Drug bust seizes cocaine, heroin, cash and weapon

By Cheryl Peterson Editor

An early morning search of a home in Harrisville Township netted the seizure of cocaine and heroin, cash and a hand gun and the subsequent arrest of three individuals.

Deputies from the Alcona County Sheriff's Department executed a search warrant on Tuesday, Jan. 21 at 7 a.m., at a home located on M-72 in Harrisville Township

According to Alcona County Sheriff Douglas Atchison, during the course of the investigation deputies seized 28 grams of cocaine, eight grams of heroin, nine morphine tablets, $885 in cash, an unregistered handgun and stolen electronics. The seized narcotics have a street value of more than $6,000

Tijuan Tidwell, 40, of Detroit, Mich. was charged with two counts of delivery/manufacturing heroin/cocaine/narcotics under 50 grams, felon in possession of a firearm, possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony and possession of an unregistered pistol. He is lodged in the Alcona County Jail on a $100,000 cash/ surety 10 percent bond.

Alecia Smith, 31, of Detroit, Mich. was charged with two counts of delivery/manufacturing heroin/cocaine/narcotics under 50 grams. She is lodged in the Alcona County Jail on a $50,000 cash/surety 10 percent bond.

Dawn Mongeau, 45, of Harrisville was charged with two counts of delivery/manufacturing narcotics under 50 grams and maintaining a drug house. She has been released on a personal recognizance bond

Alcona County deputies Gerald Soboleski and Chas Neff are the investigating officers and both were members of the Huron Undercover Narcotics Team (HUNT) representing Alcona County prior to the millage being turned down last year. "I attribute their experience and training through that organization that was instrumental in the execution of the search warrant and investigation," Atchi-

He explained there has been an increase in cases involving heroin and cocaine in Alcona County in the last year. "In 2013 we had 111 drug cases – 76 percent involved marijuana and 24 percent involved heroin and cocaine. Additionally, we made 25 arrests for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of narcotics," Atchison said

"In my opinion, there is a recognizable increase (in narcotics cases). The part that alarms me... when we did this (execute the search warrant) an occupant was armed...

Community support brings new records boards to gym

By Mary Weber

Staff Writer

Alcona High School will soon be sporting new records boards in the gymnasium honoring 60 years of the school's best of the best in athletic accomplishments.

The boards were a vision of alumni Don Franklin and Athletic Director Dan O'Connor and were made possible by many donors and several fundraising events.

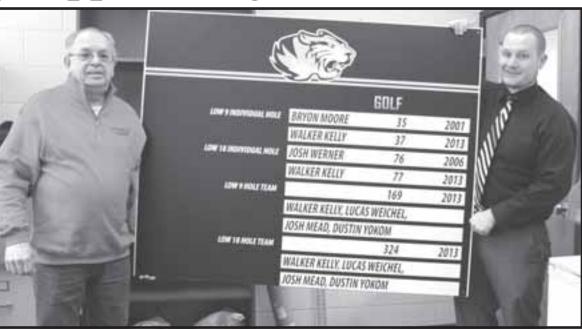

Franklin, who was a sophomore at the high school when it opened in 1957, said he went to O'Connor with the idea to replace the old boards last year. O'Connor immediately agreed and said he was thinking the same thing, but the biggest road block would be attaining the estimated $10,000 to have new boards made.

The main problem with the older boards was information was scant and not all athletics were recognized. The old boards also lacked the ability to be easily updated as new records were achieved.

As a result of community involvement, 10 new boards will occupy about 44 feet of wall space in the new gymnasium. They will honor top athletes in basketball, football, baseball, track, soccer and golf with additional room for upcoming sports such as cross country skiing, bowling and cheerleading.

The boards feature a dark blue background with white strips containing names and statistics. The white name strips are replaceable and will be changed as school records are broken.

The boards honor many athletes such as Tom McIntyre, winner of 16 varsity letters, and Cindy DeRocher. Franklin said in his opinion McIntyre and DeRocher were two of the best athletes Alcona has ever had. Other prominent family names are also mentioned over and over again on the boards including Hart, with three generations of track stars, Gunderson, Unkovich, Budreau, Franklin, Kauffman, Goddard, Campbell, Fettes, Emington, Kilbourn, Edwards, Strittmatter, Somers, Munro, Loyer, Dellar and Deller, just to name a Community response to the fund raising effort to get the boards was positive from the beginning, according to Franklin. By talking to two prominent members of the community Franklin received a $1,000 donation. He then sent out a mass e-mail asking if they should hold a raffle and received many supportive responses.

David Powierski designed the tickets and the flier and Mark Feldhiser secured the raffle license. Ticket sales began in August selling at $20 a piece, with $10 going to fund the boards and the other $10 in prize winnings.

The winning tickets were drawn at homecoming. Forty-four names were drawn for prizes of varying monetary amounts. "Many raffle winners donated their winnings back to the project including one $500 winner," Franklin said.

White Pine National Golf Course also had a fundraiser and raised $1,400. Donations and raffle funds added up quickly, and even left a little extra in the bank for replacement strips to keep the boards

O'Connor said researching athletic records to get the correct information for the boards was the "fun stuff," but it did take some work and included conversations with former coaches to make sure they had accurate statistics.

"I'm amazed at the generosity of our community. The boards represent a legacy of Alcona High School's finest athletes. This is something not only students of the school can be proud of; the whole community shares in this pride as well. I really have to thank Donfor spearheading the project," O'Connor said.

The boards, which were purchased from School Pride Ltd., a company based in Columbus, Ohio, have gradually been coming in. O'Connor and Franklin hope to have all of them in and installed for an unveiling at the school's Winterfest homecoming basketball game on Friday, Jan. 31.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor,

As the ninth child in a family of 13 children, I'll always remember my father's statement about family vacations spent at the cabin he built on the 80 acres purchased in 1954 in Alcona County; namely, you don't take 13 children to a motel. However, this statement carries much wisdom today when families large or small consider their vacation options.

While the Pure Michigan travel campaign appropriately pushes Michigan's natural wonders, it continues to treat the Sunrise Side as a stepchild, giving only occasional mention of its offerings rather than high lighting its benefits for those wishing affordable options.

For this reason, I believe that the Sunrise Side needs to push family affordability as one of its strongest points.

Weekly cabin and camping rates along Lake Huron, daily golf fees, purchases of hunting acreage, vacation homes or lake front lots and restaurant options are lower in price than those of the western side, and less crowded.

For those fortunate to experience the Sunrise Side. it serves as an excellent base to explore both the Upper Peninsula and the western coast without expending too much precious family funds on housing and meals. In fact, it permits a greater leeway of travel when funds are leftover to explore our wonderful Michigan, from its interior to the coasts.

Helping Communities

Employees of Alpena, Alcona Area Credit Union (AAACU) raised a total of $6,378.53 for the communities where they live and work during the last quarter of 2013. AAACU employees select four community or charity organizations they would like to fund raise for during each quarter of the year. Through the efforts of employees and the generosity of AAACU members the following branches raised almost $7,000.

- The Lincoln branch raised $1,764.85 for families in need in the community by organizing candy bar sales, bake sales, selling paper ornaments and donating $2 on Fridays to dress down in jeans and sneakers.
- The Ossineke branch raised $487.02 for the Alpena Senior Center by organizing candy bar sales, Thanksgiving basket raffle, Halloween basket giveaway and donating $2 on dress down Fridays.
- The Oscoda branch raised $1,360 for Toys for Tots by organizing bake sales, cash donations, TV raffle, selling paper trains and staff donations for dress down Fridays.
- The Tawas branch raised $69.22 for St. Vincent de Paul and $180 for Toys for Tots by organizing a pumpkin weight guessing game, candy bar sales, member donations and staff donations for dress down Fridays.
- The Main branch raised $1,813.79 for The Caring Place Adult Daycare of Alpena by organizing candy bar sales, bake sales, spare change canisters, hunter's raffle, wreath sales, Santa bucks and staff donations for dress down Fridays.
- The North branch raised $198.74 for The Baby Pantry in Alpena by organizing item donations, wreath sales and staff donations for dress down Fridays.
- •The Atlanta branch raised $296.91 for The Salvation Army by organizing a raffle for a cedar chest and staff donations for dress down Fridays. Employees also raised $208.00 for The Caring Place of Atlanta by organizing the sale of paper ornaments.

Consumer Alert

State Attorney General Bill Schuette has issued the following information regarding a charitable donation refund scam: Charities and credit card users should be alert for the following scam. A charity receives a credit card donation of $5,000 from a person claiming to be a new donor. (The amount varies, but typically it's several thousand dollars.) Shortly thereafter, the alleged donor e-mails the charity and explains that there was a mistake, the gift was supposed to be $500, not $5,000 and the credit card that was used was recently closed because of fraud, so kindly refund the $4,500 to a different credit

The "donor" also frequently claims to have recently lost his or her spouse, thus increasing the drama. And if the charity responds that it can only refund to the original card, the "donor" often escalates his or her tone—or even makes threats—in an attempt to scare the charity into making an immediate refund.

This scam has been occurring since 2012, and recently it was directed at a Michigan charity. Most likely, the scammer makes the donation with a stolen credit card. "Donating" the money to the charity allows the thief to obtain a large sum from the stolen card before the card can be closed. This also allows the scammer to launder the funds for future use.

Victims of the above scam should report the matter to their credit card processing company and to the Internet Crime Complaint Center (IC3) at www.ic3.gov. The IC3 was established as a partnership between the FBI and the National White Collar Crime Center, and serves as a vehicle for receiving, developing and referring criminal complaints of cyber crime.

Victims may also file a complaint with the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division at: Consumer Protection Division, P.O. Box 30213, Lansing, Michigan 48909-7713, (517) 373-1140, www.michigan.gov/ag.

The Alcona County Board of Commissioners will be reviewing and considering adoption of the County Hazard Mitigation Plan at the Wednesday, February 5, 2014 meeting. The plan can be viewed on the county's website www.alconacountymi.com. It is the intention of the County Board to approve the plan, prior to submittal to the State of Michigan and FEMA. ging up the inside making Oscoda shoot from outside with little success.

Oscoda jumped out to a 5-0 lead and Alcona could not catch up until Dawson Forsythe scored a reverse layup to tie the score at 6-6. The Tigers went on to outscore the Owls 13-4 and led after one quarter 19-10. They duplicated that score in the second quarter and went to the locker room at halftime with a comfortable 38-20 lead. Trent LaVergne led all scorers with 19 points.

The third quarter saw Alcona score 19 points again with Oscoda hitting for only 13, so the game was about over at the end of three with Alcona leading 57-33. Six players scored for the Tigers. The final period was won by the Owls 13-8.

LaVergne again led Alcona with 27 points. Forsythe, Brandon Smigelski and Carson Jamieson added eight points each; Jason Steiner scored seven points, Garrette Norling had three points and Chase Matthews and Nick Lamantia added two points

The junior varsity team improved its record to 8-1 with an easy victory over Oscoda 55-32. Hunter Sullivan led with 17 points. Isaac Dubuque and Nate Swinson each scored 12 points.

The contest with Standish will be made up, as a home game, on February 5.

SENIOR LIFESTYLES

Work-at-home employment opportunities for retirees

Dear Savvy Senior,

Can you recommend some popular work at home jobs for retirees? I'm interested in earning a little extra cash, but would also like to stay at home and have a flexible schedule.

Recently Retired

Dear Retired,

If you have a computer with high-speed Internet access and a home phone, there are unlimited work-at-home opportunities for retirees depending on your skills and interest. But beware of scams. Work-at-home scams that offer big paydays without much effort are rampant on the Internet.

The best way to avoid these scams is to use websites that weed out scammers like the ones mentioned in this column, and never invest any of your own money without thoroughly checking out the business with the Better Business Bureau at bbb.org. It's also a good idea to use search engines like Google or Bing to research a potential employer to make sure it's legitimate.

Here are a few popular home-based career opportunities to check out, along with some trustworthy resources to help you search for employment.

- Customer-service agent: These jobs answer inbound customer calls for big companies - you don't place telemarketing calls. Agents earn an average of $8 to $15 an hour and you can usually set your own hours and pick an employer whose products or services are suited to your knowledge and interests. To find these jobs see arise.com, alpineaccess.com, liveops.com and workingsolutions.-
- Web search evaluator: Most large search engines like Google and Bing rely on home-based evaluators to test the accuracy of online search results, examining different search terms and the websites they turn up. Basic Internet skills are required and the pay ranges between $10 and $15 per hour. See lionbridge.com/careers and leapforceathome.com to apply.

- Tutor: If you're a college graduate, and have expertise in English, math, science or social studies, you could make money as an online tutor at tutor.com/apply. Tutors work with students from grade school through college and make between $10 and $15 an hour.
- Transcriptionist: If you have good typing skills there are transcriptionist jobs that pay around $10 per hour for typing verbatim accounts of board meetings, presentations, conference calls, et cetera. Some companies that hire transcriptionists include rev.com, tigerfish.com, ubigus.com and ctran.com.
- Translation services: If you're fluent in more than one language you can do interpretation over the phone, or translate documents or audio files not just word for word but often with cultural differences in mind. Learn about opportunities at telelanguage.com, sdl.com, verbalizeit.com, ubiqus.com and atanet.org. The pay can range from $15 to $40 an hour or more for languages in high demand.

• Write or edit: If you have some writing experience, freelance writing assignments are available online and pay around $10 to $20 an hour. Contact writersmarket.com, freelancewriting.com and writerfind.com for opportunities. Or, if you're a skilled writer, or have expertise in a particular area like food, travel, art, et cetera consider submitting writing samples to magazines, trade publications, newsletters, websites or local newspapers as a freelance writer. Proofreading is another option, if you have some editing experience this pays $12 to $20 per hour. See firstediting.com and cactusglobal.com to look for proofreading jobs.

• Selling online: At sites like ebay.com, craigslist.org, amazon.com and etsy.com, you can sell your own stuff or you can purchase items at garage sells, flea markets or online and resell them for a

If you don't find these options appealing, try flexjobs.com, which lists thousands of legitimate work-at-home jobs from nearly 3,700 employers. You can gain access to their listings for $15 for one month, $30 for three months or $50 for a year.

Bowling club underway at high

By Mary Weber Staff Writer

According to the International Bowling Museum and Hall of Fame, bowling has been in existence since 3200 BC, a fact discovered by a British anthropologist after finding objects which were most likely used in a crude form of the sport in a child's grave in Egypt. Other historians have found evidence the sport was in vogue in England in 1366, when King Edward III allegedly outlawed it to keep his troops focused on archery practice.

With such an extensive history, it seemed fitting to pass this game of skill on to local youth, and two Harrisville businessmen are doing just that. Ron Ellsworth, owner of Cater to Critters in Harrisville and Frank Belloli, owner of Harrisville Lanes and Lounge, have begun coaching the new Alcona High School bowling Club.

The club began last November with 11 youths who practice at Harrisville Lanes twice a week. The coaches said they love being involved with the teenagers and have seen a lot of improvement in their games.

Although the club is not yet a sanctioned sporting event of the school, the coaches are hopeful it will become one next year. "We've never coached before, so we are learning along with the kids," said Ellsworth. "We had a scrimmage against a high school team in Rogers City and we will compete with them again on February 9 here at home. We learned a lot talking to the coach there. Rogers City has a championship team; we hope to have the same."

The club has also bowled in the Lumberman's classic in Oscoda with six other teams. Four teams advanced to the next level including Alcona's club. They expect to be playing home and away games against high school leagues from Oscoda and Alpena next year.

The club has only male members, but the coaches said high school females interested in bowling can join as well. There is no cost to join the club and Belloli provides shoes, balls and free use of the bowling alley.

The coaches said the idea of the club was brought to them by Alcona High School Athletic Director Dan O'Connor. "It's been really good; it's exciting to watch them grow. A few had hardly any bowling experience and they are doing well, keeping the ball in the lane...

We have younger kids bowling here in a 4-H youth program. Those kids now see a reason to continue in the youth program. They can see that they can play in high school and it may be a good opportunity to get college scholarships," Belloli said.

Since there are not a lot of scrimmage games played, the coaches are mostly working with the club to improve skill, practicing drills to refine approaches, delivery, pick up spares and work on consis-

Kristin Hoffman, mother of Alcona bowling club member, Cory Hoffman, said she has seen a lot of improvement in his game since joining the club. His average went from 120 to 180 this past year. "He's really enjoying it. It's good clean fun," Hoffman

Organization Notes

River Aux Sables Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution sent out a Wounded Warrior quilt recently to the Chaplain's Closet at Landstahl, Germany, which distributes needed articles to soldiers when they are brought to that regional medical center. Soldiers are sent by transport with no belongings except the clothes on their backs. The Chaplain's Closet distributes what donations, clothing, blankets, toiletries they have to those soldiers to help them through their recovery and rehab. Each year, River Aux Sables ladies have made quilts and sent them to a Wounded Warrior distribution center. This year's quilt is shown by Alexandra Kramer (left) of Lincoln and Jaye Martz of Gladwin on the right. Courtesy photo.

Phee's cuddling classes

By Kathryn Fritz Kniep Columnist

"Dusting and cleaning can wait 'till tomorrow. For babies grow up, as we learn to our sorrow..."

Recently, I wrote that I was going to spend January lying about. The truth is, I'm not very good at it. It irritates my family to no end. After many years as a two-job working mom with a host of extracurricular activities, my to-do list is activated by my bottom. When I sit down, I inevitably think of something I should be doing.

The Princess has complained about this behavior for years - most especially when we're settling in to watch a movie or television program. While she and her dad subscribe to the theory that you should devote yourself to the plot and the characters, as the opening credits roll, I remember a button that needs to be sewn on, or a stack of paperwork that needs to be looked over. It makes perfect sense to me to hop out to the kitchen during the early moments and finish up the dishes.

"You just can't sit still can you?" the Princess complained. "Don't even ask what happened. We're not going to catch you up."

And no, I can't sit still very well. Since the Princess recently became a mom, I suspect she may eventually find the same thing happening to her – it seems to afflict women more than men. But she can take hope, too. Because her daughter is doing her best to teach Nana some new tricks.

Phee spends a couple of afternoons a week with us, while the Princess catches up on reading for her classes and does homework. Which is perfectly fine with Nana and Papa, of course, who look forward to her visits. The Phoenix is an easy baby, happy to lie in her car seat (referred to as the "bucket") or her pack and play when she's awake. Since hitting the two-month milestone, she's begun "singing" - cooing and chortling to herself. It's the high point of her day when we lean over to talk with her, and she rewards us with huge, happy smiles and giggles.

That said, she is a tiny Irishwoman, and possesses the tiniest of stubborn streaks, inherited from both her mama and her nana. And while she has many places to lie down - ranging from her Moses basket to her stroller to her swing (which she loves), when it comes to napping, she prefers to be held, thank you very much.

And of course, Nana loves to hold her, too. It's just that there are occasions – like last Friday – when my bottomactivated to-do list kicks in. We'd just settled in the rocking chair on Friday when it occurred to me that I should peel the potatoes for dinner. Okay, I figured, my mind falling into its usual Type A patterns. It takes about 10 to 15 minutes for Phee to eat and fall asleep. Then I'll tuck her in her bucket and get that

ferent plan. I mean here she was; snuggled up warm on a cold afternoon with a nice, warm bottle of white and a chair that rocked. She planned to take her time, occasionally drifting off to stare at the photos on the wall above her, sometimes stopping to grin happily at Nana around the bottle. And despite the delightful time we were having, those un-peeled potatoes kept niggling at the back of my mind.

After a lengthy snuggle and some bottle-jiggling on Nana's part, we were finally approaching the bottom of the bottle. Phee, milk drunk and happy as a clam, was fighting to keep her heavy eyes open. Just a few more minutes, I thought to myself, shifting her to my shoulder for a brief burping session. And shortly thereafter, Phee proved that while she may only have lived two months of this earth, she is already developing the wiles of a daughter of Eve.

As I understand the concept behind the Segway scooter, when your body is getting ready to move, it sort of gathers up its energy. The Segway recognizes this gathering activity and moves in the direction you intend to go. The granddaughter apparently has much the same abilities in her operating system.

As she grew heavier on my shoulder, signaling that she had moved into sleep, I thought about getting up to put her in the bucket and go peel my potatoes. Somehow, her tiny brain picked up on the preparatory energy-gathering involved in that action. "No," her sleepy brain said, "Nana is about to get up. And I'm just tooo comfortable right now."

Guided by an internal operating system of her own, she broke out her best defense against being disturbed. She went boneless on my shoulder. Her little body molded itself to mine and, just to be sure, she rested her downy head against my cheek and gave out a sweet, milky baby sigh.

"Oh shoot," I thought, shifting her down to lie contentedly in my arms, "I can do the potatoes later. How many hours, really, will I have to do this?" She may be a fragment of my age, but Phee is smarter than I am. She knew that already. As I read somewhere recently, you have a child your whole life, but you only have a baby for a year. As we settled in for a good long rock, I felt my bottomactivated to-do list switch off. There was nothing I could possibly be doing that was more important than this.

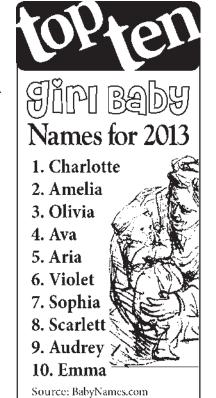

And that brought to mind the final two lines of the poem by my old friend, Anonymous, that started this column. "So cobwebs be quiet," it says, "and dust go to sleep. I'm rocking my baby – and babies don't keep."

That's going to be my mantra for this year, at least on the afternoons that Phee is visiting – and hopefully I can learn to maintain it for at least her earliest years. We can always have instant potatoes, you know. So if you call on Tuesdays or Fridays and I don't answer the phone, forgive me. I'm rocking my baby – and babies don't keep.

Oscoda Christmas Bird Count brings surprises

The annual National Audubon Christmas Bird Count for the Oscoda area was held on January 4. The planned December event had to be postponed because of inclement weather. "This is one of the few times we've had to postpone," said Ed Cole, Au-Sable Valley Audubon Oscoda count compiler.

Between December 14 and January 5, thousands of bird watchers in 50 states tally species observed in their section of the country. Within each state, multiple counts are held. The same 15 mile area is surveyed each year. This national count helps researchers note where birds are wintering and bird numbers also indicate species population increases or de-

The Oscoda 15 mile circle area covered a variety of habitats from Au Sable, near the KOA Campground, to slightly north of Greenbush. Eleven participants toured in cars, while another five monitored birds coming to their yard feeding stations.

An unusual number of blue jays were observed, along with many rock doves near the AuSable River bridge and around AuSable township. Participant Phil Odum was surprised to locate two American robins drinking water near the Foote Dam. He also photographed a hybrid goldeneye/merganser duck near the AuSable river mouth.

According to several Audubon members, this bird has been observed in this general vicinity for the past several years. Redheaded woodpeckers also seem to be wintering in the area more and more. A gathering of 65 common goldeneye ducks were observed at the VanEtten Dam.

"It was a thrill to see these birds up so close," said observer Peggy Ridgway. "Because of mostly frozen water, they were forced into a small area very near the dam."

Despite the deep snow and frigid temperatures, turkeys seem to be doing quite well. The Lakewood Shores and Bissionette Road sections had the majority of the 36

Forty-one species were observed with a total of 1,302 piras countea. The top ten species included: Blue jay (233), rock pigeon (185), common goldeneye (91), cedar waxwing (78), house sparrow (76), mourning dove (72), European starling (66), black-capped chickadee (61), American crow (55) and bufflehead duck (44).

Three female lambs were born on January 22 at Alcona High School. The lamb's mother, Gwen, is part of the Alcona FFA agriscience department. The Ewe Project's sophomore co-coordinator Alissa Terpstra (left) and her sister, senior project coordinator Hannah Terpstra, said all three lambs were born between 4:02 and 4:30 a.m. The project is the sisters' supervised agricultural experience and allows them to get real world place-based education at school. Every day, even when the school is not open, the coordinators feed, care for the sheep, monitor their health and document expenses. The students said Gwen, who gave birth to four lambs last year, is doing very well, as are the lambs. The birth and progress of the lambs can be viewed on the school's Ewe-tube site at alconaffachapter/ewetube. Photo by Mary Weber.

Weather History

Jan. 29, 1921 - A small but intense windstorm resulted in the "Great Olympic Blowdown" in the Pacific Northwest. Hurricane force winds, funneled along the mountains, downed vast expanses of Douglas fir trees. The storm destroyed eight billion board feet of timber.

Weather Trivia

Where are the sun's rays directly hitting the earth's surface on March 21st?

September 21st. twice each year. Once on March 21st and again on VUSMET: The sun's rays directly strike the Equator www.WhatsOurWeather.com

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Mercury Visible Now!

Mercury, the most illusive of the five naked eye planets, revolves around the sun in a scant 88 days. Because the Earth is also orbiting in the same direction, Mercury catches up to us every 116 days, allowing for a minimum of six time periods during the year when the Messenger God is visible; three happen in the dawn hours and three take place after sunset. Because Mercury never gets more than 28 degrees from the sun as seen from Earth, it is almost never viewed in a completely dark sky. Sometimes, like this week, when Mercury is also closest to the sun, this maximum angle is as small as 18 degrees. If this kind of (eastern) elongation happens in late summer and autumn, Mercury hugs the horizon as it orbits the sun, but when this condition takes place from mid-winter through spring, Mercury pulls away from the sun at an angle steeply tilted to the horizon. Such are the circumstances for this current apparition of Mercury when it reaches its 18 degree angle of greatest eastern elongation from the sun on January 31. Eastern elongations of planets or stars simply mean that they are east of the sun, and therefore, visible in the western sky after sundown. Mercury can be seen throughout this week and next week in the WSW about 45 minutes after sunset as a starlike object close to the horizon. To see Mercury, your observing location should have an unobstructed western view, and skies should be clear and crisp. If you have binoculars, use them to enhance the vividness of Mercury against a fairly bright background sky. Any "star" seen about one binocular field or less above the WSW landscape will be Mercury. There is just nothing that bright in the same vicinity. A razor thin, crescent moon positioned to Mercury's lower right, augments the scene on Friday, January 31st, and stands above the Messenger God on February 1st. Good observing! www.astronomy.org

STRANGE BUT TRUE by Samantha Weaver

- It was famed cultural anthropologist Margaret Mead who made the following sage observation: "One of the oldest human needs is having someone to wonder where you are when you don't come home at night."
- If you're like the average American, you will eat about 150 bananas this year -- 26 pounds' worth.
- Up until the 1500s, the accepted way of dealing with a patient who was hemorrhaging was to cauterize the wound, often with boiling oil or red-hot irons. It was in the latter part of the 16th century that a French surgeon named Ambroise Pare began tying off the broken blood vessels with cord. That's pretty much what surgeons do today.
- It's been estimated that a million pigeons live in New York City.
- When pop star Christina Aguilera is on tour, she insists on having a police escort. She hates to be stuck in traffic.
- Next time vouÕre heading to Illinois, you can stop off in Metropolis and visit the self-declared birthplace of Superman. In honor of their hometown superhero, the citizens erected a 15-foot bronze statue of him on Main Street
- It was Abraham Lincoln who signed into law the legislation that created the Secret Service. That very night, he was assassinated.
- Those who study such things say that on the 13th of every month, triskaidekaphobia causes a loss of $83 million to American business due to absenteeism from work and other disruptions.
- In the United States, more babies are born on Oct. 5 than on any other day of the year. If you do the math, youOll find that New YearOs Eve is 9 months and 5 days before that.

MOMENTS IN TIME The History Channel

- On Feb. 11, 1858, Marie-Bernarde Soubirous, a 14-yearold French peasant girl, claims to have seen the Virgin Mary. The apparitions occurred in a grotto of a rock promontory near Lourdes, France. Today millions of people travel to Lourdes every year to visit the grotto, whose waters supposedly have curative powers.
- On Feb. 12, 1912, Hsian-T'ung, the last emperor of China, is forced to abdicate. A provisional government was established in his place, ending 267 years of Manchu rule in China and 2,000 years of imperial rule. The former emperor was only 6 years old.
- On Feb. 16, 1923 in Thebes, Egypt, English archaeologist Howard Carter enters the sealed burial chamber of the ancient Egyptian ruler Tutankhamen. The chamber was virtually intact, with its treasures and the perfectly preserved mummy of King Tut untouched after more than 3,000
- On Feb. 13, 1945, the most controversial episode in the Allied air war against Germany begins as hundreds of British bombers descend on Dresden, Germany. With two days, the city was a smoldering ruin. Dresden had been regarded as one the world's most beautiful cities for its architecture and museums.
- On Feb. 15, 1950, Walt Disney's animated feature 'Cinderella" opens in theaters. Disney's full-length animated feature films began in 1937 with "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Disney had risked $1.5 million of his own money on the venture.
- On Feb. 14, 1962, President John F. Kennedy authorizes U.S. military advisers in Vietnam to return fire if fired upon. Kennedy was acknowledging that U.S. forces were involved in the fighting, but he wished to downplay any appearance of increased American involvement in the war.
- On Feb. 10, 1996, after three hours, world chess champion Gary Kasparov loses the first game of a six-game match against Deep Blue, an IBM computer capable of evaluating 200 million moves per second. Kasparov was ultimately victorious and bested Deep Blue with three wins and two ties and took home the $400,000 prize. (c) 2014 King Features Synd., Inc.

Debit card safety

Dollars And Sense By David Uffington

The recent disclosure that millions of credit- and debitcard holders had their information stolen has gone from bad to much, much worse, with millions more accounts compromised. Of the two, credit versus debit, it's the debit-card holders who are most at risk.

Debit cards are tied directly to your bank account, and your money can vanish. What will you do while all the facts are being uncovered and the fraud revealed? In the event of a large credit/debit-card grab, such as we've just witnessed, your situation might not be sorted out for months. By law the bank has to investigate within 10 business days, but what happens if your vehicle or mortgage check tries to clear during that time and your account has been emptied?

If you still want a debit card (to save the interest charges on a credit card), there are a few places where a debit card should not be used:

• At a gas pump. Go inside to complete the transaction, but remember that the bank will put a hold on your funds for longer than you expect.

 Online. Too many things can go wrong, especially if you're on WiFi or if the company's security isn't strong.

 Monthly payments of any kind. You lose control over when and if the payment is made.

 Any ATM location that's not out in public. An out-ofthe-way spot is more likely to have been tampered with.

• New businesses. Let others be the first customers until all the bugs are worked out in their security. Add to this list small businesses, carryout establishments and restaurants.

• Making large purchases. You won't have the protection of a credit-card company if something is wrong with what you buy.

· A down payment on any item. The balance can be taken at the wrong time.

Do you see the pattern here? The advice is to not use debit cards, at least not until the financial world has managed to make our transactions completely secure. (That's not going to happen until we start using the microchip-based cards as they do in other countries.) If you object to paying the interest on a credit card, have the money ready to send the minute your statement arrives, or even sooner.

Or open a second account to be used with your debit card and keep limited funds in it. If the information is compromised and the money taken, the damage will be smaller.
