

Voter registration deadline nears for February 28 presidential primary

Michigan voters have until Monday, Jan. 30 to register to vote in the February 28 presidential primary election.

"This year will present Michigan residents with important choices at the voting booth, whether they're voting for president or local offices," said Secretary of State Ruth Johnson, Michigan's chief election officer. "I encourage everyone who is not yet registered to do so in order to participate in one of the foundations of our democracy, and that is casting a ballot."

The polls will be open on election day from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

To register, applicants must be at least 18 years old by election day and be U.S. citizens. Applicants must also be residents of Michigan and of the city or township in which they wish to register.

Voters may register by mail, at their county, city or township clerk's office or by visiting any Secretary of State office. The mail-in form is available at www.Michigan.gov/elections.

First-time voters who register by mail must vote in person in their first election, unless they hand-deliver the application to their local clerk, are 60 years old or older, are disabled or are eligible to vote under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act.

To check their registration status, residents may visit the Michigan Voter Information Center at www.Michigan.gov/vote. Residents can also find information there on absentee voting.

Michigan's voter identification requirement, how to use voting equipment and how to contact their local clerk is available on the website. In addition, they will find a map to their local polling place.

Voters who qualify may choose to cast an absentee ballot. Registered voters may obtain an absentee ballot if they are:

- Age 60 or older.
- Physically unable to attend the polls without the assistance of another.
- Expecting to be absent from the community in which they are registered for the entire time the polls will be open on election day.
- In jail awaiting arraignment or trial.
- Unable to attend the polls due to religious reasons.
- Appointed to work as an election inspector in a precinct outside of your precinct of residence.

Those who wish to receive their absentee ballot by mail must submit their application by 2 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 25. Absentee ballots can be obtained in person anytime through 4 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 27. Voters who request an absentee ballot in person on Monday, Feb. 27 must fill out the ballot in the clerk's office. Emergency absentee ballots are available under certain conditions through 4 p.m. on election day.

The February election, like all elections, is open to all registered voters. Michigan does not require voters to register as a member or supporter of a political party, so voters can choose to participate in either the Democratic or Republican party primary.

By state law, this is called a closed primary. When voters request an absentee ballot or arrive at the polls and fill out their application to vote, they must indicate in which party's primary they wish to vote. They will then receive a ballot listing candidates for that party. That ballot will also contain any special election issues. Some communities will have additional items on the ballot aside from the presidential primary election. Sample ballots will be available online at www.Michigan.gov/vote. (Note: The August 7 primary will be an open primary, and voters will not be required to formally indicate their choice for a specific political party ballot.)

Voters who wish only to vote in the special election may request a ballot that does not include presidential candidates.

As a reminder, voters will be asked to provide identification when at the polls on election day. They will be asked to present valid photo ID, such as a Michigan driver's license or identification card. Anyone who does not have an acceptable form of photo ID or failed to bring it with them to the polls can still vote. They will be required to sign a brief affidavit stating that they're not in possession of photo ID. Their ballots will be included with all others and counted on election day.

Voters who don't have a Michigan driver's license or identification card can show the following forms of photo ID, as long as they are current:

- Driver's license or personal identification card issued by another state.
- Federal or state government-issued photo identification.
- U.S. passport.
- Military identification card with photo.
- Student identification with photo from a high school or an accredited institution of higher education, such as a college or university.
- Tribal identification card with photo.

Mitchell State Park visitor center dedicated to hunting and fishing

There's little doubt, when you arrive at the visitor center at Mitchell State Park, that the Carl T. Johnson Hunting and Fishing Center near Cadillac, Mich. is aptly named.

"When you walk through the door you're greeted by three monster white-tailed deer that were all taken on state land in this area," explained visitor center interpreter Ed Shaw. "And a nice big bear, too."

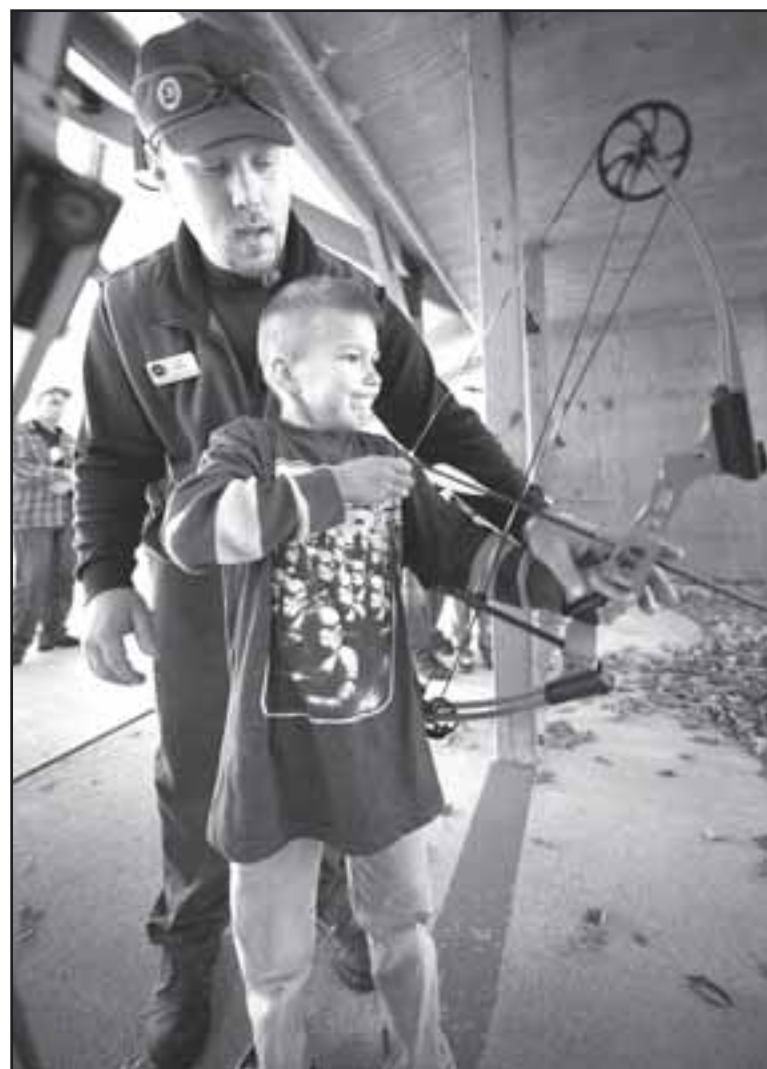

"Right behind the display is a big fish tank that the kids gravitate to. We have a number of warm-water species in there - yellow perch, largemouth bass, pumpkinseed sunfish, bluegill, rock bass and black crappie, a couple of each.

"And they were all caught by the kids in the canal outside the center where we take the kids fishing. The kids can come back and visit 'their' fish."

It's all about hunting, fishing and shooting sports - both now and in the past.

The center, which opened in 1992, is named for Carl T. Johnson, an avid outdoorsman from the Cadillac, Mich. area. Johnson was a houndsman who rigorously pursued bear and bobcats. He founded the Michigan Bear Hunters Association, was involved with Michigan United Conservation Clubs, served as chairman of the Natural Resources Commission and founded the Michigan Conservation Foundation.

of Natural Resources named the center after Johnson despite its policy (at the time) of not naming facilities after living persons. Johnson died in 1998.

The three-winged building has a room dedicated to hunting, another dedicated to fishing and a classroom that has a little bit of both. The classroom is adorned with hunting/fishing-related art (make sure you check out the fish decoys) from local artists, historical artifacts, and a full

Forensic exam determines identity of remains

By Cheryl Peterson
Editor

The remains of a former Lincoln resident have been officially identified, bringing to a close a case that has been open since 2009.

According to the Alcona County Sheriff Department, Dr. Todd Fenton, a forensic anthropologist at Michigan State University, has identified the remains discovered on November 13, 2011 as those of Edward Groves.

Groves' remains were found roughly a half mile to a mile in a heavily wooded cedar swamp not far off of Hubbard Lake Road on the Lost Lake Woods Club property in Alcona Township. Groves, 45, had been a resident of Lincoln for about a year. He had lived in Hubbard Lake prior to moving to Lincoln.

Groves went missing in April 2009. At that time his vehicle, a Chevrolet Blazer, was found abandoned on the side of Hubbard Lake Road. The vehicle was linked to several damaged mail boxes in Alpena and Alcona counties when it was found. Alcona County Sgt. Scott Stephenson said Groves was believed to be under the influence at the time of his disappearance.

A search for Groves was conducted by officers of the sheriff's department and also by the Michigan State Police canine unit on the day his Blazer was found.

Stephenson said an anthropological exam was conducted to determine positive identification only, not to determine cause of death. Investigators did not find the manner of death suspicious. The case is officially closed.

Attracting Songbirds

Mix together equal portions of black oil sunflower, hulled sunflower hearts and safflower seed and pour into a tube feeder. Not only will cardinals flock to your feeders, but other songbirds like tufted titmice, chickadees, buntings, finches, sparrows and nuthatches will eat it too. It's an all-time favorite mix.

Great Backyard Bird Count

It's been a strange and unpredictable winter for most of the nation. Consequently, many of the Christmas bird counts reported varying numbers of species and some in record numbers. However, by mid-January, weather patterns returned to more normal and many of the birds have moved on to their wintering grounds. Usually by early February most are settled in a location, and by early March the spring movement north will commence.

The Great Backyard Bird Count gives researchers a handle on where birds are situated across the continent prior to the spring migration. With the aid of both novice and experienced bird watchers, scientists are able to gather significant data summarizing the location, numbers and general health of avian populations.

The Great Backyard Bird Count is held from February 17-20. Observers are asked to spend at least 15 minutes watching one or all four days. There are no boundary limits. Folks are encouraged to report birds seen at their feeders, in their yards, neighborhoods, parks, woodland areas, or along rivers and shorelines. Observations are entered online at www.bird-count.org. If an individual does not have access to a computer, official hand written forms are available and may be downloaded at local libraries.

AuSable Valley Audubon will conduct a free public information session on Tuesday, Feb. 7, from 4 to 5 p.m. at the Oscoda Robert J. Parks Public Library on Skeel Ave.

Hints on bird identification will be addressed, along with a demonstration on how to submit results online. For questions or more information, contact Peggy Ridgway evenings at (989) 739-5674.

Lady Tigers at top of conference

By Dan O'Connor
Sports Writer

The Alcona varsity girls basketball team handed the Tawas Braves their first Huron Shores Conference loss by storming to a 15 point halftime lead and not looking back. This win improves their record to 9-0 in the season and 3-0 in the conference.

The Lady Tigers started the game by moving the ball well in the half court set and held up against the Brave press. Nikki Smith provided a spark in the first quarter by dropping five of her seven points in the first quarter. Alcona lead 14-7 after one quarter.

The second quarter proved to be much of the same as Karina Cole picked up the scoring with seven points in the quarter giving the Lady Tigers a 29-14 lead at the half time break.

Alcona pushed the lead to 24 midway through the third quarter before a late Tawas rally cut the lead to 43-27 heading into the fourth quarter. Alcona sealed the deal with a 20 point quarter and the 63-41 win.

Cole led Alcona with 23 points and 11 rebounds, Amy Nowak added 18 points and 14 rebounds, while Smith added seven points. Emily Nowak chipped in six rebounds and three points.

The Lady Tigers begin a busy stretch where they will travel to Whittemore-Prescott on Thursday, Jan. 26; Hillman on January 30; host Mio February 1; and travel to Oscoda on February 2.

Tigers back on winning track

By Ron Yokom
Basketball Writer

After a loss to Bay City John Glenn and a cancelled game with Oscoda due to snow, the Alcona varsity boys basketball team got back on the winning track with home victories over Fairview and Tawas last week.

The Tigers had to overcome the loss of Brock LaVergne who sat out the Fairview game with a muscle injury. The Eagles are in a rebuilding year, starting two freshmen. Alcona took advantage of this with an easy 51-38 victory.

The game was not as close as the final score indicates. Alcona jumped out to a 15-6 lead after one quarter. Jared Steiner did most of the damage scoring seven points in a variety of ways; a three-pointer, two floaters and two free throws. The Tigers increased their lead to 33-17 at halftime. The third quarter was a defensive battle with Alcona holding Fairview to three points.

Alcona led 43-20 heading into the fourth quarter. The game was decided and Coach Seth Coffing cleared his bench which allowed the Eagles to outscore the Tigers 18-8 in the final period.

Steiner led Alcona with 15 points, Bryan Layton added 14, Andrew Chamberlain scored eight points, Nicholas Garner had six, Brandon Gibson had four and Andy Cammack and Aaron Ritchie scored two points each.

The Tawas Braves came to town on Friday, Jan. 20 for the first Huron Shores League game of the year. Alcona and Tawas are expected to be the two strongest teams vying for the league championship. The Tigers are going for their second straight league title.

LaVergne was back in the line up after sitting out one game an injury and he pretty much dominated the Braves scoring 16 points and grabbing 12 rebounds. Alcona started strong leading by as much as eight points and finishing the first quarter leading 16-11. Six different Tigers got into the scoring column.

Steiner took over the second quarter hitting for 10 points and led Alcona to a 35-23 halftime lead. The Tigers continued to pour it on in the third quarter leading by 20 points with a score of 50-30 at one point. The Braves scored the final six points of the period, but still trailed the Tigers 50-36 going into the final quarter.

Tawas got as close as four points, at 60-56 but Gibson and Chamberlain finished the game with two free throws each to give Alcona the 64-56 victory.

Gibson had a fine game scoring nine points and playing an aggressive defense. LaVergne led with 16 points, Layton scored 15 points and seven rebounds, Steiner had 14 points and seven assists, Gibson scored nine points, Garner had four points and eight rebounds, Chamberlain scored four points and Andy Cammack had two points.

Alcona's record stands at 6-2. Their next game will be at home with Whittemore on Friday, Jan. 27.

The junior varsity team regained its winning ways as well last week by defeating Fairview 57-18 and Tawas 60-46. Dawson Forsythe had 14 points against Fairview. Carson Jamieson led with 19 points against Tawas.

SENIOR LIFESTYLES

Heartburn relief for seniors in need

Dear Savvy Senior,
Is heartburn considered to be an uncomfortable inconvenience or a symptom of a more serious problem? I've had mild heartburn for years but it has gotten worse since I've gotten older. What can you tell me and what should I do?

Rolands Eating Ron

Dear Ron,

Almost everyone experiences the discomfort of heartburn or acid indigestion from time to time, but frequent episodes can signal a much more serious problem. Here's what you should know, along with some tips and treatments to help relieve your symptoms.

It's estimated that more than 40 million Americans experience heartburn at least once a week, with around 25 million folks who suffer from it daily. If you're plagued by heartburn two or more times a week, and it's not responding well to over-the-counter antacids, you need to see your doctor. Frequent bouts may mean you have gastroesophageal reflux disease (GERD) which can severely irritate and damage the lining of the esophagus, putting you at risk of Barrett's esophagus and esophageal cancer, if it's not treated.

Depending on the frequency and severity of your heartburn, there are a number of lifestyle adjustments you can make that can help you get relief and avoid a more serious problem down the road. Consider these tips:

- Adjust your diet: Certain foods can trigger heartburn symptoms like citrus fruits, tomatoes, fatty foods, chocolate, garlic, onions, spicy foods, mints, alcohol, coffee and sodas. Keep a food diary to track which foods cause you the most problems and avoid them.

- Eat less: Take smaller portions and eat slower. Having a full stomach can cause acid reflux. Also avoid exercising, bending or lying down for two hours after eating. And don't eat at least two to three hours before bedtime.

- Monitor your meds: Drugs used to treat arthritis pain, asthma, osteoporosis, depression, insomnia, high blood pressure and more can cause heartburn.

- Lose weight: Being overweight is a big contributor to heartburn because the excess pounds put pressure on your abdomen, pushing up your stomach and causing acid to back up into your esophagus.

- Stop smoking: Smoking can increase stomach acid and weaken the valve that prevents stomach acid from entering the esophagus.

- Loosen up: Clothes that fit tightly around your waist puts pressure on your abdomen and can cause heartburn.

- Relax: Over 50 percent of heartburn sufferers say stress increases their heartburn.

- Sleep better: To help keep the acid down in your stomach while you sleep, elevate the head of your bed six to eight inches by placing blocks under the legs or insert a wedge between your mattress and box spring to elevate your body from the waist up. Sleeping on your left side may also help keep the acid down.

If the lifestyle adjustments don't solve the problem, or if antacids (Tums, Roloids, Maalox, Mylanta or Alka-Seltzer) aren't doing the trick there are a variety of over-the-counter and prescription medications that can help along with a surgical option. Your doctor can help you determine which one is best for you.

Treatment options include:

- H-2 Blockers: Available as both over-the-counter and prescription strength, these drugs (Pepcid, Tagamet, Axid and Zantac) reduce how much acid your stomach makes but may not be strong enough for serious symptoms.

- Proton-Pump Inhibitors (PPI): If you have frequent and severe heartburn symptoms, PPIs are long-acting prescription medications that block acid production and allow time for damaged esophageal tissue to heal.

They include Nexium, Prevacid, Prilosec, Protonix, Aciphex and Zegerid. Prevacid, Prilosec and Zegerid are also available over-the-

Your family's health history

Senior News Line
By Matilda Charles

When it comes to leaving something for the next generations, there's something even more valuable than albums with carefully identified photos — and that is your family's health history.

The U.S. surgeon general has created the "My Family Health Portrait," an online tool that helps organize the specifics of your family's health. The potential benefits to the next generations are big. There are certain diseases that can run in the family, like diabetes, heart disease and cancer. The risk for high blood pressure can show up through the generations. By knowing what diseases are common in the family, the generations that follow will be able to guard against diseases that might have a hereditary basis. Their doctors will be able to assess which diagnostic and screening tests to run at various times based on family history.

If you'd like to create your own family health file, go online to <https://familyhistory.hhs.gov/> to access the online tool. You'll start with baseline questions like your age, gender, whether you were born a twin, and your height and weight. You'll move into the section on diseases or conditions you have or have had in the past.

Then it gets a bit tricky when you have to list your relatives. It's set up like a family tree: You start with your mother and father, if possible, and what you know about their health. Ideally, you can gather information for a total of three generations.

At the end you can save the file and update it later as you gather more information, or print out what you have and share it with your family.

Take a stick of butter...

By Kathryn Fritz Kniep
Columnist

I read an interesting article last week on a website called Cracked.com. Written, by a man rather ironically named John Cheese, it was entitled "The Five Stupidest Habits You Develop Growing Up Poor." Cracked describes itself as a humor site, but as with most humor, the article pointed out some things that were undeniably true.

The first of the five habits had to do with food. Lower income people, Cheese said, tend to buy lower quality food. To begin with, it's the cheapest alternative, but Cheese pointed out something I hadn't thought of. In addition to being affordable, canned and frozen foods keep - thus limiting the number of expensive trips to the grocery for those who a.) often receive their food money on a monthly basis and b.) often don't have reliable transportation.

That limits the amount of fresh fruit and vegetables that can be purchased. "Canned peaches could be split between three kids for half the cost of fresh ones..." he pointed out.

The article didn't even touch on the other aspect of income and food. When you haven't a great deal of money, food is the stuff of celebrations. You may not be able to take your kids on a great vacation or by them the toys they want, but you can bake a cake, or cookies, or splurge on a big celebratory dinner.

Growing up, we never realized we might be considered poor. If there were some things we couldn't afford, the family grocery store always provided enough to eat - and then some. Food wasn't just a means to an income. It was celebration in good times and comfort in bad.

I thought about all of that, this week in particular, with reference to Food Network star Paula Deen and the media's discussion of her recently diagnosed Type II diabetes.

Anyone who's watched any of Deen's cooking shows probably knows her story. The short, somewhat portly, quintessential Southern girl grew up in her grandparents and parents restaurants in Georgia. At 18, she lost both her parents in an auto accident.

Married young, she found herself a divorced mom raising two boys along with her younger brother while coping with paralyzing agoraphobia that made it extremely difficult for her to leave her home. To put food on her own table, she declared herself "The Bag Lady" packing brown bag lunches that the boys sold on the street and in nearby office buildings.

In about a decade, Deen became a recognized name in Atlanta, tamed her anxiety issues and opened her own restaurant. By the 1980s, her "The Lady and Sons" was a must-visit spot for tourists and locals alike. And in the late '90s, she started her first show on The Food Network.

In addition to having a way with a whisk, Deen is funny.

Watching her, it's obvious that she takes great joy in her family and in the rich southern foods she grew up with. Never shy with butter, mayonnaise or frying "awl," she's less of a gourmet than the neighbor who taught you to turn out a really good blueberry pie. (Or "pah" as Deen says it). And as I said, she recently developed Type II diabetes - joining about 26 million adults and children in the United States.

Adult diabetes is caused by a number of factors, including family history, obesity, inactivity and age. Petately chubby, the silver-haired blue eyed Deen isn't grossly obese, nor - with her restaurant, three food shows, two grandchildren and numerous public appearances - is she inactive. She is 64.

After three years of learning about her disease, taking daily non-insulin injections of medication, increasing her exercise and eliminating the omnipresent sweet tea from her diet, Deen has lost a dress size.

And she's become a paid spokesperson for the medication in part, she said, because she wants people to know "there are little things they can do every day" that will help them manage the disease. That, she said, includes saying eat this way in moderation "a little louder" on her food show.

We're not a very kind society anymore, when it comes to disease. There's a tendency to place blame, to assume that if someone has a disease (be it diabetes, heart issues, even cancer) they must have had lifestyle issues that "caused" it to happen. It's their own fault. And if they'd only have lived a better life, they wouldn't have ended up costing us for their medical bills or increases in our health insurance rates.

There have been a lot of bad jokes made about Deen in the last couple of weeks as she began discussing her illness in public, and a lot of snide comments about her profiting from her alliance with the drug company.

It strikes me as somewhat unfair. In a country where one in three people are obese, where countless hours of entertainment time are devoted to food and its preparation, we fail miserably at seeing the person beneath the illness.

When she started that now-famous restaurant in Atlanta, Deen had $200 to her name. She had two sons and a brother to feed and panic attacks so severe that she sometimes spent days afraid to step out of her apartment. But she could by-God cook. And she did. It was the comfort and the celebration she could offer. Because, as for many of us, in Deen's household, food was love.

That's not to say that we should all just throw caution to the wind and live on butter and cake. But it is to say that we might be a little more understanding of each other's frailties and foibles.

In the interest of full disclosure, I should point out that I, too, am what my doctor describes in his notes as "mildly obese." I have Type II diabetes, controlled by an oral medication, diet, and what exercise I can do, given some other health issues.

Puttin' On The Fritz

And I grew up viewing food as a form of love. So - although socioeconomically she's light years above me these days - I feel like I kind of understand Deen's attitude, and what in her life brought her to where she is now.

No matter how disciplined - or how critical - we happen to be; no matter how much "better" our diet is than that of those around us, there may come a time in any of our lives when we find ourselves dealing with a disease that may have been caused by our genetics and/or our lifestyle. Every one of us knows someone who lived a seemingly exemplary lifestyle and was struck by one illness or another and someone who seemingly lives on cigarettes, black coffee and fried food and is going strong at 85.

Despite our national chunkiness and our nationally defensive unkindness, to a large extent, it's still the luck of the draw.

So basically, what I'm saying here is quit pickin' on Paula, people. She's a good lady who took this latest bump in the road with good humor and grace, did what she could, and as usual, found a way to make a little money from it. That's not such a bad thing.

Kind of like one piece of "pah" a month. Everythin' in moderation, yawl," as Paula tells us. I'll have the blueberry, please - hold the criticism.

amended by E. Foster/C. Holmes. Carried.

Treasurer Christy Holmes gave her report. Motion to accept the treasurer's report as of January 1, as presented by Judy Pyne/E. Toombs. Carried. The books will be turned over to Christy as soon as the audit is completed. Motion to accept the Dragonfly Art Gallery as a new member by KC Kevwich/E. Toombs. Carried. Michelle introduced the new gallery as a nonprofit coop and they now show a more expanded art media.

There are now 55 paid 2012 members.

Guest Eric Ostrander is the new supervisor at the Harrisville State Park, having taken over for Dan Mullin who was promoted to a district supervisor on the other side of the state. He is every bit as enthusiastic about his responsibilities as Dan was. Eric talked about the benefits of the Recreation Passport, in place since October of 2010. It has been more successful than originally hoped, and they are looking for even more cooperation from drivers in the future. Also, businesses are encouraged to provide discounts to those people who show their passport status on their registration, and this program is expanding quite well.

The Harrisville State Park is hoping to expand its activities in the future -- a Harvest Festival Weekend is being planned for October 12, 13, 14. We can expect more information as plans are being made.

President Labadie reminded everyone that the 2012 Events Calendar is in the works. Those groups who would like their event in the calendar are encouraged to pick up a form in the chamber office; these forms need to be returned no later than February 20. The Harrisville fireworks will take place on July 7.

Since the chamber is a member of Ron Rademacher's Terrific Towns website, chamber members will receive a discounted rate to have a page on that website. Fran Whitney thanked all who participated in the very successful Leadership Program. The wrap-up was well attended, and it appears the two groups will be expanding their goals in the future. She also reported there are 25 Michigan Works! offices in the state of Michigan. Alcona County resident, Steven Kitzman, is receiving a worker of the year award, an alumni success story.

Motion to adjourn by E. Foster/P. Bushey. Carried. The next general meeting will be held on Wednesday, Feb. 8 at 6 p.m. at the Alcona County Library, Harrisville branch.

Cat Nips from the Alcona Humane Society

"Tom Cat" replaced "Ram" or "Boar" for the name of male cats after a popular book of 1760 with a male cat character named Tom was written. The book was titled "The Life and Adventures of a Cat," by an anonymous author.

Keep It Local

Buying bird seed doesn't have to be an adventure. Many local grocery and hardware stores keep plenty on hand. A basic seed mix works because it has a little bit of everything. Pure black oil sunflower works well too, because most birds love it.

mount of a black bear that weighed in near 500 pounds and was taken in the swamp not far from the center.

The classroom is where many of the programs are conducted at the center, though Shaw often takes his show on the road to nearby schools. On-site programs include fishing, fly-fishing, snow shoeing and hunter education.

Shaw tries to develop a new program monthly, which is then presented both at the center and in schools.

"Our Thanksgiving program was called 'Talking Turkey' - about Michigan wild turkey," Shaw said. "We presented it to close to 800 students."

The fishing room, to the left as you enter the center, covers all aspects of fish, fisheries and fishing in Michigan. There's a wide-screen fishing simulator - to give youngsters the quasi-experience of Great Lakes fishing, a fly-tying display (provided by Trout Unlimited) and an invasive-species display, which focuses largely on Asian carp.

Displays featuring mount-ed specimens of Michigan fish focus on warm-water species, cold-water species and Great Lakes denizens. There's an ice-fishing display, historical hatchery artifacts, and a touch-screen kiosk that tests your knowledge of Michigan fish and fishing.

Coming soon is a display of fish decoys made by Oscar Peterson, a noted decoy carver (and spear fisherman) from Cadillac, Mich. who died in 1951. "It's basically American folk art," Shaw said.

As soon as visitors enter the Carl T. Johnson Hunting and Fishing Center, they can see the emphasis of the facility.

In the opposite wing, the hunting room has displays that include most aspects of Michigan's hunting heritage. Many illustrate huge management successes - the restoration of elk and wild turkeys, for instance - but there are some sad stories, as well, such as the demise of the passenger pigeon (which once thrived in such populations they were said to darken the skies, but were wiped out, largely by market hunters and deforestation, which eliminated their habitat).

Visitors can see the difference between Michigan ungulates - deer, moose and elk - with swatches of hide so they can feel the differences in their coats.

The furbearer display - provided by the state trappers association - allows visitors to feel the difference of furs. Another display lets visitors learn the varying characteristics among wolves, fox and coyotes.

The interactive bear display (narrated by former Natural Resources Commissioner Bob Garner) talks about how bears are managed, radio telemetry projects and other ursine information.

"Everything you want to know about bears is in that display - with mounts of a mom and cub," Shaw said.

And there's a display of Native American hunting artifacts, as well.

"Most people spend about an hour in here," Shaw said. "And we have a gift shop, run by the Friends of Mitchell State Park, with proceeds going toward school programs and campground developments."

The next big event scheduled at Carl T. Johnson is an ice-fishing clinic - with both classroom instruction and on-the-water opportunity - set for Saturday, Feb. 4, during the city of Cadillac's annual Snow Fest and featuring a spearing contest and a youth fishing contest.

There's also an outdoor element at the center. Directly behind the building, a wetland habitat and former pike-rearing marsh offers wildlife viewing opportunities spring, summer and fall.

Because of its location - nestled between Cadillac and Mitchell lakes - the marsh is especially attractive to waterfowl and other birds that use aquatic habitats. Mallards, wood ducks, black ducks and Canada geese are often present - especially during spring and fall migrations - as well as herons and bitterns. Common songbirds you'll find in the habitat include red-winged black birds and goldfinches. Several bird of prey species - most notably red-tailed hawks and barred owls - may be seen here. Mammals - deer, beavers, muskrats and raccoons - are common. Turtles are abundant.

A two-mile hiking trail that encircles the marsh features interpretive panels about the plants and animals in the habitat. There's an elevated observation platform overlooking the complex and a small fishing pier.

The Carl T. Johnson Hunting and Fishing Center is open daily from Memorial Day through December 1, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The rest of the year, the center is open Fridays from noon to 5 p.m., and Saturdays and Sundays, noon to 6 p.m.

United Way of Northeast Michigan has funding applications available

The United Way of Northeast Michigan (UWNM) is accepting letters of intent for funding for 2013. Eligibility guidelines are as follows:

- Agencies/organizations must be nonprofit and have a 501(c)(3) status from the IRS
- Agencies/organizations must provide human service programs/projects
- Agencies/organizations service area(s) must be Alpena, and/or Alcona, and/or Montmorency counties
- Agencies/organizations must be incorporated under the laws of the state of Michigan, or other jurisdictions meeting Michigan standards, as a nonprofit entity for a period of no less than two years
- Consideration will be made for funding programs of schools and governmental organizations, as long as they are specific and discreet programs/projects and not covered by tax funds
- New or existing programs can receive funding as long as they meet UWNM criteria
- Programs/projects meet one of the four (4) funding areas:
 - Basic Human Needs - addressing basic, temporary and urgent needs including food, shelter, utility services.

- Family Services - assisting individuals and families to become self-sufficient.
- Health Services - promoting health and healing through prevention skills to maintain a healthy lifestyle.
- Youth Services - preparing children and youth to become responsible adults who are emotionally, cognitively and physically prepared to succeed in school, work and their community.

The UWNM does not fund the following:

- Political campaigns
 - Sectarian programs (it will fund a program(s) of a religious organization as long as the program does not include religious content and is open to all).
 - Loan payments or deficit spending
 - Services normally supported by tax dollars
 - Capital campaigns for buildings
- Programs more likely to be funded will:

- Address identified and/or emerging community human care service needs
- Benefit a significant number of people
- Deliver services efficiently and cost-effectively
- Encourage self-reliance
- Avoid duplication of services
- Focus on prevention
- Enhance cooperation and collaboration among organizations

Letters of intent applications can be requested by contacting United Way of Northeast Michigan at (989) 354-2221 or via e-mail to uwnemi@unitedwaynemi.org with the subject Letter of Intent. Letters of intent are due by 4 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 6.

Letters of intent will be presented to a committee made up of volunteers from the United Way Board of Directors who will review the letters to make sure the agency/organization qualifies for funding. Those agencies/organizations who qualify will be invited to submit a full application.

Organizations seeking funding are asked to be reasonable in their financial request regarding the program or programs they are seeking funding. After receiving the applications, requestors will be scheduled to make a presentation before the Citizen Review Panel (CRP) in May. The CRP is made up of United Way Board of Directors and community citizens who will review the requests, seek additional information and make recommendations to the allocations committee which will then make recommendations to the UWNM Board of Directors.

"The UWNM is accountable to the donors and the community and this process is the best way to make sure the needs in the communities we serve are being met," stated Germaine Stoppa, executive Director of the UWNM.

In 2011, UWNM made community investments totaling $104,645 for 22 programs of 20 agencies with grants ranging from $1,300 to $25,500. The United Way also assisted with funding for Project Connect events in Alpena, Alcona and Montmorency counties, advisory committees in Alcona and Montmorency counties, 2-1-1, area food banks, holiday programs and to outside state and national human care entities in the amount of $22,671.

The United Way hopes to expand its services by providing funding for programs of agencies and organizations, partnering with entities on community projects and possibly offering United Way programs beginning with 2012 funding.

For more information contact Stoppa at (989) 354-2221 or stop by the UWNM office at 701 Woodward Avenue, Alpena (the upper level of the APlex).

Savvy

Continued from page 6 counter. But be aware that long-term use of PPIs can reduce the amount of calcium your body absorbs and increase your risk for osteoporosis.

Surgery: An alternative to drug treatments is anti-reflux surgery, a procedure that tightens the leaky valve so gastric fluids can't wash back up into the esophagus.

(Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.)

Local Notes

"Michigan offers some of the finest freshwater fishing in the world, including during the winter months," said DNR Director Rodney Stokes. "Fishing is an inexpensive activity anyone can pursue - as an individual or as a family. We encourage you to get out this February and experience it for yourself, for free!"

To encourage involvement in Free Fishing Weekends, organized activities are being scheduled in communities across the state. There's still plenty of time to plan a local Free Fishing Weekend event, or find one occurring in your community. Visit the newly revamped website www.michigan.gov/freefishing for all things related to this unique weekend; including help on event planning and promotion and to identify local events or register an official event.

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Season of the Young Moons

I was amazed to see the sun setting slightly more than a half hour later than its earliest setting time which occurred last December on the 8th. Even though we are in the midst of the meteorological winter, the coldest time of the year, we are rounding the corner and soon signs of a higher, warmer sun will become evident. Speaking about higher suns, another object, the moon, is also fun to watch because of its steep ascent into the spring evening skies after its new phase. The moon orbits the Earth nearly in the Earth's orbital plane called the ecliptic. The angular difference is just over five degrees. In late winter and early spring, the ecliptic is tilted steeply to the western horizon, so that the first four or five days after new moon, Luna will seem to rise almost vertically from the western horizon after sundown. The effect is best witnessed after the new moon nearest to the vernal equinox, the first day of spring, but now is a great time to start "young" moon watching. The moon is new early on Monday, but will still be too close to the sun that evening to be visible. By Tuesday, however, look for a razor thin crescent about 10 degrees above the WSW horizon, 45 minutes after sundown. The moon will be just three percent sunlit. By Wednesday, an eight percent lit crescent approaches brilliant Venus above and to the moon's left. Thursday, Luna is 14 percent sunlit, and now it is located above and to the left of Venus. During the following three evenings a thickening crescent approaches Jupiter, so that by Monday, January 30, a quarter moon, half on, half off is near Jupiter for the first five hours of the evening. Keep in mind that if bad weather prevails during the week, there will be replays occurring on the evenings of February 22-25, March 23-26 (probably the best sequence), April 22-25, and May 21-24. It is more evidence that spring is just around the corner. www.astronomy.org

STRANGE BUT TRUE by Samantha Weaver

• It was 20th-century American critic John Leonard who made the following sage observation: "To be capable of embarrassment is the beginning of moral consciousness. Honor grows from qualms."

• You've probably never heard of the Spanish village of Lijar, located in the south of that country. This village, though, was involved in a nearly 100-year war that lasted well into the 20th century. It seems that in 1883, Alfonso XII, the king of Spain, made a state visit to Paris and received a less-than-royal welcome. Led by mayor Don Miguel Garcia Saez, the citizens of Lijar, after hearing that their monarch had been insulted and possibly accosted by mobs, declared war on France. Though there were no casualties — not even any gunfire — the war lasted until 1981. That was when the town council ruled that it would end hostilities with France thanks to the warm welcome King Juan Carlos of Spain received in France in 1976.

• The town of Adamant, Vermont, was once named Sodom. The townspeople voted to change the name in 1905.

• The first portable computer was made available to the public in 1975. In this instance, however, "portable" was used as a relative term; the IBM 5100 weighed 55 pounds.

• Only 5 percent of American men report that they feel satisfied with their looks. With women, it's only 1 percent.

• In 2008, a study was conducted in the United Kingdom to determine what, if any, effect the consumption of tomatoes had on the human body's reaction to sun exposure. The university students enrolled in the study who consumed the equivalent of about five tomatoes per day were 33 percent less likely to get sunburned than those who ate no tomatoes.

MOMENTS IN TIME The History Channel

• On Feb. 7, 1812, the most violent of a series of earthquakes near Missouri causes a so-called fluvial tsunami in the Mississippi River, making the river run backward for several hours. The strongest of the aftershocks, an 8.8-magnitude, caused church bells to ring in Boston, more than a thousand miles away.

• On Feb. 8, 1924, the first execution by lethal gas in American history is carried out in Carson City, Nev. The executed man was Tong Lee, a member of a Chinese gang who was convicted of murdering a rival gang member.

• On Feb. 11, 1937, after a six-week sit-down strike by General Motors autoworkers in Flint, Mich., GM president Alfred P. Sloan signs the first union contract in the history of the American auto industry. Today, the UAW has more than 390,000 active members and more than a 600,000 retired members.

• On Feb. 6, 1952, King George VI of Great Britain and Northern Ireland dies in his sleep at the royal estate at Sandringham. Princess Elizabeth, the oldest of the king's two daughters and next in line to succeed him, was crowned Queen Elizabeth II on June 2, 1953, at age 27.

• On Feb. 10, 1962, Francis Gary Powers, an American who was shot down over the Soviet Union while flying a CIA spy plane in 1960, is released by the Soviets in exchange for the U.S. release of a Russian spy. On May 1, 1960, Powers' U-2 had been shot down by a Soviet missile. Although Powers was supposed to engage the plane's self-destruct system (and commit suicide with poison furnished by the CIA), he and much of the plane were captured.

• On Feb. 9, 1971, pitcher Leroy "Satchel" Paige becomes the first Negro League veteran to be nominated for the Baseball Hall of Fame. He was inducted in August of that year. Joe DiMaggio once called Paige "the best and fastest pitcher I've ever faced."

• On Feb. 12, 1988, two Soviet warships bump two U.S. navy vessels in waters claimed by the Soviet Union. The incident between the ships took place in the Black Sea within the 12-mile territorial limit claimed by the Soviet Union.
