Community receives gift of access to water's edge

By Cheryl Peterson
Editor

It was only a hundred feet or so across sugar sand to the edge of Lake Huron, but to the woman sitting in the wheelchair scooter watching the sparkling water lap along the shoreline, that expanse might as well have been a path up the side of a steep, rocky mountain.

Tears welled up in her eyes from frustration, disappointment and the ever so familiar sting of being reminded, yet again, of her limitations. It was a sunny, hot summer day and she just wanted to dip her toes in the cool, clear water.

Instead, she sat in a parking lot at the Harrisville State Park – the third place in Alcona County where she tried to get to the water's edge that day – trying to fight back tears and watching others play in the sand and splash in the waves.

"I always do the best that I can to stay positive despite the many abilities that have been taken away from me by this disease but, it was very sad and upsetting not to even be able to get to the water," explained Amy Stevens, a Spruce resident who was diagnosed with muscular dystrophy at the age of 12. Due to the progression of her disease, she has not been able to stand or walk at all for over 11 years and uses a scooter full time for mobility.

The dream of putting her toes in the water in her own community was an ever-present longing as the summer unfolded. Through the course of an Internet search Amy found an article about a beach access system which she shared on a friend's Facebook page. She asked her friend, Warren MacNeill of Harrisville, to look into getting it put in at Harrisville State Park.

The saying, "Many hands make light work," couldn't apply more to what unfolded over the course of about 10 months in the effort to bring Amy's dream of access across the beach a reality.

With a combined effort of a number of people and funds from a variety of sources, her dream came true last Tuesday. A Brock Dock beach access system was installed on the beach at Harrisville State Park's campground.

Amy was the first to roll on it over the sand to the water's edge. That day, the tears she shed were of sheer joy and gratitude.

She was followed across the beach closely by Art Talbot of Harrisville, who happened to be going through the park with his wife when the installation was happening. Talbot uses a walker and had not been able to go out onto the beach for several years before last week.

"It is easy to take abilities and access for granted but it is not fun to sit on the sidelines," Amy said. "We want to put our feet in the sand and our toes in the water too. Now we will be able to, at least at the state park in Harrisville."

The dream to reality process, which began with MacNeill last summer, quickly expanded with the help and support of many people. MacNeill, who was unsure of how to "make this happen" as Amy had directed, had the support of Eric Ostrander, unit supervisor for Harrisville

Harmon, Shultz qualify for state track meet

By Hope Smith
Sports Writer

The Alcona varsity track team traveled to East Jordan High School last Saturday to compete in the Michigan High School Athletic Association Division 4 Regional Track and Field meet. Alcona athletes competed with runners and throwers from Posen, Whittemore-Prescott, Harbor Springs, Johannesburg-Lewiston, East Jordan, Indian River-Inland Lakes, Hillman, Onaway, Fairview, Hale, Rogers City, Mio, Pellston and Gaylord St. Mary high schools.

In order to qualify for the state finals held in Grand Rapids, Mich. on June 4, athletes had to finish in the top two places in their events, or have an additional qualifying time to go. The top eight finishers in each event at Regionals receive a medal.

This year Alcona will send two athletes from the girls team -- senior Torie Harmon and junior Brooke Shultz. Harmon finished first in the 400M dash with 1:01.20 and 800M run with 2:28.03. Shultz qualified in pole vault with a jump of 8'03" beating her personal record of 8'00".

Overall, Alcona's boys team finished in eighth place with 30 points and the girls team finished in sixth place with 42 points.

"All our athletes gave us their best today and I am proud of them all! I am very excited for Torie Harmon and Brooke Shultz for qualifying for the state meet in Grand Rapids," said head coach Larry Spare.

State Park. However, funding for a project like this was nonexistent in the park's budget. Ostrander explained to MacNeill that while this was a "want," it wasn't in the scope of other "needs" the park had and budgeting constraints put this type of project at the end of a long wish-list.

Throughout the winter much research went into finding an access system that would be the best for the park and its staff who would install and maintain it each year and, of course, funding sources.

MacNeill was assisted by his friend Dan Mullen, who was the Roscommon district supervisor for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Parks and Recreation Division at the time.

Once the accessible product was chosen and the cost determined — $10,400 — funding source exploration began and more people became involved. "This would not have happened without Eric (Ostrander) and Dan (Mullen). Eric was very easy to work with and was very dedicated to the project," MacNeill said. "Dan, with his experience within the parks division, knew how to secure funding. Sue Keller, president of the Friends of Negwegon and a board member on the Northeast Michigan Community Foundation, suggested that Eric apply for a grant."

"We did all of this at just the right pace," Ostrander said. "Special projects like this take time... it takes time to work out what works and funding... we had really good feedback about Barton Builders (distributors of Brock Dock systems). We received a matching funds allocation from the Gaylord district and a grant from the Northeast Michigan Community Foundation, plus community donations.

"Other than the Hunter's Safety program and the Halloween activities, I don't remember another project where the community made donations for something in the park. This is not a large community and it blows my mind that people would be willing to help. That in itself is thrilling. You hear about it in larger communities, but I didn't realize something like this could be done here."

Mullen enlisted the help of Rich Hill, Gaylord district supervisor of the parks and recreation division, who allocated a $5,000 matching grant. The community foundation awarded a $3,000 grant. The Lincoln Lions and Harrisville Lions clubs donated $500 each and $1,400 came from donations from local individuals and businesses.

"I (am) extremely proud of the community to rally around us like they did. It's a wonderful addition to the park... it's certainly needed and wanted. It will benefit all types of people from parents with kids in strollers to others who can't cross the sand," Mullen said. "It just shows what can happen when people put their heads together. If this project had not been community driven, it probably wouldn't have happened."

Appreciative doesn't begin to describe how Amy was (and still is) feeling last Tuesday as she watched park personnel and volunteers unload the Brock Dock sections and put them together — each piece bringing her closer to the water's edge. Her uncontrollable enthusiasm and gratitude turned the task into a special occasion.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor,
With great sadness I saw the horrific accident at the intersection of Poor Farm and Walker Road that took the life of a great man.

There have been numerous accidents on this intersection over the past 14 years that I have lived in the great community of Harrisville. Cars are traveling at a very high rate of speed on Poor Farm Road and many drivers are not observing the stop sign on Walker Road.

We need to find a way to put an end to these accidents. I believe a four-way stop with a flashing light should be in place. Also, a marked speed limit of 45 miles per hour on Poor Farm Road would greatly improve the situation.

I think none of us wants to see any more people getting hurt or killed on this very dangerous intersection. Let's do something about it!

E-Commerce Exchange Area

The Alcona County Sheriff's Department is now providing a secure venue for citizens of Alcona County to complete e-commerce transactions. According to Alcona County Sheriff Douglas Atchison, with the increase of items being sold and purchased over the Internet through websites such as Craigslist and others, there becomes a need for people to complete transactions face to face. Unfortunately, some of those meetings have not gone well.

He explained that local businessman, Mark Sullivan, brought the idea to him for consideration. "Providing two reserved parking slots in a secured location, under 24-hour video surveillance, located in the west parking lot of the sheriff's office was the least we could do," Atchison said. He explained the location -- the parking lot on the west side of the sheriff's department is well lit, open to public view and the video is fed directly into 911. For more information, call the sheriff's department at (989) 724-6271.

How to pick a Medicare Advantage plan

Dear Savvy Senior,
I'm approaching 65 and am interested in a Medicare Advantage plan to cover my health care and medications. What tips can you provide to help me pick a plan?

Medicare Shopper

Dear Shopper,
Medicare Advantage plans have become increasingly popular among retirees over the past 10 years, as more than 30 percent of Medicare participants are now enrolled in an Advantage plan. Here are some tips and tools to help you pick a plan that fits your needs.

First, let's start with a quick review. Medicare Advantage plans (also known as Medicare Part C) are government approved health plans sold by private insurance companies that you can choose in place of original Medicare. The vast majority of Advantage plans are managed-care policies such as HMOs or PPOs that require you to get your care within a network of doctors.

If you join an Advantage plan, the plan will provide all of your Part A (hospital insurance) and Part B (medical insurance) coverage. Some plans even offer extra benefits like vision, dental and hearing, and most plans include Part D prescription drug coverage too.

You also need to know that the monthly premiums for many Advantage plans are cheaper than if you got original Medicare, plus a separate Part D drug plan and a Medigap policy, but their deductibles and copays are usually higher. That makes these plans better suited for healthier retirees.

To help you pick a plan, a good first step is to call the office managers of the doctors you use and find out which Advantage plans they accept, and which ones they recommend. Then go to the Medicare Plan Finder tool at Medicare.gov/find-a-plan and type in your ZIP code or your personal information to compare health plans with drug coverage in your area.

This tool also provides a five-star rating system that evaluates each plan based on past customer satisfaction and quality of care the plan delivers. When comparing, here are some key points to consider:

- Total costs: Look at the plan's entire pricing package, not just the premiums and deductibles. Compare the maximum out-of-pocket costs plus the copays and coinsurance charged for doctor office visits, hospital stays, visits to specialists, prescription drugs and other medical services. This is important because if you choose an Advantage plan, you're not allowed to purchase a Medigap policy, which means you'll be responsible for paying these expenses out of your own pocket.

- Drug coverage: Check the plan's formulary – the list of prescription drugs covered – to be sure all the medications you take are covered without excessive co-pays or requirements that you try less expensive drugs first.

- Dental, vision and hearing: Some Advantage plans come with dental, vision and hearing benefits, but are often limited.

Savvy Senior

Get the details on what exactly is covered.

- Coverage while traveling: Most Advantage plans limit you to using in-network doctors only within a service area or geographic region, so find out what's covered if you need medical care when you're away from home.

- Out-of-network coverage: Check to see what's covered if you want to see a specialist in a hospital that is not in a plan's network. You can get a list of doctors and hospitals that take part in a plan on the plan's website.

- Retiree benefits: If you have employer-based retiree health coverage, be sure you speak with the benefits manager, because signing up for Medicare Advantage may void your coverage.

Once you've selected a plan you can enroll either on the Medicare.gov website, over the phone at (800) MEDICARE, directly with your chosen plan or through an insurance broker.

If you need some help choosing a plan contact your State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) at Shiptacenter.org. Also see the HealthMetric Research Cost Share Report at Medicare-NewsWatch.com that lists the best Advantage plans based on health status.

ton of Barton Builders in Grand Rapids, Mich. were moved by the experience. "Pat and I are the only ones who do deliveries," Carrie Barton said. "Usually, we assist with installation and we've seen people using Brock Docks at other locations like Ludington, Mich. and Pere Marquette State Park in Grafton, Ill. But, this was the first time we got to meet someone like Amy who will use it and who has been sitting on the asphalt wanting to get to the water... to hear their stories and see their reaction... This was the neatest experience we've had - ever."

Amy's enthusiasm has spread not just through the community, but also virally with a Facebook post she made last week that shared the news of beach access at the park. She received hundreds of comments and there are more than 150 shares of the post - something which surprised MacNeill.

"The fact that people have made kind of a big deal about this is the larger story - I think," he said. "I know that doing the right thing and filling a need is important. But, I didn't realize how important this was to Amy until last week. She didn't want this for herself, she wanted to share it. This is for the community - everyone in the community. And, community involvement makes it even more special.

"The comments from people (on Facebook) show some envy that they don't have something like this in their communities. It feels good to be envied instead of being envious... It makes me ask 'what else can we do?'"

Amy is already looking forward to the Fourth of July holiday weekend when family members will be camping at the park, and this year, for the first time, she will be able to spend time on the beach with them and watch the fireworks from the shoreline - not from the asphalt parking lot.

"I want to say thank you to everyone involved for all that you have done to make the ramp a reality so our beach will be accessible for all. I may have been the spark of inspiration but, you have been the flame caring enough to do the work to raise awareness and the funds needed to make it happen," Amy said. "I sincerely appreciate that as I know all of those on wheels who will roll behind me in the future will appreciate it too. Thank you for looking at the beach through my eyes and perspective. If everyone cared enough to do that, our world would be a much more accessible place for all - as it should be.

"A special thank you to the state park crew who were there help put the Brock Dock together. It was a beautiful day and there were many tears in everyone's eyes as they shared in the excitement, knowing the positive difference they were a part of making in the lives of many that day. Thank you also to everyone who has donated money to help fund the accessibility of our beach. I hope everyone will visit the park to see it soon and that those in surrounding communities will follow Harrisville's example and care enough to do what it takes to make their beaches accessible for all too," she said.

On it

By Warren MacNeill

Facebook is a phenomenon that can drown careers or move mountains. On June 25 of last year I received a Facebook message from my friend, Amy, about making Michigan beaches handicap accessible. She sent me a link about a five-foot wide mat system that allows this to happen. She wanted to see this at Harrisville State Park. She told me I could make it happen.

This seemed to be a good idea but, why would she entrust this project with me? I do not work for the park. I am not political. I am just a "skunk cop." What could I do other than mention it to someone else?

This was, by far, my busiest time of year. I was training a new recruit — one more thing on my plate and it was going to break. I did the normal guy pacification thing. I told her, "On it."

A few days later, while working the Fourth of July weekend, I did my cursory drive-through patrol at Harrisville State Park. As I was going through, I kept hearing a persistent squeaking noise. When I approached the new bath house, I was blocked by a group of young children on bicycles (my favorite). While I was sitting and waiting for the bikes to clear that squeaking noise became louder. I asked my recruit if he knew what that noise was. He said, end was, her face noticeably changed. She told me about sitting at the bath house at the top of a handicap ramp watching all of her family a short 100 feet away. They played and sat together on the beach as she sat at the top of the handicap ramp that ends abruptly into the sand. For her and her scooter this was a ramp to nowhere, a ramp that reminded her of what she could not do — she could not cross the sand.

My shoulders hunched. I was hit in the heart as I heard her say, "Wouldn't this be a good place for an accessible beach mat?" I made an excuse to myself by thinking, I did my part, I mentioned it to someone else.

Amy said just once she would like to feel like everyone else. She wanted to be a part of life and not apart from life. "I want to play the game, not always watch the game. I want one time to feel what it is like to dip my toes in the waters of Lake Huron at Harrisville."

My personal excuse was scooter, squeaked her horn and scooted away, leaving me with a task and no excuses.

Without knowing it, Amy made me see this beach through her eyes; I saw the beach a little differently. She turned sympathy into understanding. At that moment, I didn't feel very good about myself. I had dropped the ball. I needed to pick it back up. Her positive attitude made me think about a story I heard about a little boy and a farmer.

One day, a farmer was putting up a sign that read, "For Sale, Puppies." While he was nailing up the sign he felt a tug on his overalls. He looked down and saw a little boy who said, "Mister, I want to buy a puppy." The farmer told the little boy that the puppies came from very good stock and were rather expensive. The little boy eagerly reached into his pocket and pulled out 45 cents. He looked up to the farmer and asked if he had enough. The farmer laughed at the little boy's handful of coins and said,

"It could be the girl in the wheelchair closing in behind us." I looked in my rear view mirror and saw that I was being pursued by a wheelchair scooter operated by my friend, Amy. The squeaking noise came from the scooter's horn which was meant for store aisles not as a pursuit siren. In addition to the squeaking noise was also a squawking noise that sounded like my name.

I stepped out of my truck to greet Amy. After a short scolding addressing her full-circle campground pursuit, Amy told me about her weekend. She talked about her family get-together at the park and how nice the weekend was for them at the beach. When I asked how her week-drying and eroding like the sand castles kids build on the beach.

Knowing Amy, I knew that she was not one to look for pity and she was not just complaining. Without even a pause, she talked about a portable mat system which allows wheelchair access to the beach. She told me about places that had this and how people in chairs loved them. We looked at all the accessibility the park has, especially the bath house, but one thing was missing, a handicap beach access.

We sat and discussed how many people this system would help. Then, she looked at me and said, "Warren, make this happen." Amy turned the knob on her

"It's enough to take a look." He called for his dog and out of the shed came a big, beautiful golden retriever, followed by five bounding balls of fur.

They ran around and jumped on the little boy. A few seconds later, struggling through the door and tumbling down the ramp, was a much smaller puppy with crooked legs. This little puppy wriggled up to the boy with the same enthusiasm and need for attention as her litter mates. The small puppy never gave up, even though it was knocked over and trampled by the flurry of puppyhood.

After a few minutes, the boy emerged out of the puppy pile and asked the farmer how much for the little one. The farmer scoffed at the question, telling the boy that he didn't want that one because it's the runt and will never be able to run and play with him like the other dogs. The boy pulled up his pant legs revealing silver braces that attempted to hold his legs straight. The boy said, "I want a puppy that understands." Pulling himself up taller, the boy asked again, "how much for the little one?" The farmer said, "Son, love. Love is enough."

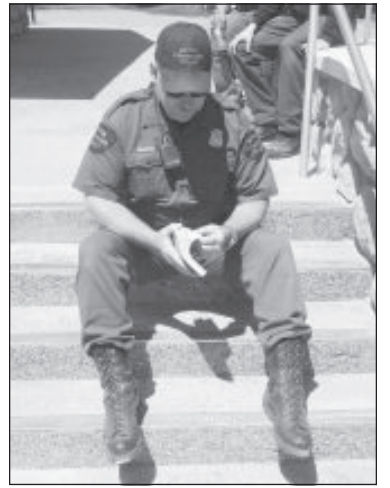

During our conversation I realized Amy was thinking about others more than herself. Like the puppy, she "understands." Her story helped me to understand; even a small thing to one person can be much larger to others.

Over the winter, a couple of friends and I have been working on this. We found some grant money and matching funds from the state as well as receiving some personal donations. We are still a little short, but we made it happen. On May 17 the Brock Dock beach access system was delivered and installed.

We think of this as a gift to our community. It's an investment in our future. It's not only Amy's way to the beach, but it's a way for everyone to cross the sand. Sometimes we all need a little help "crossing the sand."

When we finished installing the system, Amy rolled down the ramp out to the water's edge. She came back, looked at me with tears in her eyes and said, "Last June I asked you to make this happen and you said, 'on it.' Now, I am 'on it.'"

This statement hit me 10 times harder than when she called me out after I brushed her off last June. I had no idea how important this project was to her. My knees buckled and I had to sit on the steps at the bath house. I tried to make it look like I was moving to her eye level as she talked about being on the beach or how happy she was that this happened.

The truth was much different. I was overcome with emotion because I knew how close this was to not happening. My original, "on it" was just words. I won't deny that I wanted it to happen, but my intention was to push it off on someone else. I am so glad that Amy showed me life through her eyes and also showed me the true meaning of, "on it."

This is the 25th anniversary of the Americans with Disability Act (ADA). The sad truth is there is no way the entire world can be made ADA accessible. Our state has made great strides, but not enough. Alcona County has over 24 miles of Lake Huron shoreline; the state of Michigan has 3,224 miles of shoreline. Amy was asking to share a very small portion of it.

Following through on a promise is extremely important. Failing to keep your word can have marked effects, while keeping your promise generally cannot be measured. This time it can — it was five feet.

Careful Cardinals

It takes some time before parent cardinals bring their babies into my yard. They tuck them neatly away in an area behind my fence. I know they're there because I can hear them peeping. That's my cue to put out extra high-protein foods such as sunflower chips, peanuts, suet nuggets and safflower seed.

Student art showcase features many mediums

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

Artistic renderings of many different mediums were showcased at the annual Alcona High School Student Showcase last week. The well attended event gave parents, grandparents and friends an opportunity to see what fine art and industrial art teachers have inspired their students to create.

The showcase featured 150 pieces of art by students in Erich Carlson's art classes and many award winning industrial art pieces by students from Tim Campbell's industrial art classes (see industrial arts article in next week's edition).

Carlson, who has been teaching at the Alcona Community Schools for 16 years, said he was pleased with the exhibit and the talent of his students. He strives to help his students think out of the box when it comes to art and employs an "It's all right to fail," approach to his teaching because "art is a compilation of multiple right answers."

Exhibited pieces included everything from three dimensional art to watercolor to color abstract forms and line drawings using words which represent the image. There was even a nature scene painted by senior student, Jessica Grove, on turkey feathers — one of Carlson's favorite mediums for his own artwork.

One painting (still in progress) depicted the thoughtful expression of a champion horse by Abby Franklin. According to Carlson, the owners of the horse offered Franklin free stud service to her mare in exchange for the painting.

Sixty of the showcased pieces just came back from being exhibited at Art in the Loft in Alpena where they were featured along with other schools from around northeastern Michigan during the month of April. Several Alcona students featured in that exhibit won People's Choice Awards including a piece by Raegen Eller, of a young girl swimming with swim fins on her arms, which won Best in Show.

Carlson is a talented artist in his own right, who has created various wildlife paintings for the National Wild Turkey Federation, Ducks Unlimited, Whitetails Unlimited, and other wildlife organizations. He displays some of his paintings of fish, deer and birds in his classroom with the hope that students can gain perspective and insight from them.

Since the majority of his own art is made from materials harvested from nature including feathers, birch bark, cedar and an occasional deer antler shed, Carlson reaches out to his students to try new and unexpected mediums.

Each year Carlson has his seniors paint a ceiling tile for his classroom which depicts something they love, will miss after graduation or whatever they wish. As a result, the ceiling in his classroom is a colorful gallery of inspiration.

A new request for his talent came when industrial arts student Brendan Nelson asked Carlson to sketch drawings of woodland creatures which Nelson transferred and etched onto the top of a ping pong table he crafted in Campbell's woodshop class. The table, which was also at the student showcase, placed second in the Michigan Industrial Technology Education Society (MITES) competition.

Carlson said while this year's classes were filled with creative high school students, the eighth grade class moving up is equally talented, if not more so, and he thinks it will be very interesting and exciting to have students of that caliber to teach.

For more information on Carlson, visit his website, fish-fur-feathers.com.

Save-the-sate for free fishing weekend

Don't miss the chance to fish for free this June as part of the 2016 Summer Free Fishing Weekend. On Saturday, June 11 and Sunday, June 12 both residents and visitors can fish without a license. All other fishing rules and regulations still apply.

Events are being planned across the state for this summer's Free Fishing Weekend to provide fun opportunities for those new to the sport to try their hand at landing a big one. To find events, visit Michigan.gov/freefishing.

Northeast Lower Peninsula May 19

• Alpena: Those able to get out did catch some walleye in the late evening and before sunrise. Most were trolling body baits, rapalas, reef runners or hot-n-tots in dark colors like black and purple. Pier and shore fishing was slow but those fishing in the late evening did have some luck.

• Thunder Bay River: Steelhead were still making their way up to the 9th Street Dam. Flies, spoons, spinners and body baits worked best.

• Oscoda: Pier fishing was slow with the cold water temperatures. Some anglers were able to catch a few lake trout in shallow waters. Those in search of walleye had limited success when casting body baits or drifting crawlers.

• AuSable River: Steelhead were still moving up into the river in good numbers.

• Higgins Lake: Boats trolling rapalas, bombers and body baits caught lake trout in 80 to 110 feet. Anglers found fish in 40 to 60 feet when using minnows.

• Houghton Lake: Anglers are getting a few walleye here and there when trolling leech rigs or hot-n-tots in charrtreuse or wonderbread. Crappie were still being caught in the canals just after sunset. Bigger fish were caught out in the lake but you have to find them. A few bluegills were caught in the flats on leaf worms. Bass fishing was good especially for smallmouth when using leeches or crawlers. Some pike were also caught.

• Tawas: Pier fishing was slow. A couple of Atlantic salmon were caught on large gray shiners. A few walleye were caught off the pier at night, and also down behind the state police post. The few boats that went out were heading south toward Alabaster.

• Tawas River: Shore anglers caught the occasional bass or walleye.

• AuGres: Boat anglers trolling in 15 to 35 feet off Whitestone Point, Point Lookout, and Pointe AuGres caught walleye on crankbaits and crawler harnesses. Shore anglers at the mouth of the Pine River near Standish caught some freshwater drum and channel cats.

• AuGres River: Shore anglers fishing the lower river caught a few pike when casting lures or channel cats when still-fishing with crawlers.

• Cheboygan: The fish cleaning station was still closed. Fishing on the big lake slowed with the cold weather and high winds. Conditions and catch rates should improve this week.

• Cheboygan River: Is still producing some steelhead and suckers but the bite for both species has slowed. Walleye were caught on stick baits, crawlers and by those jigging. Several pike and smallmouth bass were caught throughout the river.

• Mullett Lake: Fishing pressure was light due to high winds. Those that did manage to get out caught a couple smallmouth bass on tube jigs and crank baits.

• Rogers City: A few lake trout were caught near Seagull Point, Forty Mile Point, Swan Bay or Adams Point. Try just off the bottom in 60 feet with five colors of lead with spoons and cowbells or dodgers with spin-glos near the bottom.

• Presque Isle: Has been producing some really nice Atlantic salmon especially for those heading south towards Stoneport. Be sure to run your lines off boards and away from the boat.

Jewel Lake Camp Ground Being Built

May 26, 1966 - The U. S. Forest Service reports that work is well underway in the completing of the first camping loop at the Jewel Lake campground at Barton City. The road and camping spurs in the area were finished last year. This spring's work will be aimed at developing fourteen family camping units and the installation of a well and sanitation facilities. In addition, a swimming beach at the campground and one adjoining the boat landing are being developed. The beach and small picnic area at the boatlanding has been designed with the interest of area people in mind and should be available for use by mid-June.

The campground area proper will be closed to travel and use to facilitate construction. Barring delays in shipment of materials the cam pground will open in early July. Under the Land and Water conservation act a Federal Recreation area entrance sticker will be required for overnight camping at Jewel Lake. Plans and preliminary developments for the campground call for an additional sixteen family units which could be completed by July of 1967. This would bring the total capacity of the campground up to thirty units.

Parkside Drive-In adds improvements

May 26, 1966 - When the Parkside Drive-In opens Saturday for its third summer season, customers will discover that some changes have been made, according to owners and managers, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Gauthier, of St. Clair Shores.

Alterations to the drive-in, along U. S. 23, Harrisville, are three-fold. The grounds to the west of the parking lot have been cleared and leveled to permit installation of a miniature golf course and picnic areas; the building has been remodeled and enlarged; and a new system for providing more efficient service to customers has been developed.

The miniature golf course, which will be lighted at night, occupies about 40,000 square feet, has 18 holes, and contains a variety of colorful hazards to add challenge to the game. Gauthier report that he has been constructing the wood hazards himself, working in his garage-workshop during the winter months. Although the course will not be completed by Memorial Day weekend, Gauthier says that announcement of its readiness for use will be made soon. (Watch the Review advertising columns.)

The Parkside building has undergone extensive remodeling with the design and construction work being carried out by Gauthier and Carl Haring of Harrisville.

"We needed more storage space more work space, a more efficient arrangement of equipment, and a more effective way to handle customers during the busy meal hours", Gauthier explains to resolve these concerns, the owners have rearranged the Parkside work centers and have added a 16 ft. by 28 ft. dining area which overlooks the golf course. The inside dining area is paneled with sand and shell colortone, has an exposed beam ceiling, and on opening day, will contain sufficient number of round tables and chairs to seat 28 persons. Eventually they plan to expand the inside dining capacity to 50 persons.

Answer: Depending on their size, raindrops fall between 7-18 mph.

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Spotlight on Mars

Mars is at opposition on Sunday which means that it is opposite to the sun with the Earth in between. Mars is visible all night just like when the moon, each month, is at opposition and is in its full phase, rising at sundown and setting at sunrise. It is around opposition time that Mars is nearest to Earth and brightest in the sky because Earth is passing Mars in its yearly orbit around the sun. Closest approach happens on the 30th when the Red Planet will be 46.8 million miles from Earth. As oppositions go, that's not too shabby, but it was nothing like the opposition of August 27, 2003 when Mars was a scant 34.65 million miles, its closest distance to Earth in 60,000 years. The next opposition of Mars takes place on July 27, 2018 and will again place the Red Planet very near to Earth at 35.9 million miles. That will cause Mars to shine with an intensity of nearly twice that of its present brightness. By 11 p.m. Mars will be easily visible low in the SSE, as luminous as Jupiter appears in our early evening sky. Whereas Jupiter appears white, the Red Planet will have a warmer (pinkish) hue. Other bright companions are also lighting up the sky near Mars. To Mars's left is yellowish Saturn which will be at opposition on June 3. The brilliant moon is also in the picture, between and above Mars and Saturn on the 22nd and to the left of these worlds afterwards. Below is Antares, one of two bright (first magnitude) red supergiant stars in the sky. In Greek, Antares means the rival of Ares which is Mars. You'll understand how appropriate these names are when you see them together. You can also watch Mars and Saturn jog to the right of their present locations against the starry background. That's called retrograde (backwards) motion and is a result of a faster moving Earth passing a slower moving planet. When a slower moving vehicle is passed on a highway, the slower car or truck appears to shift backwards relative to the faster moving vehicle. Mars retrogrades through late June and Saturn through mid-August. Good observing... www.astronomy.org

- On June 11, 1509, King Henry VIII of England marries Catherine of Aragon, the first of his eventual six wives. When Catherine failed to produce a male heir, Henry divorced her against the will of the Roman Catholic Church, thus precipitating the Protestant Reformation in England.
- On June 9, 1772, colonists, angered by the British Parliament's passing of the Townshend Acts restricting colonial trade, board the HMS Gaspee, an armed British customs schooner, and set it aflame. When British officials arrived to investigate the incident, they found no one willing to identify those involved.

Strange But True

By Samantha Weaver

- It was early 20th-century Irish author Robert Wilson Lynd who made the following sage observation: "The belief in the possibility of a short decisive war appears to be one of the most ancient and dangerous of human illusions."
- If you find yourself with a dull pair of scissors, try this trick: Fold a piece of sandpaper in half, rough side out, and make repeated cuts until the blades are sharp again.
- In 1980, 16 Danish seamen issued a Mayday call and abandoned their sinking ship, leaping into the frigid waters of the North Sea. Despite the fact that the water of the North Sea is so cold that it can kill a person in half an hour, all 16 sailors, who all were wearing life jackets, survived three times that long, and all were alive when rescuers arrived 90 minutes later. The sailors were immediately taken below decks on the rescue ship, wrapped in blankets and given warm drinks. Seems like a happy ending, doesn't it? Nope. After reaching supposed safety, all 16 of the rescued sailors suddenly dropped dead.
- The word "infant" is derived from the Latin word "infans," which means "unable to speak."
- If you're a pet owner, you probably know that the epidemic of obesity is not limited to humans; many pets are overweight, too. You might be surprised to learn, though, that some pet owners choose to deal with the problem in a way that we usually associate only with people: liposuction. Yes, you can get cosmetic surgery for your pets.
- Those who study such things say that in Norway, there are 1,800 lakes that have no fish at all.
