City of Harrisville working to improve business climate

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

To become a more vibrant and competitive community that will attract new business and investors, the City of Harrisville is working on becoming certified through a relatively new program offered through the Michigan Economic Development Corporation.

The Redevelopment Ready Communities (RRC) program is available to communities across the state and is a voluntary, no-cost certification program designed to promote effective redevelopment strategies through a set of best practices.

The goal of being certified is to make it easier for anyone interested in starting, developing, or buying and upgrading a business to be able to quickly access a variety of information they will need as they work through the process. It also helps the city to streamline and organize all assets and regulations.

The process isn't easy and takes a lot of manpower, volunteer hours and community commitment, according to Harrisville Mayor John Dobis. It may take two to three years to become certified.

The program measures and then certifies communities that integrate transparency, predictability and efficiency into their daily development practices. "It's relatively a good program to get into without having to form a downtown development authority which is very costly and usually doesn't work out for small communities because you have to have some money to operate a downtown development authority," Dobis said.

At the May meeting the city council approved a memorandum of understanding with the Michigan Economic Development Corporation (MEDC), however there is still a long way to go to complete the requirements to become certified. The MEDC has agreed to work with Northeast Michigan Council of Government (NEMCOG) Deputy Director and Chief Planner Denise Cline, who the City of Harrisville has chosen as its consultant.

Dobis explained the process, which is based on best practices, consists of city officials, businesses and residents working within the community as a nucleus. He also explained that communities going through the RRC process and receiving certification are eligible for more grants for their community. "There is no priority, but it makes the community eligible for the process of applying for grants," Dobis said.

Six best practice categories required for certification include community plans and public outreach, zoning policy and regulations, development review process, recruitment and education, redevelopment ready sites and community prosperity.

Some of the categories are quite detailed and need to be developed to a large scale, but the MEDC has assured Dobis that Harrisville will not have to have the same detail per category as larger cities, such as Detroit. "Detroit has manpower dollars and everything else to develop a unique and high process of RRC community. The MEDC is going to work on this with us," Dobis said. He explained that a lot of negotiation has gone on between him and the MEDC to make sure the program fits Harrisville.

A four-person ad hoc committee is working with the city planning commission and the city council to help the certification process along. The ad hoc committee consists of planning commission members Cecile Pizer and Judy MacNeill, KiAnn Kruttlin and Cheryl Peterson, who are members of the Harrisville Business Association.

"It's a long-term process. Our hopes are to be able to shine a spotlight on Harrisville to let other business owners, developers from across the state or nation --

SENIOR LIFESTYLES

Should all baby boomers get tested for hepatitis C?

Dear Savvy Senior,
I've recently read that all baby boomers should get tested for hepatitis C. Is this really necessary, and if so, what are the testing and treatment procedures?

Healthy Boomer

Dear Healthy,

It's true. Both the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommend that all baby boomers – people born from 1945 through 1965 – get a hepatitis C test.

The reason is because baby boomers account for 75 percent of the 3 million or so hepatitis C cases in the U.S. Those that are infected are at very high risk of eventually developing liver cancer, cirrhosis or other fatal liver diseases.

Most hepatitis C infections occurred in the 1970s and 1980s, before there were tests to detect them and before the nation's blood supply was routinely screened for the virus.

Hepatitis C is transmitted only through blood, so anyone who received either a blood transfusion or an organ transplant prior to 1992 is at increased risk too. So are health-care workers exposed to blood, and people who injected drugs through shared needles. The virus can also be spread through microscopic amounts of infected blood that could occur during sex, from sharing a razor or toothbrush, or getting a tattoo or body piercing at an unsterile shop.

Most people that have hepatitis C don't know they're infected because there are no symptoms until their liver becomes severely damaged. It can actually take 30 years for people to show any signs of the virus, but by then, it may be too late to treat. But if it's detected in time, new treatments are now available that can cure it.

If you're between ages 52 to 72, or fall into one of the previously listed high risk categories, you should see your primary care doctor for a basic blood test to determine whether you have ever been infected with hepatitis C. This is a relatively inexpensive test and typically covered by health insurance under routine medical care.

If the test is negative, no further tests are needed. But, if the test is positive, you'll need another test called HCV RNA, which will show whether the virus is still active.

If you test positive, you have chronic hepatitis C and will need to talk to your doctor about treatment options. If you're infected, but have no liver damage, your doctor should monitor your liver at your annual physical.

The main treatments for chronic hepatitis C today are several new FDA approved antiviral medications that have a 95 percent cure rate. Compared to older treatments, these new medications have minimal side effects. Unfortunately, all the new drugs are very expensive – a 12-week treatment course can cost anywhere from $50,000 to $90,000.

Not all health insurance plans, including Medicare Part D plans, cover all prescribed medications for hepatitis C. And due to the expensive nature of these medications, most insurance plans require that you meet several requirements in order to get coverage.

If your insurance provider doesn't cover the antiviral therapy your doctor recommends, there are financial assistance options available. To look for help, visit HEPC.liverfoundation.org and put your cursor on "Resources" and click on "What if I need Financial Assistance to Pay for Treatment?"

And for more hepatitis C information, along with a quick online quiz you can take to determine your risks, see CDC.gov/knowmore-hepatitis. You can also get information over the phone by calling the national toll-free HELP-4-HEP helpline at (877) 435-7443.

Business association tackles big issues

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

A group of business owners and residents are striving to encourage and promote business within the Harrisville area and it isn't backing down from its original goals.

The Harrisville Business Association (HBA) was formed in 2015 to encourage and promote business within the Harrisville community and to revitalize economic, cultural and community development.

It was originally organized without much internal structure. However, since January, the HBA adopted bylaws and elected officers: Chairperson, Cheryl Peterson; vice chairperson, Tony Haight; secretary, Judie Labadie; and treasurer, Ed Foster.

The group has also taken on several ongoing initiatives and events to serve and improve the overall quality for both businesses and the residents of greater Harrisville. These initiatives include: improved cell service and Internet connectivity, involvement with the City of Harrisville's plans to become a certified Redevelopment Ready Community (see article on page 1) and promoting the "shop local" benefits for the community.

Events include a successful customer appreciation day, which was held last August, and sponsoring live music, food, arts and crafts and face painting as a portion of the City of Harrisville's participation in the 2016 Lake Huron Discovery Tour.

Throughout the year, the group is involved in decorating Main Street in downtown Harrisville for various holidays and helping the Harrisville Beautification Committee with spring and summer flowers.

This year the HBA is planning and facilitating a scavenger hunt, which will be geared towards getting campers at the Harrisville State Park into Harrisville businesses, another customer appreciation day in August, and helping with Harrisville's plans for the 2017 Lake Huron Discovery tour.

Peterson explained the focus of the HBA was to bring more business to Harrisville. "From day one, we realized as business owners, we needed to do economic development within our city. Obviously, we were losing businesses and there were vacant buildings in town. Rather than reinventing the wheel, especially with limited resources and funding, we turned to the state to see what programs were available that would benefit our community. We ended up choosing the Michigan Economic Development Corporation (MEDC) and the Redevelopment Ready Communities (RRC) Program," she said.

She explained the state only works with other governmental agencies, so for it to go forward the city council needed to be involved.

Peterson and HBA member, KiAnn Kruttlin, sit on ad hoc committee with Harrisville Planning Commission members Cecile Pizer and Judy MacNeill. Peterson explained the four members of the committee have spent a lot of time attending training required in order to be involved in the RRC certification process. None of the sessions were held in northern Michigan.

One recent session with MEDC sent Pizer and Peterson to Lansing. "What was interesting about that meeting was the state wanted our input. They wanted to know how we were doing and how they could help us. I found that very refreshing. They want to work with our community and do what we feel is best for our community,"

Peterson said.

According to Peterson, the group recognizes that the issue with cell service and connectivity in Harrisville is a huge hurdle for both businesses and residents of the community and can make the difference on whether people choose to reside and operate business here.

"The HBA considers good cell reception and internet connectivity as infrastructure in today's world. It would be like trying to run a business without a telephone or any way of communicating. We are encouraging and trying to find solutions to those problems. It's extremely difficult to attract businesses and residents to our commu-

City

to let them there are opportunities to bring businesses to our town. The spotlight will not only help vacant buildings, but should help people with businesses for sale," Peterson said.

According to MEDC representatives, Harrisville is the smallest community that has gone (or is going) through the RRC certification process. A community somewhat comparable in size that has completed certification and is thriving as a result, is Boyne City, Mich.

"When we talk about developers, we are not talking about big box stores or anything that will not fit within our zoning or city master plan," Peterson said. "We are not looking to change Harrisville beyond making it a more vibrant community. I love it here. I don't want this to become a community I don't recognize, but we need more businesses."

Peterson acknowledged Steve Arens and what he has done to develop his own businesses in Harrisville including the remodeled Harrisville Harbor Grocery and the new Harrisville Laundromat. She said the RRC program will only add to the economic development Arens has already started and, although it will take some time, it will keep that momentum going.

Dobis said the City of Harrisville will benefit from the program because it will be developing some best practices that, as a small part-time government, they have not had time or the opportunity to develop.

"We should bring more transparency to everything that goes on in Harrisville, not only government, but everything that goes on here. That will take participation from many residents and businesses," Dobis said.

He said it was wise to have the Harrisville Business Association's input in the process. "Since it's generated with transparency, you want the businesses involved. The idea is to draw people in across the spectrum and get everybody involved," Dobis said.

nity without these services," Peterson said.

Members are a big part of helping the HBA to have a strong voice to tackle such hurdles. HBA membership is $25 per year.

Haight explained the HBA is not only for businesses in the Harrisville area, but residents and organizations should also consider joining. "I don't have a business. I'm just an interested citizen. Anyone can come to the meetings, but to vote on anything, you have to be a member. This town has been here a long time and I'd like to see it survive. I like it here. I want it to stay here. I don't want to be the last one to turn out the light," Haight said.

He felt it was important to belong to the HBA because of the issues which need to be resolved in town. "For example, the cell problem we have in town. The HBA has been one of the primary drivers for getting that issue resolved. As a group, we started pursuing this with the city. We take on issues like that and the more members we have in our group the stronger our voice will be," Haight said.

Labadie said in order for the Harrisville area to survive it needs the support of businesses and the HBA wants both businesses and area residents to join them.

"The HBA has many advantages for local business, organizations or individuals within the greater Harrisville area and is working continuously to improve the success of the business community. Our organization is Harrisville-focused and its members benefit from group support. The HBA has a proven track record of focusing on issues and events that have a direct, positive and lasting effect on our local community," Labadie said.

HBA membership applications can be obtained by contacting Labadie at (989) 724-3400 or by email at pjlen-ter@yahoo.com or Peterson at (989) 724-6384 or editor@alconareview.com.

Ladies group brings beautification and fun day to Spruce

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

An old-fashioned fun time for all is planned in Spruce this Saturday to celebrate the town, its past, present and future.

The event, which will begin at 10 a.m. and is expected to continue throughout the evening and night, was planned by a determined group of eight ladies who call themselves the Loyal Ladies.

Members of the group -- Cyndi Apsey, Laura Frawley, Bessie Schlehr, Nichola Cornelius, Jeanne Goldenberg, Amber O'Toole, Shelly Hoffmeyer and junior member, Liberty Kimball -- first got together at the beginning of the year to come up with a way to promote local artisans while encouraging growth and prosperity to rural, blighted communities such as Spruce.

"Our goal was to do a community-by-community beautification project while promoting local talent at the same time. Each community will have a different type of art to promote and tell the story of that community," said Cyndi Apsey, spokesperson for the group.

Putting nose to the grindstone, meeting once and sometimes even twice a week, the ladies came up with ways to inform passersby of what the Spruce community is all about, its determination, strength, joy and compassion.

They tossed around several ideas, finally agreeing to dress up the windows of standing buildings with colorful photographs of agriculture in Spruce reproduced on window clings. A reveal of the window dressings will be included in the Spruce Day events at 11 a.m. this Saturday.

A kick-off pancake breakfast starts the festivities at the Caledonia Township Hall followed by old-fashioned games such as three-legged race, burlap bag race, egg in a spoon race, stack the straw, musical chairs and more for kids and adults.

Throughout the day there will be a hay wagon hoedown with open microphone singing, arts and craft booths, a Chinese raffle of several gift baskets, demonstrations, magic shows, musicians and the Alcona Antique Tractor Club.

An evening pig roast dinner is planned at the hall

followed with live entertainment by Donny Hartman and dancing. "It all starts at 10 a.m. and we plan to go until we can't laugh and dance anymore," Apsey said.

"While this event is to raise funds towards the (Loyal Ladies') next project, I see it as a celebration that is long overdue and needed. I honestly believe many towns like Spruce are ready to be communities again, in a good way. In a simple way -- the way it once was kind of way.

"The project is focused on communities (that) are strong and proud, giving and compassionate. I have found the support of this project to be amazing," Apsey said.

Inspiration Alcona, a nonprofit group that promotes the arts in Alcona County, was not only a big help in giving the Loyal Ladies a donation and moral support to accomplish the Spruce project, but it also let them use its nonprofit status for donations given to the Loyal Ladies.

In January, the goal of the Loyal Ladies was to raise $7,800 to get the Spruce project completed. In less than six months they have raised about $7,000 which includes in-kind donations and labor donations toward the project.

The owners of the buildings, most of which are vacant, were extremely helpful and cooperative in allowing the window dressings, Apsey explained. "We wanted to make a big statement and show the world that Spruce is the place where great ideas start. This project hasn't been a walk in the park, but this is a group of highly determined ladies," Apsey said.

Apsey explained the work the Loyal Ladies are doing has attracted growing interest from around the world, as they have been contacted by people in Minnesota and Australia who want to be sister and brother cities of the Spruce project.

The Caledonia Township Hall is located at 6421 Gillard Road, Spruce. For information, call Cyndi Apsey at (989) 335-3018 or Bessie Schlehr at (989) 335-0850.

Anna Loyer, an eighth grade student at Alcona Middle School, poses with her self portrait in watercolor at the Industrial Technology Showcase last week. She plans on giving the portrait to her grandmother.

Ethan Meador, a junior at Alcona High School, shows off his cannon cabinet during the school's annual showcase held last week. Meador said he chose the cannon cabinet because he wanted something creative to work on and took home a fifth place ribbon at the MITES regional competition. Photos by Mary Weber.

Brendan Nelson, a senior at Alcona High School, stands next to his entertainment center/gun cabinet at the annual Industrial Technology Showcase. The cabinet, complete with lazy Susan end pieces to hold several guns, won Nelson a first place ribbon at the Michigan Industrial Technology Education Society (MITES) regional competition and a second place ribbon at the state competition. Nelson said he had around $1,700 worth of material invested in the project and plans to keep it.

The America I believe in

By Timothy Jamieson

Bullets flew overhead. Firing was in the air. Smoke and gunpowder was everywhere. It was April 19, 1775 at the Battle of Lexington and Concord. Britain and the thirteen colonies were at war with each other. The thirteen colonies were not happy because Britain was taxing them too much. Also, they wanted to be free and make their own rules, not to be governed and told exactly what they had to do by a king that was thousands of miles away.

There were men such as Theodore Parker who wanted to have freedom and a government that was not controlling everything they did. He said, "This is what I call the American idea of freedom, a government of all the people, by all the people, for all the people; of course, a government of principles of eternal justice - the unchanging law of God."

The America I believe is fair and kind. They aren't afraid to do things. Look at the Declaration of Independence. It says, "All men are created equal." What does equal mean? Equal means not having highest and lowest people. Not saying that one person is better than another. That all men and women have rights to do the things they want to.

I think that freedom is a great gift. Not a lot of countries in the world have total freedom because they have rulers that aren't kind or fair or just. Our country is a great country, but it could become a country that is like all the rest if we do not defend our freedoms and our Constitution.

Think about all the veterans and soldiers who went out and fought enemies to keep our freedom safe. They are the ones that care about freedom and want our country to be great. My Grandpa is a township clerk; he helps to keep the township going right and he helps to run all the elections that take place. My Grandpa is also a veteran who went to Germany to secure it after World War II.

That is my personal thinking on our country and the America I believe in.

Spring

By Danica Jamieson

The forest will ring
With the birds that sing.
Their song will echo through the trees,
And will be in harmony with the bees.

And all the grass will turn green.
Oh, it is a lovely sight to be seen,
All the flowers with the daffodils
Will say goodbye to the frost that kills.

The spider webs will shine with morning dew
And reflect the sky that is so blue.
And down in the grass is nestled a fawn
Waiting for its mother at dawn.

The woodpeckers will pitter patter on the trees
And look for tasty grubs, if you please,
And the tree will echo with a song sung,
Spring has sprung!

Save-the-date for summer free fishing weekend

Don't miss the chance to fish for free in June as part of the 2017 Summer Free Fishing Weekend. On Saturday, June 10 and Sunday, June 11 both residents and visitors can fish without a license. All other fishing rules and regulations still apply.

Events are being planned across the state for this summer's #MiFreeFishing-Weekend to provide fun opportunities for those new to the sport to try their hand at landing a big one. For free fishing weekend events throughout Michigan, visit Michigan.gov/freefishing. The list of events is updated each week.

Northeast Lower Peninsula May 18

- Cheboygan River: Bass anglers have done well with crank baits and soft plastics near the Coast Guard station. The walleye harvest was slow. Anglers were jigging worms and minnows near the lock and dam, behind the paper mill and near the city boat launch. Small perch averaging five inches were caught at the city launch. Small pike were hitting on crank baits near the marina. Suckers were caught on crawlers.

- Rogers City: Surface water temperatures are still cold at 42 to 44 degrees. Lake trout are starting to be caught over areas with a rocky bottom as they are feeding on gobies and gobies love the rocks. The fish were scattered. Try smaller walleye spoons or regular spoons in bright colors like orange and yellow with silver. There may be a stray Chinook but very few Atlantics are showing up. Those casting spoons and body baits from the wall caught a couple Atlantic salmon and pike.

- Rockport: Lake trout fishing is improving especially around Middle Island or straight out of the harbor in 35 to 60 feet. Run lines throughout the water column and near the bottom with spoons, dodgers or cowbells and spin-glos in bright colors.

- Alpena: Those trolling between South Nine Mile Point and North Point reported good catches of lake trout in 40 to 70 feet. Walleye were caught when trolling crank baits or jigging leeches and soft plastics near the mouth of the Thunder Bay River. Those casting spoons and crank baits in the harbor and from the rocks at Bay View Park caught a couple walleye and pike.

- Thunder Bay River: Steelhead were caught near the Ninth Street Dam when casting spoons, rapalas, and flatfish. Those swinging flashy streamer flies during high stained water or drifting wax worms under a float during low water and cooler temperatures have caught steelhead. Brown trout, smallmouth bass and white suckers were caught.

- Oscoda: Boat and pier anglers drifting crawlers or jigging minnows and soft plastics caught a few walleye. Lake trout were caught in 20 to 40 feet when trolling spoons.

- AuSable River: Walleye were caught in the lower river when drifting crawlers or trolling crawler harnesses. Steelhead fishing was slow but anglers were still finding a few on the gravel or in the deeper holes. Most of the fish are slowly heading back towards the lake. Smallmouth bass and white suckers have been caught.

- Houghton Lake: Walleye have been caught in eight to 12 feet near the weed beds when drifting leeches. Those floating minnows under a bobber caught crappie near the weed beds. The bluegill bite continues to get better.

- Tawas: Those trolling down near Alabaster caught a few when trolling a crawler harness or body bait in 15 to 25 feet.

- Tawas River: Night anglers caught a few walleye on body baits or live bait. Large and smallmouth bass were caught and released.

- AuGres: Walleye anglers trolling a crawler harness or body bait caught a few in 20 to 30 feet. Anglers were catching and releasing smallmouth bass out near Charity Island.

Spring Lake Huron lake trout survey begins

Earlier this spring the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) began its annual spring lake trout survey on Lake Huron. This survey provides the DNR and its partner agencies with key information as they look to manage lake trout populations in the lake.

Since the Chinook salmon population in Lake Huron crashed in the mid-2000s, lake trout consistently have provided one of the best fishing opportunities there. Data from this annual survey show that for the first time in 40 years, Lake Huron's lake trout population is nearly 50 percent wild. Gathering this type of information each year helps fisheries managers determine future stocking numbers and set fishing regulations.

"What we learn from this study directly affects management decisions such as numbers of fish stocked, minimum size limits and daily possession limits," said Ji He, DNR fisheries research biologist out of Alpena. "It's important for us to monitor trends over time so we can better adjust our future management."

This survey consists of setting gill nets at 14 different sampling locations from Drummond Island in the north to Port Sanilac in the south. Nets are set overnight and lifted the next day. Lake trout that are captured are measured and weighed, have an upper jaw bone removed for age analysis and have their stomach contents examined.

This year's effort is the first full survey to be conducted aboard the DNR's newest research vessel Tanner.

"Having a safe and reliable vessel like the R/V Tanner is essential to support our assessment," said He.

Creel clerks to collect angler information

As this year's open-water fishing season gets under way, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) reminds anglers that Fisheries Division personnel are at lakes, rivers and Great Lakes ports collecting fishing data from anglers.

DNR creel clerks will be stationed at boat launches and piers around the state asking anglers questions as they return from fishing trips. Information will be requested on trip length, target species and number and type of fish caught. In some cases, creel clerks may ask to measure or weigh fish and to take scale or other body parts for aging. These data are key information in the DNR's management of the state's fisheries resource.

"The DNR appreciates anglers' cooperation with these interviews, and it will only take a couple of minutes to answer the questions," said DNR fisheries biologist Tracy Kolb. "This program helps us gather information that is critical in managing the state's fisheries and is used in every aspect of our management efforts."

These efforts are part of the DNR's Statewide Angler Survey Program, a long-term monitoring program that tracks recreational fisheries and harvest across Michigan's waters. This is one of the most comprehensive angler survey programs in the country, with DNR creel clerks interviewing upwards of 50,000 anglers in most years.

Aged indian woman dies at Hubbard Lake

Mrs. David Cloud Was Well Past Century Mark.

May 24, 1917 ~ Hubbard Lake, May 22.—Wednesday morning, May, 16th, Mrs. David Cloud, aged Hubbard Lake resident, passed away; pneumonia being the sickness which caused her demise. Her age is variously estimated, but there are some old settlers here who claim she had well passed the century mark.

Nevertheless she was strong and active, and thousands of baskets and moccasins testify as to her skill.

Mrs. Cloud was first the wife of Chief Henry, now dead, and several children were the result of this union. Of these three are now alive: Chief Simon Henry of AuSable, Miss Naney Henry of Mackinaw, and Mrs. John Joseph of Hubbard Lake.

Mrs. Cloud was the daughter of Broken Jaw, well known around Hubbard Lake in the earlier days. She was buried Saturday at Ossineke cemetery beside her children and former husband. Rev. Symons of Ossineke officiated in the services, and a choir sang the last sweet words over the remains of this woman, who had lived a life full of romance and full of useful deeds.

Forest fires are now extinguished

A Home and Church Burned—Rains Bring Relief

May 24, 1917 ~ The rains Monday and Tuesday though cold and sleety, did an untold amount of good both to crops and in suppressing forest fires which were becoming serious in several parts of the county.

The most serious losses from forest fires, that have been reported, was the destruction Friday of the home of Philip Hyke in Western Mikado township and the burning of the Alvin Baptist church Saturday. The Hyke family are quartered in the house formerly occupied by John R. Rickert.

Some fences have been destroyed and only desperate fighting prevented much more serious losses. The rain came just in time to relieve the situation.

MAY 23, SNOW

May 24, 1917 ~ "Merry Christmas!" It was thus the facetious ones greeted their neighbors Wednesday morning. The ground was covered with snow and overcoats and gloves were found very comfortable clothing—and reference was had to the almanac to satisfy one that it was the 23rd of May and not December. Snow in considerable quantities was reported at various parts of the state, both far and near.

Thieves force entrance to the roller mill

May 24, 1917 ~ Thieves forced an entrance to the Harrisville roller mill Saturday night and made away with a sizable haul.

Just what was taken Mr. Gillespie was unable to state. One sack of flour was found later in a vacant field in the south part of town; it was broken open and the thieves evidently were unable to get it away without leaving too plain a trail.

Entrance to the mill was gained by breaking a glass in the engine room door and with a screwdriver removing portion of the lock.

There is strong suspicion as to who the guilty parties are, but as yet no arrests have been made.

Guy Leonard Perkins

May 24, 1917 ~ Guy Leonard Perkins, aged 15 years and 10 months, died May 15th at Flint, Michigan, following a long illness from typhoid fever.

The remains were brought to the home of W. C. Shepard in Mikado, and on Friday funeral services were held in the M. E. church, being in charge of Rev. Listen (L. D. S.) of Flint. The burial took place in the family lot at South Harrisville.

Guy was born in Mikado and lived there until a year ago when the family moved to Flint. Six of his former schoolmates acted as pallbearers: Wellington and Daniel Dolson, Allen Kahn, Norman Edwards, Grant Cowie and Austin Emerson.

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Dark Matter

I have had two great loves in my life. Susan and I will have been married 35 years this coming June 25. The other woman? Well, obviously, it wasn't successful, but I longed for her until I met my Sue. But what if that first relationship had been successful? How would my life have evolved if I had taken the other road? There are a group of physicists who believe that we live in a multiverse, a kaleidoscope of universes all existing at the same time. Each decision that we make creates another universe that splits off with the consequences of that choice going forward in time. This is essentially the premise of Blake Crouchs, Dark Matter, Crown, New York, 2016, which has Jason and Jason2 as its main character. I say character because they are both the same person living at the same time in two parallel universes. Jason made the decision to marry Daniela, and together they have a son named Charlie. Jason is a successful physics professor living in Chicago in an extraordinarily happy relationship with his family. However, he wonders if he could have made more of his professional life. Jason2 is a world-renowned physicist who sacrificed family for fame and invented a machine, a box, which can transport a person to another timeline of himself. The catch is that Jason2 is probably the only person who knows exactly how to find that transcendent moment in another person's life to make the proper connection. Jason2 may be the Einstein of his 21st century timeline, but he lacks the completeness of a family relationship and wants desperately to be the love of Daniela's and Charlie's lives. So Jason2 kidnaps Jason and exchanges places with him so that Jason2 can have it all. That leaves Jason on a quest to get back to Daniela and Charlie. Since both Jason and Jason2 are the same person, it doesn't take long for Jason to understand how to move the box to different timelines of himself. The trick that needs to be learned is getting the box close enough to the timeline that will allow Daniela and him to be reconnected. As he gets closer, Jason leaves multiple timelines of himself in Chicago which can reconnect with each other, so by the moment Jason finds his correct timeline, there are over 100 other Jasons, all trying to assume the identity of Jason2 who has successfully bonded with Daniela and Charlie. How the real Jason outwits Jason2 and all of the other Jasons vying for his life (timeline) is what makes the book a winner. Read Dark Matter to be surprised for yourself. - It was beloved American author of Western stories Louis L'Amour who made the following sage observation: "A wise man fights to win, but he is twice a fool who has no plan for possible defeat."
- You might be aware of the fact that penguins mate for life, but did you know that before they mate, there's a proposal? It's true -- a penguin will spend a significant amount of time searching for the perfect pebble to offer to its prospective mate.
- Swedish chemist, inventor and businessman Alfred Nobel is best known for inventing dynamite -- and for using his fortune to institute the Nobel Prizes after he was condemned as a "merchant of death" for profiting from the sale of arms. You might be surprised to learn, though, that he also had a literary bent, writing poetry, novels and plays.
- If you're like the average American, you spend about 17 minutes a day exercising -- and 10 hours a day looking at a screen.
- On Christmas Day in 1075, while he was in the middle of celebrating mass at the Basilica di Santa Maria Maggiore, Pope Gregory VII was kidnapped by a Roman nobleman.
- Those who study such things say that the light produced by a single bolt of lightning is equivalent to that produced by 100 million flashbulbs. And the fact that flashbulbs are being used as a comparison may indicate some unrelated data about the age of the researchers.

Thought for the Day: "The tragedy in the lives of most of us is that we go through life walking down a high-walled lane with people of our own kind, the same economic situation, the same national background and education and religious outlook. And beyond those walls, all humanity lies, unknown and unseen, and untouched by our restricted and impoverished lives." -- Florence Luscomb
