Alcona resident receives drug court hero award

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

For the second year in a row the 23rd Circuit/81st District Drug Sobriety Court has received a drug court hero award.

This year's recipient was Alcona resident and drug court coordinator, Gena Yockey.

The Michigan Association of Drug Court Professionals (MADCP) gives out the awards once a year to drug court professionals in the state who are nominated by their peers.

Judge Laura A. Frawley received the award in 2013.

Yockey was nominated because of her dedication and compassion to help people overcome addictions to drugs and successfully move their lives forward to be contributing members of society.

"It's a tremendous honor. It's very rare the same court is recognized two years in a row. I think it's a real testament to how well our drug court operates to get that kind of recognition. Gena truly deserves this award. She has done a phenomenal job. She works very hard and goes way above and beyond the call of duty," Frawley said.

Yockey came into the position of drug court coordinator while the Alcona drug sobriety court was still expanding to include Iosco and Oscoda counties after receiving a grant to do so. Her work load tripled during her first year, plus she managed and coordinated the grant funds.

Prior to becoming drug court coordinator Yockey worked as a compliance officer going out at night to randomly drug test participants in their home. Frawley said it was a good fit sliding her into the coordinator position because she already knew the participants, had been to their homes, had good relationships with them and they knew she had a sincere interest in their sobriety.

The award was given in conjunction with the drug court receiving positive statistics on a national level. The National Association of Drug Court Professionals keeps track of all drug courts in the nation and compares them by size. Rural is considered to be 50,000 people. Frawley and Yockey stated Alcona, Iosco and Oscoda counties are "ultra" rural.

Frawley said the 23rd Circuit/81st District Drug Sobriety Court's recidivism rate is now at nine percent, which is the lowest rate in the nation and dropped from last year's 14 percent. The recidivism rate measures how many participants will appear in court again on criminal charges.

The court also has one of the highest employment rates in the nation with 85 percent of its participants employed. It has one of the highest education rates in terms of people who receive either a high school diploma or complete their GED and is in the top three in the nation in regard to participants who start and finish the entire drug court program.

The drug sobriety court has been able to save over 45 years in jail bed days since its inception almost 10 years ago, Frawley said. She explained the cost of incarceration is about $30 to $35 dollars a day. According to MADCP, for every one dollar spent in drug court it saves $27 tax dollars.

The drug court is not only a proven budget solution but it also actually works. "It's a rare thing to have something work and save money at the same time. The whole point of drug court is to intervene with people who are continuously coming through the system over and over again. In regular court you are look-

Local artists participate in museum art show

By Mary Weber
Staff writer

A creative display is bringing together a collaboration of artists who work and live along the sunrise coast for some Art Madness at the Besser Museum in Alpena.

The artists are all members of the Sunrise Artists of Michigan (SAMi) and are featured in the 2014 Meet the Artists of the Sunrise Side - a guide for art lovers publication. The annual publication features 41 artists working in sculpture, pottery, jewelry, woodworking, watercolor, acrylic, oil, pastel, photography and drawing.

SAMi members range from Au Gres to Mackinaw including many from Alcona County and the Tawas Bay area.

Barbara Wasserman, president and co-founder of SAMi said they are trying to marry all art groups along the upper northeastern coast of Lake Huron. "We noticed on the western side of Michigan (that) all the communities work together in group advertising and all the communities on the western side of Michigan are thriving. They are still hurting, but not nearly as bad as the communities along the eastern side," Wasserman said.

She explained the art events along northwest Michigan are coordinated and the eastern side is not. SAMi hopes to accomplish more organization between the art communities. They want to get the different communities along the coast of Lake Huron talking to one another and working together for the greater good. Wasserman said coordinating efforts may just improve life in general for the sunrise coast.

"Art is the one unique thing which is an economic driver. It can, all by itself, change communities for the better. Dollar for dollar every artist spends more of their money in their local community than

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

As an American, I celebrate U.S. District Judge Bernard Friedman's decision on March 21 that declared the marriage amendment in Michigan's constitution at odds with the Constitution of the United States. The court basically said that Michigan's 2004 ban on same sex marriage was unconstitutional.

Before a stay by a U.S. Appeals Court was issued late the next day, 300 same sex couples were legally married in four different Michigan counties. Unfortunately, Governor Snyder was quick to declare that he would not allow the state to recognize these marriages while the issue works its way through the courts.

This was a small window of time in which we stopped the discrimination against our lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender (LGBT) citizens. I am encouraged by the truth that once again, while justice may be delayed it will not be denied.

Given the attitudes of our younger generation, those who will be our leaders in the near future, it is obvious, and rightly so, that marriage equality will soon be the law of the land. We will look back and wonder why our governor and attorney general wasted so much time and financial resources opposing the doctrine of "equal protection under the law" as it applies to a large group of Michigan's residents.

Those interested in township positions, will want to check with individual townships, according to Alcona County Clerk Patricia Truman, as there are no scheduled positions open, but there might be appointed seats that are up for election.

Candidates who do not declare party affiliation have a deadline of July 17 in order

The event is free with no obligation.

Fuelwood Permits Available

With the 2014 fuelwood season beginning April 1, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has streamlined its system to make it more convenient for residents to purchase personal-use fuelwood permits in person and by mail. The season runs through December 31. The mail-in order forms are available online at the DNR website www.michigan.gov/fuelwood.

"Folks are encouraged to save gas and time by ordering this year's fuelwood permit through the mail," said Bill O'Neill, chief of the DNR Forest Resources Division. "We wanted to give people a couple of options for purchasing their permits to make the process easier and more convenient."

Permits cost $20 and are for use on designated state forest land in the northern two-thirds of the state and allow for collection of up to five standard cords of wood per household. Fuelwood collected with the permit can be used for personal use only and cannot be resold or traded. The permits are good for 90 days. For further information on how and where to purchase a personal-use fuelwood permit, contact a local DNR office or visit www.michigan.gov/fuelwood.

ing at between 78 and 82 percent recidivism rate," Frawley said.

Yockey pointed out many participants, who didn't have a job while they were addicts, now have great jobs and can support their families. The drug court has also had three people graduate from college. "That's saving a lot of money. They are not on welfare, they are not on disability. They are also breaking the chain of addiction which travels from one generation to another; they are setting a good example for their children," Yockey said.

"We've had four drug free babies born and we've had five people get custody of their children back. We can't calculate the cost of that, but these kids were in foster care at tax payer's expense and now they are back with their families. Seeing families restored tells us we are doing something right," Frawley said.

Yockey agreed and felt the team's motivation came from seeing families together again.

Frawley said drug court is not a get out of jail free card. It is a very tough program. Participants are tested every day and must see a case manager three times a week.

They have individual and group counseling. They have curfews and are constantly being watched and checked on to make sure they are doing what they are supposed to be doing. Frawley said she has a lot of respect for drug court participants because they have chosen to face massive issues in their life -- which takes courage.

The drug court coordinator's duties cover a myriad of responsibilities. Yockey is also a case manager for the court, which means she typically begins her day by drug testing individuals who are waiting at her office door before she arrives to work. She does case management spending many hours talking with participants. She gets all notes ready for staffing, all dockets ready for drug court and inputs all the case notes including all drug test results, participant counseling notes and drug court reviews into a computer program which is how the grant funders keep track of the court's progress. She also helps write new grants.

Yockey is the person who receives the referrals for drug court participants and follows through to get copies of plea agreements from three county courts and assessment paperwork from Catholic Human Services.

Frawley described Yockey's job as "herding cats" to get the ton of paperwork coordinated in a timely manner. Yockey knows timeliness is important. The faster they can get participants in the more effective drug court is.

Yockey was excited the Michigan Association of Drug Court Professionals was noticing their tiny drug court. "It's an award which should go to the whole team. Without the team it just wouldn't work. We all really believe in drug court. It's about reuniting families and making the world a better place. When a person is addicted they lose the people who are important to them -- their family. Addictions tear families apart. Drug court brings them back together. I've seen it happen and it's wonderful," Yockey said.

"The heroin and meth problem here is astronomical. People don't realize just what a big problem it is and it's eating at our youth. An addiction is an illness, like any illness it must be treated. It's not fixed by just going to prison. The treatment takes a lot of hard work. Not all drug court participants are successes, but the ones which are make the hard work worth it. It's a tough field and job, but very rewarding. I'm just a very small part of a great team," she said.

The following individuals were sentenced in 81st District Court in March by the Honorable Allen C. Yenior.

- Sherry Lynn Apsey, 35, of Lincoln was sentenced to 180 days in jail (with 92 days credit) and restitution in the amount of $1,376 for embezzlement more than $200, but less than $1,000 and 92 days in jail for domestic violence.

any other entity. Artists have a strong commitment to their local community and want to support it," Wasserman said. Joan Shively, a non-artist volunteer of SAMi, said there is a healthy population of retired people located along the eastern side who now have time to pursue things they couldn't do while raising families and working. Shively said she feels they have moved to northeast Michigan because of its scenic beauty which inspires their artistic creativity to flow.

As Shively and Wasserman walked through the Besser Museum studying each piece and describing what they felt or saw in the art, Shively explained even though she is not an artist, she still loved to view their work and feels their inspiration which is why she volunteered. Wasserman said many artists don't have time to do the behind the scenes work, such as getting advertisement for the annual publication, because they spend so much time involved in their art.

Volunteers such as Shively are truly appreciated by the members of SAMi. Art Madness at the Besser Museum features 32 SAMi artists including Alcona husband and wife team, Bill and Isa Hastings with their wood-working art. It was Isa Hastings' crazy curved stilted wood house piece on display which inspired the show's name – Art Madness. Also from Alcona County are watercolor artist Jill St. John and Patt Bacon; pastel artist Carol Preuss; Kathryn Cubalo, who works with oil and watercolor; Ann Sonnenberg with one of her pieces of beaded jewelry; graphic artist Kathryn LaJoie who paints intricate designs reminiscent of folk art; and Bernie Blaszak and Rose Blaszak who paint in oil and acrylic.

- Ronald Joseph Spencer Hill, 31, of Harrisville was found guilty of a probation violation on February 24. He will serve a minimum of 16 months to 24 months in prison (credit 293 days) and must pay fines and court costs of $1,748 for domestic violence, third degree resulting from a January 28, 2013 conviction.

SENIOR LIFESTYLES

Personal sound amplification products can help seniors

Dear Savvy Senior,
What types of amplification products can you recommend to help people with hearing impairment? My 62-year-old husband has some hearing issues, but doesn't think he needs a hearing aid, so I'm looking for some alternative devices that can help.

Shouting Spouse

Dear Shouting,

If your husband is reluctant to get a hearing aid, there are dozens of "personal sound amplification products" (PSAPs) that can help him hear better at a lower cost than most hearing aids, which can run up to $3,000 each.

PSAPs are over-the-counter electronic products (they are not FDA approved medical devices like hearing aids) that come in many different shapes and sizes that will give your husband the ability to adjust the volume and tone so he can hear better in different situations.

It's also important to know that PSAPs work best for people with mild to moderate hearing impairment, you don't need a prescription to buy them, and they usually aren't covered by insurance or Medicare.

Before you look into PSAPs, your husband should probably get tested by an audiologist who can rule out any medical issues that could be affecting his hearing like excessive ear wax, an infection, abnormal bone growth or inner-ear tumor. Audiologists are also familiar with the different PSAPs and can help your husband choose the best products to meet his needs, or let him know if a hearing aid would be a better option.

Here's a breakdown of some of the different PSAPs that can help.

• TV and Telephone Amplifiers: To hear the television better, there are a number of TV listening devices on the market that will let your husband increase the volume and adjust the tone to meet his needs, without blasting out you or the rest of the family.

The best options available today are wireless infrared or radio frequency systems that come with standard or stetho- set headphones. Sennheiser (sennheiser.com, (877) 736-6434) makes some of the best TV listening products sold today with prices running between $250 and $350.

• If hearing over the telephone is a problem, a handset or in-line amplifier can be added to your phone for a few dollars, or you can purchase an amplified telephone. Most amplified phones allow you to adjust the volume and tone for better clarity and they usually come with extra loud ringers and flashing ring indicators to alert you when a call is coming in.

Some top makers of these products are Clarity (clarity-products.com, (800) 426-3738), ClearSounds (clear-sounds.com, (800) 965-9043) and Serene Innovations (sereneinnovations.com, (866) 376-9271), with prices ranging anywhere from $30 up to around $300. Or, see if your state has a specialized telecommunications equipment program (see tedpa.org), which provides amplified telephones for free.

• Personal sound amplifiers: For better hearing in noisy environments, your husband should get a personal sound amplifier that's designed to amplify hard to hear sounds (like voices), while reducing background noise. Able Planet (ableplanet.com, (877) 266-1979) offers two excellent products that fit the bill that are worn either in-ear or behind the ear, and run $475 or $500 for one, or $850 or $900 a pair.

• To help improve hearing at home or in quieter settings, or if your husband has high-frequency hearing loss, check out the Bean Quiet Sound Amplifier by Etymotic (qsabean.com, (888) 389-6684). This product, which is worn in the ear, provides amplification to high frequencies more than low ones, making speech easier to hear

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Watching a Total Lunar Eclipse: Part One

April 15 holds the promise of a really impressive light show during the early morning hours of tax day as the full moon encounters the Earth's shadow and hides for awhile in its darkness. I have to admit that the scheduling of this event between 1:58 and 5:34 a.m. EDT is going to put a real crimp in my ability to be coherent for my Tuesday evening astronomy class, but hey, even that shall pass. Total lunar eclipses are the less spectacular of the two eclipse families. By far, total solar eclipses, where the moon hides the sun, are truthfully the crème de la crème of astronomical events. August 21, 2017 is the next total solar eclipse visible from the US, but most people will have to travel to see it. Day will literally change into night within 10 to 15 seconds. Sol, will look like a brilliant diamond ring just before totality, and then when totality begins, the wispy corona of the eclipsed sun will encircle the dark moon while planets and bright stars become visible right before your very eyes. However, the biggest perk of a total lunar eclipse is that more than half of the world gets to view it. About 30 minutes before first contact around 1:30 a.m., as the moon pushes deeper into Earth's secondary shadow, the area of the moon closest to the true shadow will start to become dusky in appearance. An astronaut stationed on the moon in this grayish area, with filters protecting his or her eyes, would watch the Earth slowly eclipsing the sun. As more and more of the Earth covered the sun, the sun's light in that region of the moon would have to be lessened, and it would appear from Earth to be diminished in brightness. These are merely the preliminary aspects to the beauty that lies ahead. At 1:58 a.m., EDT the limb of the moon closest to the umbra makes first contact with the shadow and within a minute, the human eye can detect it beginning to sweep across the lunar surface. More next week about the visual aspects of the April 15 total lunar eclipse. www.astronomy.org

By The History Channel

- On April 14, 1912, the RMS Titanic fails to divert its course from an iceberg, ruptures its hull and begins to sink. The Titanic was divided into 16 compartments that were presumed to be watertight. Because four of these compartments could be flooded without loss of buoyancy, the Titanic was considered unsinkable.
  - On April 20, 1923, Tito Puente, the bandleader and percussionist who helped popularize Latin dance music in America, is born in New York City. During a career that spanned six decades, "El Rey" (The King), recorded more than 100 albums and won five Grammy Awards.
  - On April 16, 1947, multimillionaire and financier Bernard Baruch first coins the term "Cold War" to describe relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, a war without fighting or bloodshed, but a battle nonetheless.
  - On April 15, 1959, Fidel Castro visits the United States. The trip got off to an inauspicious start when it became clear that President Dwight Eisenhower had no intention of meeting with Castro. Instead, Eisenhower went to the golf course to avoid any chance meeting.
  - On April 17, 1960, Eddie Cochran, the musician behind "Summertime Blues" and other rockabilly hits, is killed when the taxi carrying him from a show in Bristol, England, crashes en route to the airport in London, where he was to catch a flight home to the U.S. He was 21.
  - On April 19, 1971, as a prelude to a massive antiwar protest that would include 200,000 demonstrators, Vietnam Veterans Against the War begin a five-day demonstration in Washington, D.C. The generally peaceful protest ended on April 23 with about 1,000 veterans throwing their combat ribbons, helmets and uniforms on the Capitol steps, along with toy weapons.
  - On April 18, 1989, thousands of Chinese students continue to take to the streets in Beijing to protest government policies. The protests grew until the Chinese government ruthlessly suppressed them in June, killing thousands, during what came to be known as the Tiananmen Square Massacre.

Strange But True

By Samantha Weaver

- It was beloved and sometimes maligned British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill who made the following sage observation: "Sometimes it is not enough that we do our best; we must do what is required."
- If you're of a certain age, you might be surprised to learn that the Bruce Willis film "Die Hard" is older than the World Wide Web.
- Those who study such things say that a new mom accumulates anywhere from 450 to 700 hours of lost sleep during the first year after her baby is born.
- You may be surprised to learn that the average American man spends 10,585 hours hanging out in a bar. Or you may not.
- Those who are looking for love might want to consider the following statistics: In a 2013 survey, a quarter of adults said that their spouse/partner is not the type of person they thought they'd settle down with. More than half of respondents said that their significant other is their complete opposite.
- If you just can't seem to resist shouting sometimes, you may suffer from klazomania.
- Nobel and Pulitzer prize-winning author John Steinbeck did not start out his career as a great success. In fact, his first novel, "Cup of Gold," was a complete flop, not even earning enough money to cover the advance the publishing house paid him. He was not discouraged, however; after the book's publication Steinbeck wrote to a friend, "The book was an immature experiment. ... The next one won't be good, nor the next one, but about the fifth, I think I will be above the average."
- Even a chameleon that is born blind can take on the colors of its environment.
