Ask Your Neighbor

Richard Cook of Hubbard Lake has responded to the question about where a building was located.

He wrote, "My family has been in the Hubbard Lake area since the late 1800s and I grew up there. The front page photo that was the subject of an Ask Your Neighbor question by Don Bauman may be the old Grange Hall. I remember the building and photos of it. The Grange Hall I knew resembles the building in the photo but did not have a tower. I wonder if the tower was removed at some point. That's my best guess."

Tiger record breaking continues

By Kendra Cole
Football Writer

Two words can sum up the Alcona varsity football team this year -- record breakers.

The Tigers continue to break records with a win against the McBain Ramblers (38-28) in the first round of District 7 playoffs.

With a record breaking undefeated season -- a first ever for Tiger football -- but this was the first year that Alcona has hosted playoffs.

the Ramblers to end the first quarter.

Alcona struggled at the beginning of the second quarter. When McBain had possession, the Tiger defense received two penalties and the Ramblers kept advancing the ball. The Ramblers scored with 8:38 on the clock.

Franklin answered back by throwing two passes -- one to Norling for 21 yards and the other to Mead for 29 yards -- and a touchdown. McBain Alcona took the lead back to end the third with a score of 30-28.

The fourth quarter was all about the Tigers. The defense stopped many of the opportunities that McBain had including deflected passes by Brandon Ritchie and tackles by Forsythe.

Norling scored a touchdown with 2:21 left in the game. Mead's interception was voided by a penalty on Alcona. That didn't stop the

And it is the first time the Tigers have won a game during playoffs.

"It was a real tough physical game. It was the first game of the season where we were actually behind, so watching our kids facing that adversity and continuing to play through it was very important to us," said coach Dave Schneider.

The game began with McBain kicking off. The Ramblers started strong advancing down the field. Alcona's defense had a hard time containing the Ramblers who scored the first touchdown of the night with 7:43 on the clock. A successful two-point conversion made the score 8-0.

It didn't take long for the Tigers to respond. Josh Mead and Garrette Norling advanced the ball. Norling topped it off with a Tiger touchdown by breaking multiple tackles. Cody Franklin got the two-point conversion, tying it up at 8-8.

Alcona's defense took control and forced a punt out of was penalized during the two-point conversion so Alcona had a do over at half the distance. The Tigers easily added two points and pulled ahead 16-14 with 6:33 left in the second quarter.

Dawson Forsythe and Lucas Weichel contributed big stops for Alcona's defense. McBain decided to punt but faked and ran for the first down. After multiple carries the Ramblers scored a touchdown with 35 seconds left, ending the half with McBain in the lead, 22-16.

Mead started the third quarter strong. He first advanced the ball on a 37-yard carry and added a touchdown with 10:52 left in the third quarter, tying the score at 22-22. McBain's response was another touchdown. Tony DuBay and Adam Somers stopped the two-point conversion.

Mead took it right back to the Ramblers with several tackle-breaking carries. Franklin scored a touchdown at 2:27 and completed a pass to Mead for the two-point con-

Alcona defense as Ritchie once again broke up passes from the McBain quarterback. Alcona took over on downs and as the clock wound down it was another victory for the Tigers with a score of 38-28.

To the Editor,
Recently I submitted an obituary for my husband. I was contacted by the Review for additional information and when I asked if the obit would be edited, I was told no, the additional information would be added but the obit would not be edited.

Well, indeed the obit was edited. The original was written with love and passion, the editor or staff stripped the love and essence right out of their version. After reading their rendition I was left feeling cold and clammy.

What the staff or editor did is disrespectful, inconsiderate, inexcusable and just plain wrong. If I wanted a stranger to write the obituary for my husband, I would have had a stranger write it. I feel as if I have been violated.

I am terribly disappointed and very upset that so little consideration was given to me and the words I put on paper describing my husband. There are a number of people in the community who were also disrespected due to the editing.

To the Editor,
We were recently made aware of the Alcona County Food Pantry, which meets a great need many may not be aware of. Their goal is to provide food to needy families. The food pantry is made up of volunteers from churches and other local organizations.

Food recipients must show proof of income and that they are a resident of Alcona County. The food pantry operates on the second Saturday each month. It presently serves 105 families, with over 200 children in those families. The numbers served is up from 78 families this summer.

The food pantry is a mission of the United Methodist Church but is not supported by the church budget. The food pantry is run entirely on donations. It receives support from local organizations such as the Boy Scouts, classroom groups and periodic donations are provided from many local sources. Donations in total have declined. Governmental funds are drying up while the number of needy families have increased.

Need also increases as the holidays approach. Employment numbers are not improving. Therefore, it is up to us. Food is purchased in bulk, therefore cash donations are the most effective and efficient way to help.

We are so impressed with the food pantry and its volunteers. Won't you consider a cash donation to the Alcona County Food Pantry, P.O. Box 342, Harrisville, Mich. 48740.

To the Editor,
I am writing to express my bewilderment by this paper's failure to alert citizens of Alcona to the fact that our state representative, Peter Pettalia, was holding an informational meeting to discuss the topic of fracking for natural gas.

Our representative stated the meeting was being held for him to listen to the presentations from the panel members and to get feedback from the public. Unfortunately, the only way readers of the Alcona Review would have known about the meeting was to check the calendar of events for November 1.

They did not read about the meeting on the front page of the paper, even though it may be extremely important to the economic and environmental future of our area. They were not informed of their opportunity to attend and learn about the process of hydraulic fracking or the possible dangers associated with the technology which contaminates millions of gallons of pure Michigan water with undisclosed chemicals.

The only hope for democracy is an educated and involved citizenry. My expectation is that local newspapers play an important role in providing readers with information to become educated and involved in issues affecting their lives. Our tax dollars pay Mr. Pettalia to represent our views and interests. We are wasting our money and will have little impact on legislative decisions if we don't take advantage of opportunities like the one on November 1st.

Both Oscoda and Alpena newspapers chose to write articles prior to the meetings. At the Oscoda meeting, a class of high school government students attended, listened to the presentations and had the experience of participating in democracy by asking questions and expressing opinions. If we can't inform our citizens as well as the surrounding counties, maybe it's time we found a different source for news.

(Editor's Note: Details about Representative Pettalia's meetings held in Iosco, Alcona and Alpena counties on November 1 were published in the October 23 Local Notes and Calendar of Events of the Review and the October 30 Calendar of Events. It was also published in the Review's Events section on our website. These sections of the Review are where a majority of event information can be attained by our readers.)

Professional Recognition

The 2013 Ray Helfer Award for Child Advocacy was given to Dr. Jacqueline Fitzgerald on October 28 at the Annual Michigan Statewide Conference on Child Abuse and Neglect. Dr. Helfer devoted his professional life to the prevention of child abuse. Each year the Michigan Professional Society on the Abuse of Children (MiPSAC) confers the award on an individual who demonstrates a similar spirit of child advocacy.

Dr. Sarah Brown of the Helen DeVos Children's Hospital in Grand Rapids, Mich. presented the award on behalf of MiPSAC. "Dr. Fitzgerald was selected for the award due to her leadership in creating the Child Advocacy Center in Alcona Health Center in Lincoln, followed by the Child Advocacy Center of Northeast Michigan housed in the Alcona Health Center-Alpena site. She was further recognized for her educational efforts directed toward colleagues, emergency department staff, protective service workers and law enforcement personnel in the area of child abuse detection and evaluation," Dr. Brown said. "This award really belongs to our entire community. This is an issue that touches the hearts of everyone. Whenever I ask for assistance, the response has been very generous and supportive, from housing of the center to raising money for equipment to supplying comfort toys and blankets. This work is truly a team effort," Dr. Fitzgerald said.

ARA Farm Market

Drop off recycling, then stop by the market on Saturday, Nov. 9 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the ARA site in Lincoln. development, many people signed the industry lease, and did not understand all the details in the lease. By negotiating the terms of the lease in a block, mineral rights owners can do much better.

The new development, seeking both natural gas and oil, is taking place in the Utica/Collingwood shale formations. Maps and information on exploratory wells within those formations will be presented at the meetings. People interested in joining the coalition will need to provide the property ID number for their property and their contact information. If there is a current lease on their property, they will need to determine if that lease is limited to a specific geologic formation. Leases that are limited to a specific geologic formation allow owners to negotiate new leases for the other formations.

It is the practice of the industry to use up-front per acre signing bonus money to entice property owners to sign a lease. The royalty percentage within the lease is a more important consideration. However, even that is overshadowed by the importance of lease language. Fred Miller, NMMOC Executive Committee Chairman, cautions, "Lease language will impact your land usage for generations. From the mineral rights owner's perspective, poor lease language can have a significant negative economic impact."

Huron Pines promotes stewardship for area landowners

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

With its mission to conserve forests, lakes and streams of northeast Michigan, Huron Pines, a non-profit organization, has been busy with a number of projects to protect and manage area waters, woodlands and wildlife. The organization has a number of programs to accomplish its mission including one which can help land owners.

The Private Lands Stewardship program takes a one-on-one approach to helping land owners with questions and concerns. "Mainly, I help them navigate through all the various and confusing programs and services available for their use. Land owners may not be aware of these services or could be overwhelmed by their complexity," Huron Pines private lands coordinator, Andrea Locke said.

Locke explains to owners the different programs available such as the U.S. Fish and Wildlife's partners for wildlife program, National Resource Conservation Services farm bill programs and Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) owner incentive program.

"A lot of time private land owners don't really know what they want, so it's hard to figure out what options are available. The trick is to know what each of these different programs offer and whether or not a specific land owner is even eligible for the programs," Locke said. Eligibility requirements vary quite a bit and could be a matter of what county the property is in, what habitat it's in and the size of it.

If a property owner has an area of concern, such as a log jam in a river which is too large for them to remove, soil erosion on river banks or problematic areas of invasive species, Locke suggests property owners send photos of these areas by e-mail for her to look at. If Huron Pines determines a site visit with the property owner would be beneficial, an appointment with a staff member with expertise on the issue will be made.

"Most of the time, it's a matter of finding the right program for the land owner's needs. It may be they need to talk to the conservation district or it might be something Huron Pines can help directly with, especially if the work involves a lot of invasive species work," Locke said.

Huron Pines has been working to control invasive species for years. The focus has mainly been on invasive phragmites, but they are now working to expand their understanding of many more invasive species and how they impact everything from wildlife viewing to water quality and other natural systems.

"Japanese knotweed is one we are getting familiar with. It's harder to get people to see it as an issue because there isn't a ton of it out there, but it's because there isn't a lot to control that we have the ability to treat it," Locke said.

Other invasive species Huron Pines is following closely includes giant knotweed, autumn olive, purple loosestrife, garlic mustard and reed canary grasses.

With grants from the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation, Huron Pines is able to offer a cost share program to land owners which helps with the cost of phragmites treatments. One of the areas recently treated this fall was in the Harrisville Harbor.

In 2012 Huron Pines treated 16 acres of phragmites in Alcona County and met with 79 private land owners individually. In 2013 representatives met with an additional 16 land owners and was able to reduce the number of treatment areas to six acres, proving the treatment methods work and more people are getting involved.

For more information about Huron Pines and the Private Lands Stewardship program, visit www.huronpines.org or call Andrea Locke at the Huron Pines office in Gaylord, Mich. at (989) 448-2293 ext. 26 or e-mail her at andrea@huronpines.org.

SENIOR LIFESTYLES

How divorce can affect your Social Security

Dear Savvy Senior,
Am I entitled to my former husband's Social Security benefits? I was married for 12 unpleasant years and would like to know what I may be eligible for.

Ex-spouse

Dear Ex-spouse,
You'll be happy to know that for the most part, Social Security provides divorced spouses benefits just like they do spouses, if you meet the government's requirements.

A divorced spouse can collect a Social Security retirement benefit on the work record of their ex-husband (or ex-wife) if they are at least age 62, were married for at least 10 years, are unmarried now, and are not eligible for a higher benefit based on their own work record.

In order to collect, however, your former spouse must also be at least 62 and eligible for Social Security benefits, and you must have been divorced for at least two years. But, he doesn't have to be receiving them in order for you to collect divorced spouse's benefits.

Even if your ex is remarried, it won't affect your right to divorcee benefits, nor will it affect your ex's retirement benefits or his current spouse's benefits.

A divorced spouse can receive up to 50 percent of their ex's full Social Security benefit, or less if they take benefits before their full-retirement age - which is 66 if you were born between 1943 and 1954. To find out your full-retirement age and see how much your benefits will be reduced by taking them early see ssa.gov/retire2/agereduction.htm.

Keep in mind though, that if you qualify for benefits based on your own work history, you'll receive the larger of the two benefits. You cannot receive benefits on both your own record, and your ex's work record too.

To find out your retirement benefits based on your own earnings history, see your Social Security statement at ssa.gov/myaccount. And to get an estimate of your divorced spouse benefit, call Social Security at (800) 772-1213. You'll need your ex's Social Security number to get it.

Since three-quarters of U.S. divorcees get married again, it's also important to understand that remarriage makes you ineligible for divorced spouse's benefits unless the later marriage ends. And, for those who have been married and divorced twice, with both marriages lasting more than 10 years, you can collect using the ex-spouse with the larger Social Security benefit.

You also need to know that if your ex-spouse dies, and you were married for 10 or more years, you become eligible for divorced "survivor benefits," which is worth up to 100 percent of what your ex-spouse was due.

Survivor's benefits are available to divorced spouses as early as age 60 (50 if you're disabled). But, if you remarry before 60 you become ineligible unless the marriage ends. Remarrying after age 60 will not affect your eligibility.

Also note that if you are receiving divorced spouses benefits when you ex-spouse dies, you will automatically be switched over to the higher paying survivor benefit.

Being divorced also offers some switching strategies that can help boost your benefits. For working divorced spouses, there's an option that lets you file a "restricted" application with Social Security (at full retirement age) to collect a divorced spousal benefit, which is half of what your ex gets. Then, once you reach 70, you stop receiving the ex-spousal benefit and switch to your own benefit, which will be 32 percent higher than it would have been at your full retirement age.

Savvy Senior

Divorced widows (and widowers) have even more options. If, for example, you are currently collecting Social Security retirement benefits on your own record, and your ex-spouse dies, you can switch to survivor's benefits if the payment is larger. Or, if you're collecting survivor's benefits, you can switch to your own retirement benefits - between 62 and 70 - if it offers a larger payment.

(Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org.)

Alcona volleyball team wins district match against Oscoda Owls

By Hope Smith
Volleyball Writer

After battling for five straight sets, the Alcona varsity volleyball team came away with a win in the first round of Class C quarterfinal district action on Monday in Oscoda.

This win was the first all season against Oscoda and it couldn't have come at a better time for the Lady Tigers. "The girls have been working so hard the past couple of weeks gearing up for this game and it paid off. Every one of them stepped up and played with great intensity. I am so proud of their efforts and teamwork tonight," said coach Kristi Arnold.

In the first set, Alcona fought hard but came up short falling 25-18 to the Owls. The second set was another story. The Lady Tigers figured out what needed to be done and took control of the game offensively earning the 25-9 win and the 25-12 win in the third set.

Oscoda battled back in the fourth set to pick up the 25-18 win to tie the game 2-2. During the fifth, and final set, both teams took the floor with heightened determination but Alcona walked away with the 19-17 win.

The Lady Tigers were led offensively by senior Karina Cole with 15 kills and four blocks. Sam Zerbst stepped up defensively with 12 digs. Sierra Forsythe delivered five aces.

The Lady Tigers traveled to Rogers City Saturday, Nov. 2 for North Star Conference Tournament action.

In the first match, the Lady Tigers took the floor against the Atlanta Huskies. Alcona worked together to the lead attack the net and strategically cover the floor to pickup two 25-11, 25-10 wins.

In the game against Oscoda Owls the scores were much closer with Oscoda bringing home the hard fought 25-22, 25-27 win over the Lady Tigers.

"The girls displayed solid teamwork and hustle throughout the day. They did a nice job defensively and were able to find holes off the attack. Cassie Carpenter rolled her ankle in our first set against Oscoda, but Alissa Terpstra stepped up and did a great job. I am very proud of how we adjusted and fought until the end," said coach Kristi Arnold.

Katelyn Nelson led Alcona with 19 assists and five aces. Sydney Pierce had nine digs, Kalie Zerbst served up five aces and Karina Cole delivered 18 kills.

Alcona finished the regular season 8-5, 1-1 in the North Star League.

Organization Notes

Alcona FFA

In mid-October the Alcona FFA Chapter competed in the Region VI FFA Decathlon at the Ogemaw County Fairgrounds.

The decathlon was hosted by the Region VI FFA Officer Team, which included Morgan Stewart, Alcona FFA Chapter secretary and Region VI reporter.

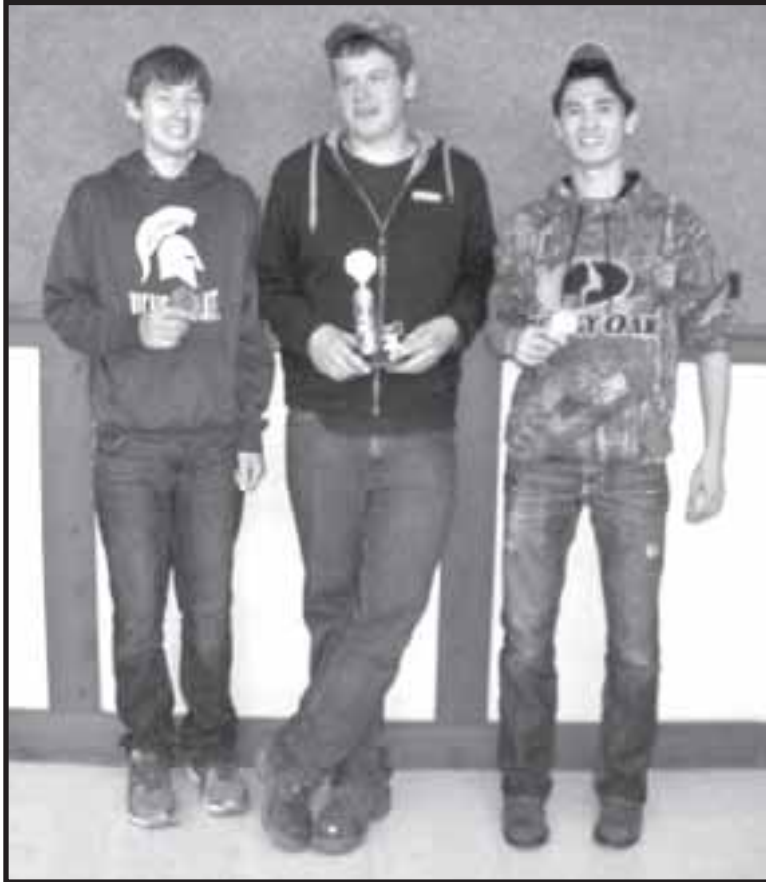

Of the 60 teams that competed, two teams from Alcona placed in the top 10. Schuyler Bates, Kyle Harmon and Brandon Sweet placed third. Allissa Terpstra, Hannah Terpstra and Lindsey Brockwell placed sixth. Other members that competed include: Samantha Schopfer, Cheyenne Parkinson and Taylor O'Dell (placing 13th); Travis Pawloski, Brett Wambold, Seth Tulgetske and Ryan Johnston.

The 10 contest areas involved aquaculture, floriculture, forestry, wildlife, veterinarian tools, seed identification, crop identification, shop tools, engines and maps. Members also had the option to participate in a skid steer driving contest. Alcona FFA member Kyle Harmon placed third in the senior competition and Brett Wambold placed third in the junior contest.

Competing in the decathlon was an opportunity for FFA members to learn more about agriculture and natural resources, meet FFA members from across the region, and more. Alcona FFA members also toured Lumberman's Monument in the Huron National Forest where they learned more about the history of logging in Michigan.

A dozen receiving blankets sit folded in a basket. The changing table has a fresh coat of paint and a new pad. A stack of diapers sit by the teddy bear atop the dresser and a tiny wardrobe – ranging from a pink tutu to a snow suit – hang on miniature hangers in the closet. All we need now is a baby.

The Princess' due date is this Friday. Both she and her husband, A.J., had been hoping for an early delivery on Halloween (fine with me, because then we could nickname her "Miss Boo") but she apparently felt that might be too cliché. And I have a feeling I know when she's planning to arrive.

The Princess was born at 9:30 p.m. (21:31 in military hospital time), just two-and-a-half hours before my due date expired. Almost – but not quite – late. I had no idea at the time how much that phrase would become the story of my life.

It helps to understand that I am one of those annoying people who always arrives a little early. I get up, as one friend puts it, at zero dark something, unless I have somewhere to be that day, in which case I move it up a little. My "beauty routine" consists of washing my face and brushing my teeth and hair. I dress in the clothes I laid out the night before, pick up the papers I laid out the night before and I'm good to go.

The Princess, on the other hand, has never been a morning person. As her friends and family know, she doesn't brook conversation until she's been up for a while, and she especially hates questions before she's had a cup of tea or two. "Too many questions," we've all heard her mutter as she sat on the side of her bed, coming to.

It's not entirely her fault. When I was expecting her, I worked for a morning paper. That meant that most of my work took place in the evening. I got home about 10 or 11 p.m., tapped out my story on a typewriter sitting on a folded towel to muffle the noise and called it in to the copy desk by the midnight deadline. Then I made myself a snack and watched the late show with the baby dancing happily inside me.

Our first five years together were fairly serene ones. I pretty much followed her lead schedule-wise and we spent our days discovering all the world had to offer. Nothing prepared the Princess, in her fifth year, for the discovery that not only did we expect her to get up for the first day of school, we expected her to do it five days a week for the next 13 years.

I started out with a morning routine of opening blinds and singing songs about opossums, which wasn't – as you can imagine – well received.

In a very short time, I settled for knocking twice on the bedroom door, followed by an occasional imitation of the little man from "Fantasy Island:" "The bus, the bus...

you are going to miss the bus."

From time to time, the Princess called down the stairs, "I'm cooommmmming." She wasn't, but she seemed to think it would make me feel better.

By junior high, we'd reached a form of morning detente. I knocked twice on the bedroom door, set out a cup of yogurt on the end table at the foot of the stairs, checked that the backpack we'd set by the front door was still there and then sat back and drank my coffee. With approximately two minutes to spare, the Princess came down the stairs, picked up the yogurt and backpack, blew me a kiss and walked down the street and directly up the stairs of the waiting bus. There were occasions when she missed it, but they were rare. Most days she was almost – but not exactly – late.

By the time we'd reached late high school the one item always in the cup holder of the car was an eyelash curler. The Princess did her lash-curling at stop signs. She'd developed a series of hair styles which could be quickly carried out in the morning and evolve into something more elaborate later in the day.

And it wasn't just mornings. I don't think she ever wrote a paper that was finished before one in the morning. Her college essay was express mailed at the last possible minute. She decorated the cookies for the bake sale in her friend's car on the way. If life gave awards for work done "under deadline pressure," the Princess would have won them all. As I said, she rarely missed one. She was just always almost – if not exactly – late.

Puttin' On The Fritz

Over the last year, though, I've noticed a subtle change in her pattern. Faced with a morning appointment, she sometimes lays her paperwork out the night before. And just a month or so ago, she electronically transmitted her master's thesis to Chicago a full two days early. I think, with a little help from hormones and Mother Nature, she may be morphing from a Princess into a Lady In Waiting.

In just a few short years, she'll be the one muttering about "the bus, the bus" while from down the hall a small voice calls, "I'm cooommmmming." I plan to just sit back and drink my coffee. And smile.

So my money's on an ETA of 11:30 p.m. or so, Friday evening. If Miss Boo is anything like her mama, she will arrive when she's good and ready, and not a minute sooner, no matter how much we wish she would hurry. One thing I've learned over these last 30 years or so – you can't push a string.

She'll be almost – if not exactly – late. And as long as she gets here, that's fine with me.

Organization Notes

4-H Stewardship Club

On October 13 the 4-H Stewardship Club went into Mill Creek, the stream by the V.F.W. Club in Harrisville, to monitor the water.

According to Mindy Mendenyka, club members used waders to go into the water and moved rocks to catch organisms. They measured and recorded the depths and speed of the water using a ruler for the depth and a stress ball to record the speed. Three to four trials were conducted for each speed test.

They also dipped for and caught a variety of aquatic macro-invertebrates. Club members compared the different aquatic macro-invertebrates that could be found in different fast moving or slow moving water. Different speeds and depths of the water had an effect on the different types of macro-invertebrates living in that part of the stream.

For example, organisms like the clinging Mayfly larva were found in the faster moving areas of the stream. They are able to grip the rocks in fast moving water. Caddisfly larva and dobsonfly larva were also in the fast moving areas. While organisms like leeches, tubifex, and planaria live in the slower, calmer water because they get swept away in faster moving water. Such invertebrates as the tubifex, planaria and leeches don't have the same advantages as the clinging Mayfly which is flat so it can lie against the rocks and stay there without getting snagged and be taken away with the current.

Club members used an aquatic – macro invertebrate key to find the different species names and descriptions.

This 4-H Stewardship Club is focused on taking care of the planet. It is building an underwater remotely operated vehicle (ROV) and is working with the Hubbard Lake Sportsman Improvement Association (HLSIA) to monitor the fish structures placed in Hubbard Lake. They are also learning about and exploring the different ecosystems in Alcona County.

For more information or anyone interested in joining, call Alcona County 4-H coordinator, Les Thomas at (989) 724-6478.

Autumn fishing

Why is fall fishing so great? Many anglers will tell you that as fall rolls in the fishing gets better and better. But why is this?

There isn't much formal research to answer that question, but several factors could be contributing to this influx of angling opportunities: Forage availability, dropping water temperatures, fish movement or oxygen availability.

Some say it could just be related to less fishing pressure and/or better angling techniques. The bottom line is, if an angler doesn't consider fall to be an ideal time to go fishing he or she may want to rethink that sentiment. Some of the biggest crappie, muskellunge, wall-eye and smallmouth bass can be found in the fall - who doesn't want to experience that? For more information on fishing in Michigan, visit www.michigan.gov/fishing.

This was adapted from Michigan Outdoor News

Northeast Lower Peninsula October 31

- Rogers City: Boat fishing is pretty much done. The marinas, restrooms and the fish cleaning stations are closed for the season. The docks at the launch ramps are still in and should be for another week or two. Those pier fishing had little to no success. Brown trout were reported in the marina however they would not bite.

- Thunder Bay River: Most of the salmon have spawned and are now in the final stages of life. Steelhead fishing is still slow. Anglers are starting to catch a few perch but many are small.

- Harrisville: Angler pressure has dropped off which means fewer fish are being caught. Watch for the fall steelhead to start showing up and walleye should start moving in closer to shore.

- Oscoda: Pier anglers are picking up a few walleye late at night and just before sunrise. Small spoons and body baits seem to work best.

- AuSable River: Salmon are still trickling into the river but the numbers are small and the fish are not in very good shape. Steelhead are moving in slowly. Fish were caught on spawn or flies.

- Tawas: Fishing was slow because of the weather and the large number of minnows inside the harbor.

- AuGres: A few anglers ventured out for perch but catch rates were generally poor. The water was quite dirty from all the wind and wave action.

- AuGres River: Fishing pressure was very light at the Singing Bridge.

Residents beware of credit union scam

The Michigan State Police, Alpena post is warning residents to disregard any text messages they might receive from the Alpena Alcona Area Credit Union (AAACU), as it is just the latest in a series of criminal scams being attempted on northeast Michigan residents.

According to Lt. Mike Hahn, potential victims are receiving text messages from an unknown criminal organization identifying themselves as the Alpena Alcona Area Credit Union. The text states that their immediate attention is needed and that they should immediately call the telephone number (440) 782-7845.

When the number is called, they are greeted by a computerized voice that informs them that their credit/debit card account has been compromised and that if they wish to reactivate their cards, they should enter their 16 digit account numbers.

Hahn said that once those numbers are entered they have effectively given access to their account and any money in the account.

He said anyone who has unwittingly fallen victim to this scam should cancel their credit/debit card immediately.

Hahn explained banks and credit unions do not do business through text messaging.

For more information about this or any other scam that happening in the area, contact the Michigan State Police, Alpena post at (989) 354-4101.

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Heavens Surrounded by Autumn

Last week, my Moravian College astronomy students visited Shooting Star Farm, north of Quakertown, for their dark sky field experience. It was one of those iffy days where the clarity of the night was in jeopardy. Eastern PA remained partly cloudy while the rest of the state, including NJ, became overcast. My instincts to hold the event were correct because after sunset the orange tinged, purplish clouds began to dissipate, and the sky turned denim lapis, revealing diamond-like Venus in the southwest. West of the zenith in the twilight were the holdouts of last season's sky, the stars of the Great Summer Triangle, Vega (brightest), Deneb (faintest), and Altair with a pale hint of the Milky Way passing in between them. Already high in the east were the bright stars of the Great Square of Pegasus, the flying horse, revealed like the bases in a ballgame with the seductive Andromeda trailing behind. She had been chained to a rock as a sacrifice to Cetus, the Sea Monster. In the northeast was Andromeda's rescuer, winged-footed Perseus the Hero, and above Perseus, the sideways "W" of Cassiopeia, Queen of Ethiopia and mother of Andromeda. Cassiopeia had boasted about her beauty and angered the gods, precipitating the near death of her daughter. "Mama Cass" sat on a crooked backed chair, being swung upside-down, as punishment for her vanity. Low in the north, the Big Dipper was starting to the scrape the horizon, and low in the east the gossamer Pleiades of Taurus the Bull and Capella of Auriga the Charioteer were rising. The seasonal stars of the autumn sky were in full view after sundown with hints of winter in the east. By 9 p.m. my students were numbed from the cold and with frosty exhalations begged to be dismissed. I consented with a warm smile, still cozy in my multiple layers of fleece. STRANGE BUT TRUE by Samantha Weaver

• It was the ever-proper Emily Post who made the following sage observation: "Manners are a sensitive awareness of the feelings of others. If you have that awareness, you have good manners, no matter what fork you use."

• During the Dark Ages in Europe, it was a common belief that the soul of the first person to be buried in a new graveyard would belong to the devil.

• If you're planning a trip to Washington state anytime soon, you might want to head to Olympic National Park and take the Spruce Railroad Trail up to Lake Crescent, a 600-foot deep mountain lake. It has a rather spooky history, with Bigfoot sightings and numerous accounts of ghosts and inexplicable sounds in the nearby woods. The native Kallam Indians refused to fish in the lake for fear of stirring up the evil spirits that resided there. Lake Crescent also is the setting for the Lady of the Lake. It seems that in 1940, two local fishermen (not afraid of evil spirits, it seems) found a body there. It turned out to be the remains of one Hallie Illingworth, a waitress who had disappeared in 1937. Her husband had murdered her, weighted her body down and disposed of it in the depths of the lake. But it was those very depths -- or, more accurately, the cold water in those depths -- that preserved the body almost perfectly and made identification possible three years after her death.

• Those who study such things say that 40 percent of all modern Chinese people are descended from just three men (dubbed "super-grandfathers") during the Neolithic period.

MOMENTS IN TIME The History Channel

• On Nov. 18, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln boards a train for Gettysburg, Pa., to deliver a short speech at the dedication of a cemetery. The Gettysburg Address became one of the most famous speeches in American history.

• On Nov. 21, 1927, Time magazine puts the week-old Holland Tunnel on its cover. The tunnel, which runs under the Hudson River between New York City and Jersey City, N.J., requires 84 ventilating fans that replace all the air in the tunnel every 90 seconds.

• On Nov. 23, 1936, legendary Mississippi Delta bluesman Robert Johnson is recorded for the very first time in a San Antonio recording studio. He spent only five days in the studio, recording 41 total takes of 29 different songs. Almost immediately, Johnson's recordings gained a cult following among blues collectors.

• On Nov. 24, 1947, the House of Representatives votes to approve citations of contempt against 10 Hollywood writers, directors and producers. These men had refused to cooperate at hearings dealing with communism in the movie industry. Hollywood quickly established the so-called blacklist, and those on the list rarely found work in the movies.

• On Nov. 20, 1955, Bo Diddley introduced himself and his namesake beat with his debut on "The Ed Sullivan Show." Diddley opened his appearance with his song "Bo Diddley." Sullivan had expected him to perform Ernie Ford's "Sixteen Tons," and he was furious enough to ban Diddley from future appearances on his show.

• On Nov. 19, 1976, Patty Hearst is released on bail pending the appeal of her conviction for participating in a 1974 San Francisco bank robbery that was caught on camera. Hearst had been kidnapped months before the robbery by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

• On Nov. 22, 1986, 20-year-old Mike Tyson knocks out Trevor Berbick in just five minutes and 35 seconds to become the youngest titleholder ever. Tyson kept his title for nine more bouts. After that, his life unraveled when he was sent to prison for three years.
