DMU 486, the multi-county unit in southern Michigan. A youth and 100 percent disabled veterans hunt is September 24-25, statewide. A special hunt for disabled persons is October 13-16, statewide.

Archery season is October1 - November 14, and December 1 - January 1, 2012 statewide. Firearms season is November15-30, statewide. Muzzleloading seasons are December 2-11 in Zone 1 (Upper Peninsula); December 9-18 in Zone 2 (Northern Lower Peninsula); and December 2-18 in Zone 3 (southern Michigan).

A late antlerless hunt in selected Lower Peninsula counties on private land is December 19 - January 1, 2012.

The season limit is two bucks, one of which must have at least four antler points on one side. In the Upper Peninsula and DMU 487 (the six-county bovine tuberculosis zone), hunters who take two bucks may only take one buck with at least three antler points on one side and one with at least four antler points on one side. Hunters who wish to take two bucks in the Upper Peninsula or DMU 487 must purchase a combination deer license; hunters who purchase a firearms and/or archery license are restricted to one buck, all seasons combined.

SNOW PLOWING BIDS WANTED

Curtis Township is accepting bids for the 2011-2012 snow plow season. The bids are for the Curtis Township Hall, Fire Hall and Curtisville Sub-Station. All bids must be submitted by October 13, 2011. Mail bids to Curtis Township Hall, P.O. Box 90, Glennie, MI 48737. Please mark "Snow Plow Bid" on envelope. You may also drop off bids at Curtis Township Hall, 4932 F-31, Glennie, MI 48737. Must have proof of insurance upon acceptance of bid.

Bobcat

Season: January 1 - March 1, 2012 in Unit A (Upper Peninsula except Drum-mond Island); Unit B (Drum-mond Island); and Unit C (Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmett, Montmorency, Oscoda, Otsego and Presque Isle counties). January 1 - February 1, 2012 in Unit D (Clare, Crawford, Gladwin, Iosco, Kalkaska, Missaukee, Ogemaw, Osceola, Roscommon and Wexford counties and Arenac north of M-61 and west of I-75). The limit is two per season, but only one may be taken from Units C and D combined, and only one may be taken in Unit

Outlook: Bobcats are found primarily in the northern twothirds of Michigan. The population is recovering from a slow decline in the Upper Peninsula, where harvests vary widely because of snow conditions and road access. The population is stable in the Lower Peninsula.

Hunters are reminded that in addition to a fur harvester license, they must acquire a (free) bobcat kill tag in advance of hunting. Hunters must immediately apply the kill tag to the animal when they kill a bobcat and the carcass must be presented to a DNR office within 10 days of the close of the season. DNR personnel will collect data including the date of kill, location, and method of harvest; and the skull or a tooth sample. The bobcat pelt will be sealed by the DNR.

Coyote

Season: July 15 - April 15, 2012 statewide. Coyotes may be taken year-round on private property if doing damage or about to do damage. Coyotes may not be pursued with dogs from April 15 -July 14. There is no bag limit. Hunters may take coyotes on a small game or fur harvester spread across the state and abundant in some areas. Retiring creatures, covotes are often nocturnal and may be present in significant numbers without being visible. Coyote hunters in the Upper Peninsula are advised to be cautious not to confuse young wolves for coyotes. Coyotes may be hunted at night, but hunters are restricted to .22 caliber or smaller rifles or handguns, archery gear or crossbows or shotguns containing shells with shot smaller than buck shot. Check the 2011 Michigan Hunting and Trapping Digest for additional information.

Raccoon

Season: October 1 - January 31, 2012 statewide, though they may be taken year-round on private property if doing or about to do damage. There is no bag limit.

Outlook: Raccoons are abundant and widespread, found in all habitats, but are partial to hardwood stands, especially along waterways or near agricultural fields. Raccoons are often hunted at night with hounds. Roughly 75,000 are taken by hunters each year. Check the 2011 Michigan Hunting and Trapping Digest for restrictions on firearms and equipment.

Fox

Season: October 15 -March 1, 2012. There is no bag limit.

Outlook: Both red and gray fox are found across Michigan. The more numerous red fox are found largely in agricultural areas with mixed habitat, including fence rows, fallow fields and shrub land, especially adjacent to wood lots or waterways. Gray fox are typically found in woodlands. Although they are found in all counties, fox numbers vary widely from abundant to uncommon.

Generally, fox do not compete well with coyotes. so in areas with large coyote populations they may be hard to find. Although they are commonly hunted with hounds — often in conjunction with covotes — hunting with predator calls has become increasingly popular. Hunters are reminded that they must have a fur harvester license to take fox.

"Shield" yourself from a cell phone radiation scam Scammers are always looking to make a quick buck, and with consumers concerned about harmful exposure to cell phone emissions, many scammers are looking to promote "shields" that can protect from the cancer causing waves.

Better Business Bureau (BBB), along with the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) are warning consumers to be on the lookout for these socalled "shields" and advising consumers to turn to free options when limiting exposure to cell phone electromagnetic emissions.

A Special

The Alcona County

Like many other too good to be true products, there is no scientific proof that these shields are actually effective. While it is always good to protect yourself from potentially harmful emissions, there are other ways to do it besides investing in a shield for your cell phone. The FTC

even notes that these socalled "shields" may even interfere with your cell phone's reception.

"Leave it to scammers to jump on the latest scientific frenzy," said Patrick Bennett, BBB director of community relations. "It's important for consumers to do their research before investing in any too good to be true technology. More times than not, victims will end up with a faulty product that, in many cases, doesn't actually do any good."

BBB and the FTC advise consumers to consider these free options for limiting cell phone electromagnetic emissions:

· Go hands free. When chatting on the phone for long periods of time consider using a hands-free device, like an earpiece, or using the speakerphone feature. For the short conversations, you may even want to consider just texting the message, which allows for a quick response and keeps the phone away from your head.

• Wait for a good signal. When you have a weak signal, your phone works harder, emitting more radiation. Phones also give off more radiation when transmitting than when receiving, so tilt the phone away from your head when you're talking, and bring it back to your ear when you're listening.

• Shop around. When looking for a new cell phone, consider investing in one that has a low specific absorption rate (SAR) before you buy. Measured in watts per kilogram of tissue, the SAR reveals how much radiation the body absorbs while using the mobile device. The FCC has record of this information for phones that were made in the last two years. You can find the FCC ID number on the inside of your cell phone's case. Legally, in the U.S., a phone can't emit more than 1.6 watts per kilogram.

For more consumer tips visit http://easternmichigan.bbb.org/bbb-news/ and for more tips specific to cell phone emission, visit www.ftc.gov/bcp/edu/ pubs/consumer/alerts/ alt109.shtm.

DNR research vessel Lake Char suited for Lake Superior

Is one of the fisheries biologist's most ubiquitous tools – the clipboard – becoming obsolete?

In some ways and some places, it already is.

Fisheries staffers aboard the R/V Lake Char – the Department of Natural Resources' Lake Superior research boat – have already begun recording data on the fish captured in research nets directly by voice into a computer.

"The Lake Char is a paperless vessel for practical purposes," said Shawn Sitar, the fisheries research biologist who implemented the voice-recognition software that makes the system possible. "We tested the voice data recording system under stressful conditions - wind, waves, noise - and under rough sea conditions, the system performs better because data collection with paper is difficult, slow and subject to error.

"Voice recording data also helps eliminate transcription error," Sitar said. "Transcription errors, when entering handwritten data from paper, are very high and as the amount of data increases, the error rate increases – up to 20 percent error in data

according to Sitar, who worked aboard the R/V Judy, the Lake Char's predecessor.

How much better?

"It was like going from a horse and buggy to an automobile," Sitar said. The R/V Lake Char, which

The R/V Lake Char, which is busy on Lake Superior from ice-out to ice-up, is a 56-foot long, 16-foot wide aluminum-hull vessel, powered by a pair of C-12 Caterpillar diesels that produce 454 horsepower each. (In comparison, the Judy was a 40-foot, single-engine, steel-hull vessel.)

"The Judy was a much smaller platform to work on," said Captain Kevin Rathbun, who is the only first officer the Lake Char has ever known since it went into action in May 2007. "The Judy wasn't made for Lake Superior – it was made for Lake Erie – and that single screw made it much less safe.

"The Lake Char will probably handle anything we'd ever want to be out in."

On Lake Superior, that's saying something. The crew entered by hand. With the voice system, that's virtually eliminated."

Direct data input saves staff time (and the time not spent keypunching, proofing and correcting data). The new system saves the DNR $3,000 to $5,000 a year, Sitar said. It's proven to be so dependable, that other research stations want to implement the system aboard their vessels.

"We've seen how errors can bog down and frustrate and misrepresent what's going on out there," Sitar said. "You save time, money and frustration."

The voice-recognition software may be the most spaceaged technology in use aboard the DNR's newest research vessel, but everything else about the vessel is better than it used to be, too,

SENIOR LIFESTYLES

High-tech gadgets for low vision

Dear Savvy Senior,

I'm looking for some good low-vision products that can help my wife who has severe vision loss. What can you recommend?

Searching Spouse

Dear Searching,

With more than 21 million Americans living with some form of uncorrectable vision impairment today, more and more products for low-vision are being developed that can help with many different

There are literally hundreds of simple, relatively inexpensive products on the market today that can help people with low-vision. For example, to help with daily living tasks, you can find a wide array of "talking," "large print" or "jumbo-sized" items such as clocks, watches, remote controls, telephones, computer keyboards, calculators, thermostats, kitchen aids and much more, as well as a wide variety of magnifiers. You can find these products at sites like independentliving.com or (800) 537-2118; shoplowvision.com, (800) 826-4200; maxiaids.com, (800) 522-6294; and lssproducts.com, (800)

In addition to the simple products, there is also a number of high-tech, low-vision devices that offer incredible capabilities. Unfortunately, many of these items are expensive and they aren't covered by private insurance or

Savvy Senior

Desktop magnifiers: Also known as closed circuit TVs, these are home-based machines that provide powerful magnification, contrast and clarity for reading, writing and looking at pictures. While this type of technology has been around for a while, more styles and variations are available today with prices usually ranging between $2,500 and $3,000. Some of the best places to find these are at: optelec.com, (800) 826-4200; freedomscientific.com, (800) 444-4443; enhancedvision.com, (888) 811-3161; and humanware.com, (800) 722-3393.

• Portable magnifiers: For reading small print in and outside the home (food labels, prescriptions, bills, menus, etc.), portable, battery-powered video magnifiers provide the same features as closed circuit TVs, but they're small enough to fit in your pocket. Some good ones to check out are the "RUBY" at freedomscientific.com, the "Compact Mini" from optelec.com, the "Pebble" at enhancedvision.com and the "Feather" at clarityusa.com. Prices typically range from

• Text-to-speech: For converting text to speech, there are several devices that let you take a snap shot of printed material (magazines, newspapers, books, mail, et cetera), and in seconds it reads it aloud. ClearReader+ from optelec.com is one of the best for home or office use, but costs $2,500. If you want mobility, the Intel Reader (careinnovations.com) is a handheld text-to-speech device that retails for $899. And for iPhone 4 users, the new ZoomReader app developed by Ai Squared (aisquared.com, (800) 859-0270) provides text-to-speech capabilities for $20.

• Computer magnification: To customize a Microsoft Windows personal computer for low-vision, the computer's operating system offers builtin setting adjustments that can help. See microsoft.com/ enable for instructions. If that's not sufficient, Ai Squared sells a fantastic software application for $545 called ZoomText Magnifier/ Reader that enlarges, enhances and reads aloud everything on the computer

Or, if your wife uses an iMac or iPad, Apple provides some outstanding built-in accessibility features (see apple.com/accessibility), including screen and cursor magnification, high-contrast settings and screen reader capabilities.

Physical activity pays dividends

SENIOR NEWS LINE by Matilda Charles

It makes sense to pay attention to a study that's gone on for many years. There's one that's been in place since 2,400 men and women were born 1946. The study, reported in a recent issue of the American Journal of Preventive Medicine, was called "Physical Activity Across Adulthood and Physical Performance in Midlife."

Scientists hoped to learn whether leisure-time physical activity at a younger age had anything to do with the status of physical strength in later years. The participants were contacted more than 20 times for updated information, checked at ages 36, 43, and 53 and tested for standing balance, how long it took to rise up out of a chair, and grip strength.

Standing balance measured how long the participant could stand on one leg with eyes closed, up to 30 seconds. Chair-rise speed involved getting up out of a chair, standing straight and sitting back down — ten times! Grip strength used an electronic device for measurement.

Here's how the results turned out: At all three checks, "chair rise" time was positively affected by prior physical activity. At ages 43 and 53 standing balance was affected. At age 53, women's grip strength wasn't affected, but it was with men.

The conclusion was that yes indeed, physical activity does affect the status of our physical strength and performance later in life.

Cooler weather is coming, with winter right behind. Consider signing up for some type of physical activity class, something fun, that meets on a regular basis.

We can't go back and give ourselves a more active youth, but we can start now to give ourselves a stronger future, right?

Watch out for false promises from OnlineBuinessScams.com

Better Business Bureau (BBB) cautions consumers to watch out for a website that is falsely charging for BBB complaint resolution services.

OnlineBusinessScams.com charges consumers an upfront fee of $1,500 to $2,000 for assistance in collecting money owed from businesses only to forward consumers' complaints to the BBB.

Consumers across the country have filed complaints about OnlineBusiness-Scams.com. One consumer was told that in order to help him collect money owed from a business he needed to pay 30 percent of the amount owed. The site requested half of the 30 percent upfront, which he paid.

After receiving the fee, OnlineBusinessScams.com asked the consumer to provide the details of the dispute so the site could determine whether to handle the "case." Afterwards, the consumer received an information packet that included an envelope addressed to the BBB. OnlineBusinessScams.com told the consumer that they would recover his money within 90 days. It's now been 90 days and the consumer tried to contact Online-BusinessScams.com to no avail.

The BBB wishes to remind

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Remembering Sirius

I remember precisely where I was, driving east on Turner St., just beyond West Park when I heard about the World Trade Center. By the time I had reached Dieruff HS, teachers were scrambling to set up a TV in the library, and some students were beginning to gather. Formal instruction stopped, but education continued as all of us watched the towers crumble. I remember feeling isolated in a room filled with kids who were now contemplating uncertain futures. The hallway prattle of happy students was muted that day, as well as the lives of nearly 3000 Americans, including the son of an elementary teacher in my District. Trying to cope with what had happened, even one decade later, is still not easy, but one victim has helped to create a memorial which I can see in the sky. One of the deaths was a bomb detection dog named Sirius. Sirius, also called the Dog Star, is the brightest luminary of the nighttime sky and of Canis Major, the Big Dog. It can be seen at 5:30 a.m., low in the southeast against a brightening sky. Follow the three belt stars of Orion downward to connect with Sirius. You might ask, why memorialize a dog? A well-kept dog loves his master unconditionally and will instinctively sacrifice his own life if the situation merits. A dog is unconcerned about his owner's race or religious beliefs. It is a type of bonding, a type of caring that we more sentient humans many times fail to grasp. Sirius died in his kennel when the North Tower fell. There just was not enough time to rescue everyone. Sirius the star is currently rising and will be visible in our sky until April of next year. The ancients considered heavenly bodies that were ascending to be good omens. They were refreshed, fed, and watered from their long journey beneath the Earth. At least for me, Sirius, the dog, and Sirius, the Dog Star, will serve as a beacon of hope for a better future world. www.astronomy.org

- On Sept. 28, 1938, auto inventor Charles Duryea dies in Philadelphia at the age of 76. Duryea and his brother Frank designed and built one of the first functioning gas-powered automobiles. Charles insisted on taking full credit for the brothers' innovation and said that Frank was "simply a mechanic."
- On Sept. 26, 1957, "West Side Story," composed by Leonard Bernstein, opens at the Winter Garden Theatre on Broadway. "West Side Story," a reinterpretation of William Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, tells the tale of a love affair between Tony, who is Polish American, and Maria, a Puerto Rican, set against an urban background of interracial warfare.
- On Sept. 29, 1969, the U.S. Army drops murder charges against eight Special Forces soldiers accused of killing a Vietnamese national. The case against the Green Berets was dismissed for reasons of national security when the CIA refused to release highly classified information.
- On Oct. 2, 1985, Rock Hudson, a Hollywood romantic leading man during the 1950s and '60s and later a TV star, dies at the age of 59 from an AIDS-related illness. The 6foot-5 Hudson rose to fame starring in such films as "Giant" (1956), for which he received an Academy Award nomination.

STRANGE BUT TRUE by Samantha Weaver

- It was 20th-century American humorist Evan Esar who made the following extremely sage observation: "Anger is the feeling that makes your mouth work faster than your mind."
- The Ghirardelli company, now renowned worldwide for the fine chocolate it produces, originally was a purveyor of mustard and spices.
- Frank Lloyd Wright was an unusually prolific architect. During the 70 years of his professional career, he designed a whopping 500 buildings.
- Unless you're employed in the publishing field, you might think that a typographical error is rather insignificant, something that only nitpickers worry about. Typos, however, sometimes radically change the meaning of text. Take, for example, the 1631 edition of the Bible published by the royal printers in London. A word was left out of one of the Ten Commandments, resulting in the exhortation, "Thou shalt commit adultery." This book is now known as the Wicked Bible or the Adulterous Bible. Robert Barker and Martin Lucas, the publishers responsible for the error, were fined 300 British pounds, or about $54,000 in today's currency.
- In 1826, the eastern part of Texas declared its independence from the United States, calling itself the Republic of Fredonia.
- You might be surprised to learn that author Norman Mailer, best known for his novel "The Naked and the Dead," majored in aeronautical engineering when he was in college.
- Ιf you're arachnophobe, you may not want to read the following tidbit: There are some species of spider that dine on fish — and catch them, too.
- For reasons surpassing understanding, in 1845, the city of Boston made it mandatory to have a doctor's prescription before taking a bath.

Insurance inventory

DOLLARS AND SENSE photo. BY David Uffington

The best time to do an insurance inventory is before trouble strikes, and the best place to store your inventory list is somewhere other than your home. Should you have a claim, photos and written documentation are your best evidence of property you own.

PHOTOS:

If you have a digital camera, your task will be made easier if you buy an additional memory card. Take all your photos with that memory card in the camera, and then store the card in a bank box or another safe place. If you have a film camera, you'll need to print out your photos and store those.

There are two steps to taking insurance photos: what easily can be seen, and what's hidden.

Stand in the middle of each room and take photos in a circle around you. That's the easy part. The next step involves opening closet doors and drawers and taking pictures of the contents. Your best bet is to have the camera set on the largest photo it will take, often larger than 3000 by 2000 pixels. The reason is that you'll be able to take photos of the back of electronics, such as televisions and stereos, or the bottom of collectibles such as china, and have the model and serial numbers available when you blow up the

Don't forget to inventory the contents of your garage or attic, as well as any sheds on your property. Photograph the exterior of your home and your vehicles.

Another method is to use a video camera, but be sure your aim is steady. Still photos are preferable, as studying each one will allow you to clearly see which items you also need to add to your paper inventory list.

PAPER:

Print out online (or get from your insurance agent) an inventory form to jog your memory about what you own and need to document. List each item. Receipts are likely stored with your warranty information, but you'll need them for any claims of loss. Receipts will show the date of purchase as well as the cost.

Keep everything in a bank box or another safe location: A copy of the memory card with your inventory photos (or the photos themselves), copy of insurance policies and your paper inventories.

A SPORTING VIEW

By Mark Vasto

Legend has it that a reporter asked a senator how it was that he was so successful, and the man replied by saying "good decisions." How do you make good decisions? "Experience," was the reply. And how does one gain such experience? "Bad decisions."

I've never won an office pool or fantasy league in my life. I'm a joke at the sports book in Caesar's Palace. And with that, I bring you this year's roundup of bad decisions as they pertain to the NFL.

NFC EAST

Prediction: Eagles, Giants (wild card), Cowboys, Redskins

Vegas: Eagles

The Eagles just have too much firepower, and QB Michael Vick is the league's MVP. The Cowboys have an enigma at OB with Tony Romo, and the Giants, despite key offseason losses, have depth and a great coaching staff.

NFC NORTH Prediction: Packers, Bears, Lions, Vikings

Vegas: Packers

Hard not to pick the Packers here — they still have the most talented team in the NFC. But it's a tall order to repeat in the NFL. As far as the Lions go ... prove it, Matt Stafford.

NFC SOUTH Prediction: Saints, Falcons (wild card), Panthers, Bucs Vegas: Saints

Bad decisions

The Saints are fired up, and with the shortened preseason their experience and OB Drew Brees attention to the playbook makes them a nice bet. The Falcons are hungry and aggressive. I wouldn't be shocked to see either in the Super Bowl.

NFC WEST

Prediction: Cardinals, Rams, 49ers, Seahawks Vegas: Rams

The Rams seem too young for me to feel comfortable betting on them. I'll take QB Kevin Kolb and expectations of consistency from the Cardinals.

AFC EAST

Prediction: Patriots, Jets (wild card), Bills, Dolphins Vegas: Patriots

The Jets may win 12 games. So what? The Patriots might win 16. This will be hashed out in the playoffs.

AFC NORTH

Prediction: Ravens, Steelers, Browns, Bengals Vegas: Steelers

I believe in QB Joe Flacco. The Steelers are the easy bet, but I'm wondering if they can't be beat by a few outerfringe teams this season.

AFC SOUTH Prediction: Texans, Colts, Titans, Jags Vegas: Colts

This pick means I believe Peyton Manning will be hurt for longer than anticipated.

Prediction: Chiefs, Chargers (wild card), Broncos, Raid-

Vegas: Chargers

The Chiefs have a killer running back in Jamal Charles, a good quarterback in Matt Cassell and a young, aggressive defense. This will surprise a lot of people. That said, the Chargers are probably better. Oh, well.

NFC CHAMP: Eagles AFC CHAMP: Jets

SUPER BOWL CHAMP: Jets VEGAS LINE: Patriots over Packers

I'm going to believe the hype and take Rex Ryan for the win. It makes for a good story, anyway.

Volunteer at the VA Hospital

VETERANS POST by Freddy Groves

Given all they have to do for patients, Department of Veterans Affairs medical centers reply heavily on volunteers. Here are a few ways you can help:

—Voluntary Transportation Network: You'll give rides to veterans who have appointments at the medical center and no way to get there. These appointments are important, especially if the veteran is scheduled for chemo, radiation or even dialysis.

—Shuttle drivers: Parking lots can be big and daunting for a veteran who isn't feeling well. You'll transport veterans from cars to the door, and back again.

—Office assistant: In some places additional office staff is welcome for answering phones and filing, as well as greeting people and giving directions, or calling patients with appointment reminders.

—Patient volunteer: You'll help nursing staff give extra attention to veterans, hand out goodies or even just talk to patients who have no visitors. Perhaps you'll help write a letter, make a phone call or play a board game.

If you want to donate cash, there are plenty of places money can be used. Personal care products, coffee and snacks for the Lodger Unit, televisions and recreation programs can all use your dollars.

These recreation programs, which can include barbecues, fishing trips and meals out, can be life-changing events for many veterans. By giving cash or going along to help, you'll make it possible for more veterans to take a break from medical treatment.

Non-cash donations are welcome too, but a bit trickier. You need to call and find out what is needed at a given time, as space for storage is generally tight.

To find out how you can help, contact the voluntary services office at the VA medical center nearest you. Search at www.va.gov and click on Locations.

VILLAGE OF LINCOLN MINUTES

The Lincoln Village Council met on Tuesday, Sept. 6 at 7 p.m. at the village hall. The meeting opened with the "Pledge of Allegiance." Those present included: President Jordan, treasurer Kossa, clerk Somers, deputy clerk/treasurer Stutzman and council members Gauthier, Healy, Naylor, Somers and Stutzman. Council member Lask was absent. Also present were attorney Cook and guests.

The minutes of the August meeting were approved on a motion from Gauthier, with support from Stutzman. The treasurer's report was approved subject to audit on a motion from Gauthier, with support from Somers.

President Jordan announced the Citizen of the Year award for this year. Richard E. Gillies was chosen as the recipient and given a plaque to honor his many years of service. President Jordan gave an overview of Dick's work within the village. Dick thanked everyone and remarked, "It's a pretty nice plaque for benches and garbage cans!" Lask joined the meeting at 7:10 p.m. Refreshments were served.

Leroy Hall, fire chief, gave a brief report. He continues to work on getting the brush rig put in the village's name. President Jordan asked that work continue on closing out the grant for the fire department. In public comment Gary Horn congratulated Dick Gillies on receiving the citizenship award. Joan Toombs asked about getting a no passing line put on Barlow Road north of the conservation office towards the north village limits. Attorney Cook advised that we can put whatever signs along the roadway we choose. Joan also asked about having people be advised not to use the "iake brake" on big trucks. She stated that there have been many people passing and going in excess of the posted speed limit. President Jordan will talk with someone from MDOT and the local road commission.

Deb Shaneour stated that she was very impressed with the recent Lincoln Lions Car Show and also with the streetscape project. She offered her congratulations on a job well done by the village. She asked about getting the benches in the downtown region before the Trick or Trunk event in October. President Jordan stated that the lights should be arriving soon and a work bee will be held to get them assembled as soon as possible. The Brownlee Lake Association held a garage sale over the weekend and it profited the group in excess of $2,000 towards the aeration project on the lake. She thanked everyone who participated either towards the donation of articles for the sale or for those who attended and purchased items. In old business, Somers stated that he has turned in bills for work on the dump truck that will put it back into workable condition. Work was done by Kenny LaLonde. Somers stated that he is nearly finished with work on the new ball diamond for the year. He will work on planting the outfield beginning in the spring. President Jordan reminded him that the field is set for dedication in early summer of 2012. Lask stated that she is thrilled with the new streetscape so far. Work continues now on Traverse Bay State Road from Second Street to Church Street.

In new business Naylor asked about having letters of appreciation sent to people who have worked on the streetscape project. Jordan stated that we will certainly be sending out thank yous once the project is finished. Stutzman asked about having some gravel put in at the Flights of Imagination parking area. Somers will take care of it tomorrow.

The president's report was given. Jordan stated that the new four-way stop has been instituted at Main and Second streets. He stated that it will be a permanent four-way stop. Once the new light poles are installed, stop signs will be added to the light posts. Cameras are installed and functioning at the Flights of Imagination. President Jordan stated that he would like to put more money aside in next year's budget to purchase more cameras. Mary and Linda and Evelyn Good of the DDA are attending Quick Books classes weekly in Alpena. Sara Healy will be looking into LED Christmas lights for the village, she will report back at next month's meeting.

Thanks go to Ron and Sue Kennard for helping us obtain the new flags and stand that are inside the meeting room. President Jordan stated that he is very pleased with having the new electricity installed at the hall. He would like to look into having water spigots run outside the hall by next summer. Somers stated that he has ordered new road signs for the entire village as has been mandated by law. Jordan stated that he would like to have the wooden road signs and sign posts stained again next spring.

A motion to accept and pay the bills as presented was made by Lask, with support from Stutzman. Carried. A motion to adjourn was made by Lask with support from Healy. Carried.

has already had the vessel out to Isle Royale – something it wouldn't have considered with the Judy – and if the weather changes, the Lake Char cruises at 18 knots, twice the speed of her predecessor.

"This year we had her out to Stannard Rock," Rathbun said. "I've been (at the Marquette Fisheries Research Station) since '03 and that's the first time I was out there."

Built by Andersen Boat Works in Saugatuck, Mich. the Lake Char is a one-of-akind vessel. It cost just shy of $1 million to build and outfit, Rathbun said, and he expects it to be in service for the DNR for 50 years.

"Being aluminum in fresh water, that's very achievable," he said.

With a 36-gallon-per hour fuel consumption rate at cruising speed, the crew only has to refill the 1,080-gallon tank every 10 to 14 days. That saves time; it takes close to an hour just to fill the fuel tank quette research station chief who chaired the committee that helped design the Lake Char, said he is very pleased with the final product.

"We were looking for greater safety and flexibility in what we could do with a research vessel," Schneeberger explained. "It's all compartmentalized, so if there were to be a breach in one compartment, it isn't the kiss of death. And it has the speed to get into port in an emergency, too."

The process of building the vessel was time-consuming and, at times, frustrating.

"We put it out for bid three times," Schneeberger said. "But it worked out that it was a Michigan-built boat. It was practical. It was in the process of being built for more than a year and we could make physical visits to the boat and make adjustments as we went."

To the crew, the most outstanding characteristic of the Lake Char is, compared to its predecessor, comfort. It's built so that the cabin can be closed up – for those sideblowing, rainy days – and it has the little amenities (like a microwave oven) that make the 90 days or so the crew spends working on it easier.

It may not have all the comforts of home, but the Lake Char comes about as close as a research vessel can.

"Compared to the Judy," Rathbun said, "it's like going from a Chevette to a Cadillac."

Fisheries technician Dan Traynor, left, and fisheries assistant Greg Kleaver set a gill net near the Huron Islands.
