Haynes Township treasurer retires after 45-year career

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

“What’s the difference between being a tax collector and a taxidermist? The taxidermist takes only your skin.”

~ Mark Twain

Being the tax collector isn’t always a fun job, but for almost 50 years one resident has been the Haynes Township treasurer -- in that time she was unopposed in every election and maintained an unblemished record.

Maxine Sterner, who held the township treasurer seat for 45 years, has decided it is time to step down from the position. Ginger Campbell has been appointed as her replacement.

Maxine explained the job wasn’t always filled with good will. “I ticked some people off. You don’t get to take time off when you are collecting taxes. One New Year’s Eve we went out to a party at night and a man came to the door wanting to pay his taxes. He was really angry when my daughter wouldn’t accept payment.

“I had people who came to pay me with change. One man threw his money on my front steps and paid in $1 bills. They weren’t really mad at me, they just didn’t want to pay their taxes. Over the years it got better. Even some of the meanies came to know me after a while and got better about how they paid,” Maxine said.

She came to Alcona County as Maxine Kudla with her parents and an older brother when she was in the first grade. The family moved from Cleveland, Ohio. Her father had had tuberculosis and was in a sanitarium prior to moving to Michigan. He thought the fresh northeast Michigan air would be beneficial to his health and his family’s health.

Unfortunately, a few years after their move, Maxine’s older brother was accidentally killed in a hunting accident, leaving Maxine as an only child.

Despite that loss, she thrived in the community, attending Alcona Community Schools and playing with friends in the woods. “I always would pretend to be a movie star. We’d go to the movies theater in Harrisville and shopped the stores in Alpena,” Maxine said.

Craftmakers’ Cabin celebrates despite possible closure

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

Michigan Log Cabin Day is June 25 and the artisans at the Craftmakers’ Cabin in Harrisville are making plans to celebrate, despite the fact that it may be their last year to do so.

The association is running very low on members to keep the storefront open and is critically low on funds to maintain the aged and deteriorating log cabin it’s housed in.

Still, the association is optimistic and plans to celebrate Log Cabin Day next on Sunday by offering three different adult and child craft experiences; making boxes out of used cards, rock painting and making a miniature log cabin from a kit. The log cabin kits will be $10 per kit, but the other crafts are free of charge.

“This year marks the log cabin’s 80th year of existence and the 35th anniversary of the Craftmakers’ Cabin Association, we are proud of that,” said Pat Newcomb, chairman of the Craftmakers’ Cabin Association. She explained that there are growing concerns of this being a ‘sink or swim’ year for the association.

The Craftmakers’ Cabin Association began as a craft cooperative of local artists and crafts people in 1982. It was established under Michigan State University Extension (MSUE) home economist

Becky Counsellor’s direction with a rural development grant from MSUE.

According to its historical data, it took the cooperative less than two months that year to gather interest, obtain support from various governmental entities and organize the cottage industry. Over 50 individuals were on the founding members list in 1982.

The popularity of the cabin kept it open year-round, and seven days a week during summer months. Now the cabin is only open between Memorial Day and Labor Day.

Nancy Miller, secretary of the association, echoed Newcomb’s concern of the fate of the Craftmakers’ association, saying it was getting very difficult to find members to keep the building open for sales. As a result, she has had to adjust the hours of the cabin to being open fewer days per week, which will reflect in reduced sales of the crafters consigned items in the cabin.

Members are artists and craft consignors who sell their handmade items in the cabin. They agree to work a minimum of 10 days per season and receive a substantial discount on their annual membership dues and increased profits of their consigned goods for their efforts.

Currently, there are about 14 consignors who sell their artistic crafts from the cabin, but only five are members willing to work in the store.

To the Editor,
Our representative, Jack Bergman, responded to my call to ask him not to vote for the House's American Health Care Act. Though I appreciate the response, it only reinforced that he will keep peddling the Kool-Aid our Republican-led government is feeding us regarding health care.

His letter (and the AHCA bill) ignores two policies that made Obamacare work because the Republicans are determined to drop these from any plan.

One is the "all in" concept requiring that all Americans obtain insurance. The reality is that "all in" is ultimately the only fair and rational policy for fixing healthcare. The young and temporarily healthy may feel they should not be forced to buy insurance, but they too will age and need it. Additionally, every time an uninsured "youngster" arrives at the ER, we all pay more to cover for them. It is fair that the system is supported by everyone.

The second issue Bergman fails to address is that this bill is a huge tax break to the very rich and the already swimming-in-cash healthcare industry. It is time they paid their fair share, especially if it means coverage for millions of citizens.

Please know that the Trump administration is not paying premiums the way the Obamacare law requires, which is one of the major reasons premiums are going up and marketplaces are currently fragile. Obamacare does need tweaks, but the Republicans could work to fix it, verses artificially sabotaging it and ignoring the basic ideas that make it financially work.

The 1st Congressional District that Bergman represents is one of the most elderly and economically stagnant districts in the nation. The AHCA would be a disaster to us, and Bergman, marching to the drum of strict partisan politics, seems to have an easy time ignoring our needs.

Students continue school project into summer

By Ellie Thomas
Staff Writer

Although summer break has started for the students at Alcona High School, three incoming ninth grade students will be working on a community service project that began as a school assignment.

Nick Rasmussen, Nick Somers, and Jacob Sytek, former students in Christie Thomas' eighth grade English classes, have decided to carry a fundraising effort for new basketball jerseys into their summer vacation.

Their project began as a Make A Difference (MAD) project. For the fifth year running, students pick a cause, local or global, then raise awareness and hold fundraisers, explained Thomas.

These three students chose to raise money to buy new uniforms for the eighth grade boys basketball team. The jerseys in use now are over 10 years old, and have been overlooked for replacement in the past, according to Ryan Bilbey, the new Alcona High School boys varsity basketball coach.

He has been assisting the boys with the financial portion of the fundraiser and is proud of their initiative. Bilbey said he is excited for them to learn "a few life skills and commitment to the community."

Both Rasmussen and Sytek agreed that the MAD project was key to starting this fundraiser. It gave them the right amount of motivation to begin brainstorming and formulating a plan.

that they are about halfway to their goal. Coach Bilbey estimated that they are about $700 away from purchasing new uniforms. Since the first fundraiser ended on June 2, they are planning on holding a can drive at a later date.

"They like the idea of having new jerseys," Sytek said of the incoming players.

Rasmussen also mentioned that several people have told him what a good job he has done.

Since Rasmussen, Somers, and Sytek will be ninth graders in the next school year, the new uniforms won't be worn by them. This adds a level of compassion and maturity to the whole fundraiser. Coach Bilbey could not be more proud of his young players.

"This is exactly why I wanted to start the Make A Difference project. Students can do so much for their community if they have help starting," Thomas said.

She is very proud of all of her students for all of their hard work. A number of students not only work hard during the school year, but also take their projects outside of the classroom. Thomas hopes future eighth graders will be encouraged to take their assignment further than just the due date.

For more information about donating cans, time, or money, contact Ryan Bilbey at (989) 735-2022.

VFW Post No. 6754 Auxiliary

The June meeting was held with 11 members present including three life members from Washington. Secretary Kathy Cariveau read the minutes from the last meeting. Treasurer Sandy Light gave the current financial report. It was noted that the auxiliary presented flowers at Sally Liske's funeral service.

The Charter was draped for Erma Wyers who went to her heavenly home on May 18 and it was noted that her memorial service will be held on June 17.

President Vichunas advised that the auxiliary will follow the contemporary meeting outline which does not require color bearer floor work. President Vichunas also provided highlights from the District 11 meeting held in Midland, Mich. that she attended on May 7. She advised that Denise Arnold was re-elected to the position of District 11 auxiliary president for 2017-2018.

She also provided the names of the remaining elected officers and stated that president Arnold will keep the chairmanship candidates proposed by Shelby Henry who could not take the position of District 11 President due to personal reasons.

For the good of the order, Norma Alstrom advised that it is acceptable to wear a button or pin depicting the American flag.

The auxiliary was advised that the July meeting will be held on Wednesday, July 5, due to the Fourth of July holiday. The auxiliary meeting begins at 7 p.m.

Middle school track team has successful season

Track season came to a close just before the end of the school year, however, many Alcona Middle School athletes are still basking in the glow of a successful season. According to head coach Kristin Bilbey, there were many personal best times and distances this year and a number of school records were broken.

She explained the team was comprised of 26 athletes: 10 boys and 16 girls in grades sixth through eighth.

"The success of our team was based on the belief that every race counts and that every athlete's contributions were necessary and important. It's paramount, at this age level, to allow athletes to explore as many field and running events as possible, but also to have a lot of fun in the process," Bilbey said.

"Although their great talent was evident in the number of meets won and records broken, what was truly remarkable was their commitment, dedication, and determination, at the middle school level, to compete to the best of their ability. The sportsmanship and positive attitudes of this wonderful group of young athletes and their families made this a truly special season."

Records broken:

400M Relay: 53.29 – Dustin Boboltz, Chris Barnes, Keedon Mills, Ethan Nedwas-Long

According to Bilbey, in meet results, "the girls placed first overall in all meets except one; boys did exceptional as well with six fewer athletes than the girls to compete for points."

The girls won first overall in all meets except Whittemore-Cardinal Invitational, where they placed second, only behind Alpena.

SENIOR LIFESTYLES

Best bicycles for aging baby boomers

Dear Savvy Senior,
My husband and I are interested in getting a couple of bicycles for leisurely exercise and fun, and would like to get your recommendation. We're both approaching 60 and are a little overweight, and it's been a while since we rode.

Easy Riders

Dear Easy,

If you're interested in leisurely, recreational riding for fitness and fun, a great option is a "comfort bike," which is very popular among baby boomers.

A comfort bike is a style of bicycle that's easy on an aging body because it lets you ride in a more comfortable upright position. These bikes have high handlebars so you don't have to hunch over, which eases lower-back strain and reduces pressure on the wrists and hands. They also come with wide tires for a smooth ride, offer fewer gears, and have soft, wide seats to eliminate saddle soreness.

Most comfort bikes also come with shock-absorbing forks and seat posts for additional comfort. And some offer unique design features like an ultra low step-over bar that makes getting on and off easy for people with limited flexibility (like the Biria Easy Boarding at Biria.com), or the "flat-foot" design offered by many manufacturers where the pedals are moved forward, away from the seat. This allows you to get a full-leg extension when you pedal, but keeps the seat in a lower position so when you're stopped, you can put your feet down flat on the ground while seated, which is a great safety feature for older riders.

Most major manufacturers including Electra, Sun, Raleigh, GT, Giant, and Trek all make a line of comfort bikes that costs between $300 and $800 or more depending on its features.

To find a quality comfort bike, your best option is to find a good bike shop in your area. Bikes from big box stores, like Walmart and Target, are mass-market bikes that may be less expensive, but the quality isn't as good and they're typically seven to eight pounds heavier. They also come in only one size, so you're not likely to get a great fit.

Before you buy any bike, be sure you take it for a test ride first to ensure that the seat and fit of the bike is comfortable, the brakes and shifters are easy to use, the gears can go low enough for climbing hills, and the frame and suspension adequately smooth the bumps.

If the comfort bikes don't meet your needs, another popular style among older riders is a recumbent bike. These are the low-to-the-ground, stretched-out frame bikes with La-Z-Boy style seats that allow you to recline with your legs positioned in front of you.

Recumbent bikes are very comfy, easy on the back, arms and shoulders, and aerodynamic which make them ideal for long rides. The disadvantages, because they are low-to-the-ground, they can be harder to balance and maneuver, and are more difficult for other vehicles to see.

If you worry about falling or want more stability when you ride consider a three-wheel recumbent trike. See SunSeeker.bike and Terra-Trike.com for a nice variety, but be aware that recumbent bikes are more expensive, typically ranging between $1,000 and $2,500.

2016 Water Quality Report for The City of Harrisville

This report covers the drinking water quality for the City of Harrisville for the calendar year 2016. This 2016 information is a snapshot of the quality of the water that we provided to you in 2016. Included are details about where your water comes from, what it contains, and how it compares to Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and state standards.

Your water comes from two (2) groundwater wells located at 417 Mill Creek Rd. The state performed an assessment of our source water in 2014. Copies of the reports are available from the Harrisville City Clerk's Office. Our wells were determined to have moderately low susceptibility to contamination.

- Contaminants and their presence in water: Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

- Vulnerability of sub-populations: Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune systems disorders, some elderly and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

- Sources of drinking water: The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs and wells. Our water comes from wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

- Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

- * Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.

- * Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining or farming.

- * Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture and residential uses.

- * Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.

- * Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff, and septic systems.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, the EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems Food and Drug Administration regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which provide the same protection for public health.

Water Quality Data

The table below lists all the drinking water contaminants that we detected during the 2015 calendar year. The presence of these contaminants in the water does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. Unless otherwise noted, the data presented in this table are from testing done January 1 – December 31, 2015. The state allows us to monitor for certain contaminants less than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants are not expected to vary significantly from year to year. All of the data is representative of the water quality, but some are more than one year old.

Terms and abbreviations used below:

- Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG): The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

- Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL): The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

- Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL): The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.

- Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG): The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.

- N/A: not applicable ND: not detectable at testing limit ppb: parts per billion or micrograms per liter ppm: parts per million or milligrams per liter.

- Action Level (AL): The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements that a water system must follow.

Samples collected at the Wellhouse:

Regulated Chemical Contaminants	MCL	MCLG	Our Water	Sample Date	Violation Yes / No	Typical Source of Contaminants
Fluoride (ppm)	4	4	0.17 MG/L	8/17/16	No	Erosion of natural deposits

Unregulated Chemical Contaminants ²	Our Water	Sample Date	Violation Yes / No	Typical Source of Contaminants
Sodium (ppm)	7 MG/L	8/17/2016	N/A	Erosion of natural deposits
Sulfate (ppm)	13 mg/L	8/17/2016	N/A	Erosion of natural deposits

² Unregulated contaminants are those for which EPA has not established drinking water standards. Monitoring helps EPA to determine where certain contaminants occur and whether it needs to regulate those contaminants.

Samples Collected in the Distribution System:

Contaminants Subject to an Action Level	Action Level, MCL, or MRDL	Our Water	Sample Date	Number of Samples Above AL	Typical Source of Contaminants

We will update this report annually and will keep you informed of any problems that may occur throughout the year, as they happen. Copies are available at the Harrisville City Clerk's Office, 200 N. Fifth St., Harrisville, MI 48740. This report will not be sent to you.

We invite public participation in decisions that affect drinking water quality. The Harrisville City Council meets regularly at 7 p.m. on the second Monday of the month at the Harrisville City Clerk's Office at 200 Fifth St., Harrisville MI 48740. For more information about your water, or the contents of this report, contact The City of Harrisville (989)724-6666. For more information about safe drinking water, visit the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency at www.epa.gov/safewater/.

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. The City of Harrisville is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to two minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791 or at <http://water.epa.gov/drink/info/lead>.

Homemakers of America and on the student council. Involvement in sports wasn't an option for her because her mother worked and her father was sickly, so there was no one to drive her to after school activities.

She was among the first class to graduate from the new high school in Lincoln. Shortly after graduation she met her husband, David, at an air show at the Wurtsmith Air Force base in Oscoda. She explained David was in the Air Force and saw her in the crowd and asked someone who she was.

After their marriage, the couple traveled a bit and lived in North Dakota while David served the remainder of his four years. After he left the service, the couple moved to David's hometown, Stanton Island, New York. She said David never liked New York much, but she did.

After the couple's first son was born, Maxine brought him to Haynes Township for a three-week visit. "Dad was sick. I was going to visit for three weeks and the last week David was going to come and visit. When he got here he had everything packed and announced we'd be living here," Maxine said.

She agreed it would be a good place to raise a family. The couple purchased Maxine's parents' home, the home she grew up in and still lives in. The couple had two more children, another son and a daughter.

She became treasurer for the township after Francis Labaza stepped down from the seat. He had a half term remaining. Maxine also worked as a paraprofessional for Alcona Community Schools for 10 years. She would go to work during the day and come home at night to work on the township taxes.

A lot has changed with the treasurer position over the years. When she first started Maxine worked closely with Roy Elliot who was the county treasurer. They used pen and paper then and had to write everything down in a ledger. "I would take the book in to the commissioners and read every name off. Of course, back then it wasn't a whole lot of money. It's changed so much. Now it's over a million dollars," Maxine said.

When computers came into play, the process of recording taxes became quicker, but now the state wants a lot more accounting reports, so it is still quite a bit of work to get the job done.

Over her career Maxine worked with many different township supervisors, but she has only had to work with three clerks, Ted Campbell, Delores Quick and Sharon Schefferly.

She explained many friendships formed during her career, including friendships with other township treasurers such as the late Carole Johnston and the late Mary Kossa.

"When we first started learning the computer, Carole would call me and ask if I wanted to go on a trip. The trip was Carole on her computer and me on mine talking on the phone late into the night going through things step by step. We used to say, 'Don't let me die in office,'" Maxine said.

Maxine knows pretty much everyone in the town, they have either called her or stopped by her home at one time or another. She said seeing two or three people a day doesn't seem like much, but when they each come and have coffee and end up staying an hour or two it adds up and there isn't much time to get anything else done. Still, she is grateful for the many friendships formed.

She decided now was the best time for her exit from the seat because things are changing with the state, there will be new software and a new system. "Everyone has to learn the new system at the same time. I thought this would be the perfect time to step down and let someone else learn with the rest. It's time to have younger blood in the seat," Maxine said.

Maxine hopes Campbell enjoys the position as much as she did. She is thankful for the support her community has had in electing her for all those years. She will miss her duties, and her "little" paycheck, but is looking forward to many new experiences.

She has no immediate plans, except to tend her garden this summer. She and her husband will be traveling more this winter, spending time with friends in Florida, their daughter in Wisconsin and their son in Texas.

National Pollinator Week JUNE 19-25, 2017

Started ten years ago by the Pollinator Partnership and approved by the U.S. Senate, this special week's activities address the urgent issue of declining pollinator populations. It has grown into an international celebration of the valuable ecosystem services provided by bees, birds, butterflies, bats and beetles. The website pollinator.org is filled with kits and activities, planting guides, posters, events and programs to help you explore this issue. - Brenda Weaver

"The fun part is making the items and then selling them in the store, everyone who is a member really enjoys it and usually stays a member for life," Miller said. She explained that in 35 years many of the original members have passed away. She said volunteers are welcomed and appreciated to help keep the cabin open for business and the organization does have a few volunteers, which helps a lot.

Equally concerning to the association is the cost of maintaining the building and its deteriorating condition. "The City of Harrisville owns the building, but we have the responsibility of keeping it up," Miller said.

Over the years, volunteers have offered their time and expertise in helping to maintain the log cabin. The cabin was originally built in 1936-37 by the Work Progress Administration, under the direction of President Roosevelt's efforts to put hungry people back to work during the Depression.

The historic building, which was once an information bureau, needs a new roof and its windows all need re-glazing. Miller was not sure if they would be able to find volunteers to re-glaze the windows and has no idea where the funds for the new roof will come from.

Newcomb and Miller invite all to come and experience the uniqueness of the building and its creative contents. "It's a gift giver's paradise," Miller said.

Visitors will find the displays of handmade goods appealing and plentiful, like maple syrup from the Alcona High School FFA, American Doll clothing, soaps, unique folded paper greeting cards, magnets, pottery, quilts, throws, baby blankets and children's items including sock monkeys and other stuffed animals, needlepoint items, pot holder rugs, stained glass, lighted decorative wreaths, upcycled clothing, pillows, infinity scarves, photographs, jewelry and kitchen items such as potato baking bags, grocery bag holders, crocheted kitchen towels, pot scrubbers, cook books and more.

Keeping true to its origin of being an information bureau, the cabin still offers free brochures and information on local and surrounding northeast Michigan area attractions and interests.

Even if visitors have no desire to purchase anything in the cabin, the crafters still welcome all to stop by and see the uniqueness of the 80-year-old building which features original tables and chairs, a handsome stone fire place with log mantel and a curved log staircase complete with flattened log steps leading to an open loft with an antique cabin vignette.

Miller said some of the original cabin furniture had been covered up for years and they recently rearranged the store to make use of the furniture. The furniture rearrangement also enhanced a more complete view of the cabin and its wares for sale.

"There (are) a lot of people who have come to this area for years, or have lived here for years, yet have never been inside the cabin. Just come in and see the integrity of the building," Newcomb said, "In addition to Log Cabin Day we will be having a craft show with about 14 vendors on the lawn surrounding the cabin the following weekend on July 1 and 2 and we will be open during the Harrisville Harmony craft show on Labor Day weekend."

The Craftmakers' Cabin is located at 106 S. State Street on the south west corner of US-23 and M-72. It will be open special hours on Log Cabin Day, Sunday, June 25 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. with crafts from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Store hours are typically Wednesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 4 p.m. Closed Monday and Tuesday, however, Miller said to call (989) 657-1032 prior to scheduling a visit to make sure they are open during the week.

Shore Fun Beach Run

HealthQuest, a northern Michigan volunteer organization dedicated to inspiring community health and happiness, is presenting the first Shore Fun Beach Run/Walk on Saturday, June 24. The 5K run/walk will take place at Oscoda Beach Park in Oscoda and the course will follow the sandy shoreline of Lake Huron. This will be one of the few runs in the entire state of Michigan to be held entirely on the sand. Along with the 5K event, a one-mile kids run/walk will also be held.

As this is an event that encourages both runners and walkers to enjoy the beach, all ages and fitness levels are encouraged to participate. Proceeds from the Shore Fun Beach Run will benefit HealthQuest's mission to inspire and educate the community to thrive and live healthy, happy, balanced and energetic lives.

The 5K run/walk will begin at 11 a.m. while the kids one-mile run/walk takes place at noon. Further information and preregistration is available at the HealthQuest website, www.healthquest4-you.com. Registration will also be available the day of the event, beginning at 10 a.m. The event is co-presented by the Oscoda-AuSable Chamber of Commerce, which will be hosting its annual "Art on the Beach" in conjunction with the run.

Personal and local

June 16, 1892 ~ Karpel couldn't stand the solitude. Maxamillian Karpel, the Saginaw gentleman who has had a mixed experience of joy and sadness during his brief sojourn in Harrisville, refused to pay the fine which was secured against him in Justice McClatchey's court. This was upon the advice of his attorney, O. H. Smith, who wanted to take the case to the circuit court on certiorari. Karpel, who had the alternative of paying the fine or going to jail for 30 days, was accordingly arrested and passed a day in the county jail pending the arrival of the testimony from Stenographer Hartingh of Tawas, who took the testimony. Karpel wearied of the confinement, however, and on Friday the case was appealed in the ordinary manner and he was released after furnishing security for costs, which was promptly offered him.

An old time custom is gaining well merited favor with a few of our citizens, viz: that of designating the family residence or homestead by a name distinctly its own, which clings to it until time or fortune gives it a new name. For instance, the residence of L. A. Colwell has been duly christened with the name of "Maple Lodge," by which it will be known hereafter. The residence of B. P. Cowley will be known as "St. Bernard's." The residence of ye editor has been known on the quiet among the members of the family as "White Birch Cottage" for two years past. The custom is quite English, you know, but good for all that and is pretty generally adopted in the eastern states and at public resorts. There is no patent on the idea and it is commended to the favorable consideration of all citizens who think there is "no place like home."

On the subject of water in butter, a bulletin of the West Virginia Agricultural station says: It is an easy matter for butter to have such a large quantity of water intermixed with it, that it may amount to an adulteration. It is claimed that as much as 60 percent, of water can be introduced into butter and the whole sold as butter. It is not an uncommon thing for the country butter to come into the markets in the summer time with as much as 30 percent, of water mixed with it. This mixing of water with butter, or the imperfect extraction of water from butter, has an important bearing upon the subject of determining the butter producing capacity of cows, and also of judging the quality of butter upon the market.

Cowley—McClelland .

Married, June 15th inst., at Sacred Heart church, Au Sable, John H. Cowley and Lillian McClelland, both of Harrisville. Miss Marie Cowley acted as bridesmaid and Mr. F. G. Cowley as groomsman. The bride and bridesmaid were attired in travelling costumes, the bride and groom wearing lilies-of-the-valley, the bride's favorite flower. The church was beautifully and artistically decorated with flowers by Prof. Ganthier, the altar being almost a solid mass of flowers to a height of twelve feet. The altar rail was covered with beautiful flowers, large branches of begonia arching over them as they knelt. A grand wedding march was played as the bridal party entered, and soft, sweet music continued throughout the impressive services which lasted for about three-quarters of an hour. Prof. Ganthier presided at the organ throughout the ceremony and played Lohengrin's Wedding March as the bridal party left, the church. An elegant repast was served at 1:30 at the Sherman House, the party including Fr. Mahar and Prof. Ganthier. Mr. and Mrs. Cowley left by steamer Atlantic for a trip down the St. Lawrence and other points of interest. The contracting parties have been residents of Harrisville from childhood and both enjoy a wide circle of acquaintance in the community. The groom are a rising young business man and the bride as a successful public instructor, have won places in the community that entitle them to the best wishes of all for a bon voyage through life.

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Telescopic Solar Eclipse Viewing

At this point you may be saying, Not another article about the August 21 solar eclipse, Gary! As astronomical events go, this sun-moon courtship ranks as one of the biggest occurrences of the early 21st century, except for the April 8, 2024 solar eclipse which will be total in Erie, PA or the serendipitous discovery of a Hale-Bopp-type comet which can be viewed from urban locales. What if you would like to observe the partial phases of this eclipse with binoculars or a telescope? There are two basic and relatively inexpensive methods to attain this goal, but first a warning. Never, never observe the sun directly without proper filtration. If you choose to view the partial phases of the August eclipse with an optical aid, my first suggestion would be to purchase a solar filter(s) to attach onto the front end of your telescope or binoculars. You never filter at the eyepiece end of your scope because telescopes and binoculars are used to gather light, and already the unmagnified sun has tens of thousands of times too much light for the unaided eye to view safely. Remember the old magnifying glass trick where you set a bunch of leaves on fire by concentrating the sun's energy into a focused area? Binoculars and telescopes do the same thing, but with higher precision. To purchase a front end solar filter(s) for your binoculars or telescope, my suggestion would be to go to the Thousand Oaks website, <http://thousandoaksoptical.com/shop/solar-filters/full-aperture-solarlite/> (928-692-8903), but you must act now because the demand is high, and they are a relatively small company located in Kingman, AZ. Locally, Skies Unlimited, 52 Glocker Way, Pottstown, PA 19465 (888-947-2673) has a knowledgeable staff and is well stocked. Using a telescope, you can also project the sun onto a screen. The key here is finding Sol without looking through the telescope. When pointed at the sun, your scopes tube will make the smallest possible shadow on the ground. Your projection area and or telescope should also be baffled so that direct sunlight does not fall onto the screen. Finder scopes, smaller wide-field instruments attached to the main tube, should either be removed or covered so that no one makes the fatal, eye-suicide mistake of looking through them. Also use a cheap eyepiece because all the heat and the light of the sun will be transmitted through the telescope, sometimes damaging the eyepiece lenses. Most importantly, never let your telescope or binoculars unattended because kids do the craziest things, and practice before the event so that on eclipse day everything goes according to plan. Safe solar viewing to all. www.astronomy.org

Strange But True

By Samantha Weaver

- It was 19th-century journalist and women's rights advocate Margaret Fuller who made the following sage observation: "A house is no home unless it contains food and fire for the mind as well as the body."
- There is a patron saint for everything, it seems. You've probably never heard of Saint Drogo of Sebourg, but this 12th-century Flemish noble became the patron saint of those whom others find unattractive. After he turned 18, he got rid of all his wealth, became a shepherd and made several pilgrimages to Rome. On one of these pilgrimages, he was "stricken with an unsightly bodily affliction" and became hideously deformed. In order to spare others the sight of his deformity, he was confined to a small cell attached to his village church. Until the end of his life, 40 years later, he remained there, subsisting only on barley, water and the bread and wine of communion.
- The longest beard ever recorded belonged to a man named Hans N. Langseth. Upon his death in 1927, it was 17.5 feet long. In 1967, the beard was donated to the Smithsonian Institution.
- Those who study such things say that your ears secrete more wax when you're afraid.
- A recent survey by Baskin-Robbins revealed some interesting trends in parenting. It seems that when trying to get kids to do an unpleasant task, dads are 75 percent more likely to use ice cream as a bribe. Also, dads are twice as likely as moms to use ice cream to resolve an argument, and 90 percent of dads give ice cream to kids who need some cheering up.

Veterans Host

By Freddy Graves

Physician ambassadors

The Department of Veterans Affairs has a new program: the Physician Ambassador Program, which pairs volunteer medical personnel with VA medical centers and clinics. Since they will be volunteers, they'll be working for free.

These won't be the nice ladies who bring around a cart of magazines. These will be licensed and trained physicians and clinicians for mental health, cardiac care, emergency medicine, primary care, urgent care, rural care and more. They'll work alongside the health teams in any of the 1,700 VA facilities.

And did I mention that they'll work for free?

I have questions:

--Who is going to check their credentials?

--In the event of a dispute, who does the veteran patient turn to if the medical person in question isn't part of the VA?

--Who has the authority to hire/fire a volunteer? Each volunteer will have the credentials, but we know that doesn't actually mean anything when it comes to the level of care given. Since they'll be volunteers, will they answer to the Voluntary Services Office, the same department that provides the magazine cart lady?

--How is this new program different from the one already in place? For example, a partial list of ambassadors needed at a few of the VA medical centers includes taking lab and blood samples, working in the nursing unit, assisting in the dialysis unit, helping in the ER, assisting with patient care and pharmacy support.

--If the plan is to use volunteers in lieu of hired (paid) staff, how will it impact the level of care if volunteers don't show up?

The bill for the Physician Ambassadors Helping Veterans Act was first promoted by a Texas congressman in 2014. It was introduced in the Senate and the House in early 2015. Where has it been since then?

Now Here's A Tip

By JoAnn Derson

"Here's a tip that impressed me so much I love sharing it with everyone! A friend of mine went away for a month, and forgot about a package of ground meat in the refrigerator. When he got home the smell was hideous. We tried pure bleach first, then boxes and boxes of baking soda. The smell was imbedded! Then a buddy of mine told me to use newspaper. Take eight of more sheets and lay a few on each shelf. To my surprise the next day the odor was gone! Imagine that!" -- T.D. in Pennsylvania

"Copy and distribute historical photos, documents and records so that if something happens to the originals, at least someone will have copies, and that part of history will not be lost forever." -- M.W. in Saskatchewan, Canada

"C.J. in Idaho writes: 'When making lemonade, get the most out of your lemons by heating them before juicing." Good call! You can do this by placing them in the microwave for 15 seconds at a time, or submerging them in hot water for several minutes.

"My sister is always trying new 'diet' recipes, but she hit on one that I really like. Instead of a traditional crust for a pizza, slice zucchini very thin, brush with oil, then brown in a pan. Transfer to a pre-warmed pizza pan and top with sauce and cheese. It's so good ... and low-carb!" -- M.D. in Wisconsin

"I use clothespins to keep the garbage bag in place in my small bathroom can. I line it with paper bags, and to keep them from trying to close, I just use the clothespins. If they get dirty, I just knock them into the trash bag too." -- O.C. in Texas

REAL ESTATE GUIDE

How to save on college housing costs

College is expensive, and the costs are only rising. Scholarships and grants can help mitigate the costs of higher education, but even students who receive such aid could find themselves scrambling for ways to make college more affordable.

Housing is one of the more expensive costs for college students and their families. According to the College Board, the average cost for room and board during the 2016-2017 school year was $10,440 at four-year public schools and $11,890 at private colleges and universities. And those costs typically cover housing for just the school year, which may last anywhere from six to eight months. However, there are ways for students and their families to reduce those costs.

- Examine your dormitory options. Many schools assign students to dormitories for their freshman years, giving students little say with regard to where they will live. However, students might have more input in their housing come their sophomore, junior and senior years. Some dorms might be more attractive and offer more amenities than others, but students and families looking to save money on housing costs should opt to live in the most budget-friendly dorms available to them. In addition, choose to live with a roommate rather than in a single room, as singles tend to cost substantially more than double rooms.

- Sign up to be a resident advisor. Resident advisors, or RAs, often receive free housing in exchange for living in dormitories when they are upperclassmen or graduate students. RAs help newly enrolled or younger students adjust to campus life while also ensuring nothing untoward happens on the floors they're tasked with looking after. Students who may want to apply for RA positions should first confirm if serving as an RA will affect their overall financial aid package and how great that impact might be.

- Live with roommates even after leaving the dorms. Due to limited space, many colleges insist dorm residents live with roommates. Upperclassmen who are moving out of the dorms and into university or off-campus apartments can save money by continuing to live with roommates. This can be especially beneficial to students who will be living in off-campus housing where amenities such as electricity, cable television and water are unlikely to be included in the cost of the rent.

- Commute to school. While it might not be ideal, commuting to school can save college students and their families substantial amounts of money. Public university students who did so during the 2016-2017 school year might have saved nearly $11,000, or $44,000 in four years. That's money that can be used to pay tuition or finance postgraduate education.

College housing costs can be considerable. But budget-conscious students and families can save on such costs in various ways. BS177114

Alcona students release salmon and clean up harbor

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

Releasing salmon, studying water quality and helping clean up the environment made the Harrisville Harbor the classroom for the day for Alcona County sixth graders and kindergartners last month.

The day long excursion was the final Science Technology Engineering and Math (STEM) project for the sixth graders who began the school year by receiving around 100 fish eggs to keep and hatch in a large classroom aquarium.

Unfortunately, this wasn't the best year for the salmon. Many of them died from hatching too early according to (STEM) teacher, Jennifer Inglis. She explained many other fingerlings also died in the tank, leaving the students only five fish to release in Lake Huron.

"The students were the ones who researched what was going wrong and why we were losing so many fish. There was a lot of information on the Internet, mostly about the amount of water that was in the tank and the frequency of cleaning the tank. It could have had something to do with the eggs before we got them. Half of the fish died from hatching too soon," Inglis said.

Eventually, Inglis took the rocks out of the tank, a suggestion she received by a Rogers City teacher, which she said did make a difference. Unfortunately, the damage was already done, leaving only five six-centimeter-long survivors. Inglis is hoping next year they will have a much better survival rate.

At the harbor sixth graders studied and measured water quality by conducting chemical tests, sampling biological living macroinvertebrates from the water, studied fish found along the shoreline and acted as citizen scientists by entering their fisheries data online with iNaturalist, a biodiversity monitoring website sponsored by the Michigan Geographic Alliance.

Serving as mentors, the sixth-graders helped kindergarten students explore the aquatic ecosystem with educational games and led the kindergartners in a cleanup of a whopping 105.2 pounds of trash, which they recorded according to Great Lakes Adopt-A-Beach protocols. Inglis said one of the reasons the trash weighed so much was because of a very heavy tire the students collected.

"The students learned quite a bit about what is in the harbor from the water quality right down to the fish species that can be found there. This water is right in their backyard, so it's fun for them to know what's in there. The entities involved did a fabulous job with our kids.

They are such a great resource and willing to help," Inglis said.

The day long trip was part of the Northeast Michigan Great Lakes Stewardship initiative to incorporate water conservation and stewardship studies. Community partners helping to organize the outing included Michigan State University Extension, Michigan 4-H Youth Development Programs, Michigan Sea Grant, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Thunder Bay National Marine Sanctuary, Huron Pines AmeriCorps and a local Lake Huron sport fishing group.
