Sheriff promotes two deputies to sergeants

By Cheryl Peterson Editor

There are two new sergeants in the Alcona County Sheriff's Department, but they are not new to the department.

As of Monday, Aug. 5 deputies Scott McKenzie and Nathanael Leeseberg began their new positions as sergeants. The announcement was made on July 29 by Alcona County Sheriff Scott Stephenson.

"Undersheriff (Keith) Myers and I interviewed six of the Alcona County Sheriff deputies for the promotion. I was extremely excited in the amount if interest by the deputies," Stephenson said in a press release. "That high level of enthusiasm leaves me very optimistic about the future of the sheriff's office. It made my decision that much more difficult."

patrol. He spent three and half years on the Huron Undercover Narcotics Team (HUNT), heads the marine patrol division and is responsible for the registration and monitoring of all sex offenders in the county.

"It is a great honor," McKenzie said of his promotion. "I am excited about it and I am going to enjoy it. It's a huge step in my career to get to this point. I've always had a lot of dedication to Alcona County and the sheriff's department because it's my home."

Sgt. Leeseberg was raised in Genesee County and graduated from Hill McCloy High School in Montrose, Mich. in 1994. He received an associate degree in criminal justice from Mott Community College in 1997 and graduated from Flint Regional Police Academy in 1998. He was

Sgt. McKenzie is the son of Robert and Lela McKenzie and has always considered Alcona County his home despite having moved around a lot in his youth. He attended Alcona Community Schools from first through fifth grade and moved back to the community in 1999 and graduated in 2000. He was hired by the department in 2001 as a marine patrol officer and a corrections officer.

He received an associate degree in criminal justice from Alpena Community College. After he received his degree, he attended the Kirtland Regional Police Academy. "I had the privilege to be sponsored by the Alcona County Sheriff's Department," McKenzie said. In 2003 he was hired fulltime as a deputy – with the primary duty of being on road hired as a deputy in October 1998 by the Alcona County Sheriff's Department. He has a strong background in criminal investigation, evidence collection and property room management. He was a K9 handler for the department from 200 to 2003; was on the Emergency Response Team from 2009 to 2013 and was the school resource officer for roughly five years.

He is the son of Warren and Gail Leeseberg of Harrisville and grandson of Leo and Phebie Pierce. His son, Cody, is 2019 graduate of Alcona High School and his youngest son, Warren, attends Alcona Community Schools.

"It was an honor to be chosen. I am looking forward to helping the department in this new capacity," Leeseberg said.

Heritage Day to celebrates lighthouse's 150th anniversary

By Mary Weber Staff Writer

One hundred and fifty years ago a bright light from a 70-foot tower began casting an intermittent beam in a specific sequence across the vast expanse of Lake Huron.

Its purpose was to warn lake-going ships and vessels of the dangerous waters around Sturgeon Point -- a rocky shoal located several miles north of Harrisville.

That silent sentinel -- Sturgeon Point Lighthouse -- is still standing and it's light still cuts through the darkness, thick fog and storm riddled coastline to give warning to passing boats.

The lighthouse quarters were home to many keepers and their families over the years and despite the passing decades which changed the purpose of the building, it still stands as a reminder of lives saved and lost to the waters of Lake Huron.

Today, the lighthouse draws thousands of tourists, photographers, artists and history enthusiasts to its doorstep where they are welcomed by museum volunteers eager to help transport all who visit to another time.

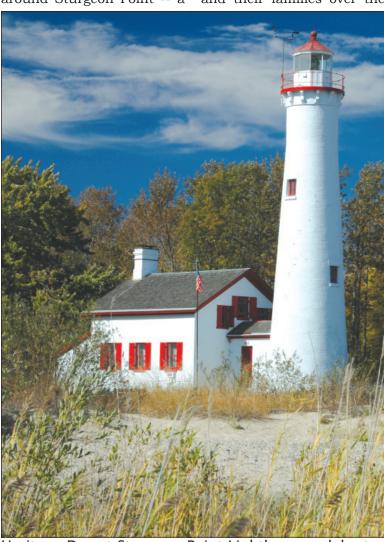

To honor this special anniversary, the Alcona Historical Society is planning a special Heritage Day celebration, complete with a birthday cake befitting 150 years of service and memories on Saturday, Aug. 10 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"We have a Heritage Day with activities annually on the second Saturday in August, but it's not every year we can celebrate a 150th birthday. We are trying to make this an extra special day with something that will appeal to everyone," said Lynn VanderLinde, board member and spokesperson for the Alcona Historical Society.

Activities this year begin at 11 a.m. with a Petoskey stone hunt for folks of all ages with a chance for everyone to locate and keep Michigan's state stone. Patrons can sing "Happy Birthday" to the light-

VanderLinde explained the lighthouse is part of the Sunrise Coast Birding Trail which incorporates 145 miles along US-23. "We thought the raptors would be a good fit to bring to the celebration since so many people come here to see shoreline wildlife," VanderLinde said.

Bob Bunting, author of "Into Oblivion," will speak about his book at 1:30 p.m. The book is an 1880 period documentary focusing on the sinking of passenger steamer Marine City off the then-community of Alcona. Bunting's writing recreates the feel and mood of the community around the time of the tragedy through news accounts, archive findings and oral histories passed on from generation to generation.

Following Bunting will be guest speakers reading from the book "The Alcona Reader," which is a compilation of stories from the Alcona County area from the 1800s through 1950. "It's a really fun book to read with a lot of interesting stories," VanderLinde said. Copies of the book will be available for sale at the gift shop for $20.

Dogged pursuit: Gullchasers keep beaches clean

By Gina Navoli

Capital News Service

Using dogs to chase gulls from Great Lakes beaches can improve water quality, according to a recent study.

A Central Michigan University (CMU) study used dogs to reduce bird feces on

The waste of gulls introduces high levels of E.coli bacteria into sand and beach water, according to a research article in the Oxford University Press. E.coli can contain pathogens such as avian influenza and salmonella, according to microbiologist Elizabeth Alm and mammalogist Thomas Gehring.

The dogs' harassment reduced the number of gulls by 56 to 76 percent.

"I was pleasantly surprised that we actually saw a (strong reduction of) gulls and (improved) water quality," said Gehring, a wildlife ecology professor at CMU.

Gehring's previous work using dogs to reduce conflicts between wild animals and people gave him the idea of using border collies to chase the birds, said Alm, a biologist at CMU.

"Border collies are super smart," Alm said. "They're very intelligent dogs. They train well because of their natural herding instincts. They chase the gulls but they have no interest in capturing them or hurting them."

During the summers of 2012 and 2013, Alm and Gehring studied two collies at beaches in Michigan cities on Lake Michigan. They were North Beach Park in Ferrysburg, Kirk Park in West Olive and the Grand Haven Beach Association and Rosy Mound Park in Grand Haven.

For 38 days, they conducted two trials where collies controlled gulls on two beaches while the other two were uncontrolled, Alm said. They counted how many gulls were on the beaches every 15 minutes.

After the 38 days, they removed the dogs for 10 days. Then they alternated the process for the second trial. The previously uncontrolled beaches were then controlled by dogs. After noticing a pattern of when gulls arrived on beaches, Alm and Gehring changed their method in the second summer.

In 2012, dogs controlled beaches seven days a week from dusk until dawn, Alm said. She and Gehring noticed birds arriving after sunrise and returning before sunset. The next year, they had dogs control beaches only at peak arrival times to harass them in larger abundance, Alm said.

The researchers positioned themselves in the central section of beaches while keeping the dogs under voice and whistle command, Gehring said. Because of their natural instinct to prey on gulls, minimal training is needed for collies, said Shayna Taylor, kennel manager and staff bi-

Sanctuary Lecture Series

"NOAA Teacher at Sea: Working with Sharks" program will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 14 at the Great Lakes Maritime Heritage Center, 500 West Fletcher Street in Alpena. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration program Teacher at Sea program provides educators an opportunity to work alongside NOAA scientists to assist them in their research at sea aboard NOAA ships. When they return to the classroom, educators can take the information they learned and teach their students about their experience at sea to get students more engaged in real world science.

Michigan art educator

Stephen Kade will discuss his experience aboard the NOAA ship Oregon II as they traversed the Gulf of Mexico and Atlantic Ocean researching sharks. He will show photos and videos about the process of catching, researching, and releasing sharks and using that information to help their populations. He will also show how he is using art to help students learn about these

Kade is fine art painter who shows his work at festivals around Michigan. He has been a certified art educator for six years, and teaches at O.L. Smith Middle School in Dearborn, Mich. He continues to work with NOAA as a Teacher at Sea. He resides in Walled Lake, Mich. For more information, call (989) 884-

Big Tree Hunt Contest

Now is the perfect time to find a Michigan big tree and enter it into the Michigan Big Tree Hunt Contest before the contest closes on September 3. Trees from all Michigan counties are welcome in this celebration of Michigan's amazing trees. To date, Michiganders have entered hundreds of trees from 67 of Michigan's 83 counties, including a willow that measures over 30 feet in circumference.

When the contest closes, certificates and prizes will be awarded for the largest tree submitted from each Michigan county, the largest tree found by a youth (15 and younger) and adult (16 and older), the largest Eastern white pine found in the state and for potential state champion trees. To enter a big tree, visit www.bigtreehunt.com for an online entry form or for information on where to find a paper entry form.

ReLeaf Michigan, a statewide tree planting and education nonprofit, started the Michigan Big Tree Hunt in 1993 to celebrate Michigan's beauty and gather information about Michigan's biggest trees. Contest entries provide potential state champion trees to Michigan's Big Tree Registry as well as the National Register of Big Trees. Contest entries are an opportunity for all age groups to help track these vital, historical, living landmarks. More contest details available online at www.bigtreehunt.com. If you have a question not answered on the website, email: info@ReLeafMichigan.org or call (800) 642-

ReLeaf Michigan's Big Tree Hunt contest is sponsored by AdventureKEEN, Consumers Energy Foundation, the DTE Energy Foundation, the Michigan Botanical Foundation and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources - Urban and Community Forestry Program and supported in partnership by the Arboriculture Society of Michigan, Huron-Clinton Metroparks and the Michigan Botanical Club.

ReLeaf Michigan ReLeaf Michigan is a 31-year-old nonprofit organization that has partnered with over 400 communities statewide to replenish our tree canopies through the planting of 30,000 trees in public spaces at tree planting events. Trees provide many benefits to communities including shade, increased economic vitality, stormwater reduction, and greenhouse gas reduction.

How to help an aging parent with a hoarding problem

Dear Savvy Senior,

My 70-year-old mother has become somewhat of a hoarder. Since my father died a few years ago, her house is so disorganized and messy with stuff that it's becoming a hazard. What should I do to help her?

Troubled Son

Dear Troubled,

Clutter addiction is a problem that effects up to five percent of Americans, many of whom are seniors. The problems can range anywhere from moderate messiness to hoarding so severe it may be related to a mental health disorder like obsessive-compulsive disorder. Here's what you should know, along with some tips and resources that can help your mom.

Why People Hoard

The reasons most people hoard is because they have an extreme sentimental attachment to their possessions, or they believe they might need their items at a later date. Hoarding can also is depressed or showing early symptoms of dementia.

Common problems for seniors who live in excessive clutter are tripping, falling and breaking a bone; overlooking bills and missing medications that are hidden in the clutter; and suffering from the environmental effects of mold, mildew and dust, and even living among insects and rodents.

To get a handle on your mom's problem, the Institute for Challenging Disorganization offers a free "Clutter Hoarding Scale" that you can download off their website at Challenging Disorganization.org.

If you find that your mom has a moderate cluttering problem, there are a number of things you can do to help.

Start by having a talk with her, respectfully expressing your concern for her health and safety, and offering your assistance to help her declutter.

If she takes you up on it, most professional organizers be a sign that an older person recommend decluttering in small steps. Take one room at a time or even a portion of a room at a time. This will help prevent your mom from getting overwhelmed.

Before you start, designate three piles or boxes for your mom's stuff - one pile is for items she wants to keep-andput-away, another is the donate pile and the last is the throwaway pile.

You and your mom will need to determine which pile her things belong in as you work. If your mom struggles with sentimental items that she doesn't use, like her husband's old tools or mother's china for example, suggest she keep only one item for memory sake and donate the rest to family members who will use them.

You will also need to help her set up a system for organizing the kept items and new possessions.

If you need some help with the decluttering and organizing, consider hiring a professional organizer who can come to your mom's home to help you prioritize, organize and remove the clutter. The nonprofit group National Association of Productivity and Organizing Professionals has a directory on the website at NAPO.net to help locate a professional in your area.

If your mom has a bigger, more serious hoarding problem (if her daily functioning is impaired, or if she is having financial difficulties, health problems, or other issues because of her hoarding) you'll need to seek professional help. Antidepressants and/or talk therapy can help address control issues, anxiety, depression, and other feelings that may underline hoarding tendencies, and make it easier for her to confront her disorder.

To learn more and find professional help see the International OCD Foundation which provides a hoarding center on their website (Hoarding.iocdf.org) that offers information, resources, treatments, selfhelp groups, and more.

Also see HoardingCleanup.com, a site that has a national database of qualified resources including cleaning companies and therapists that can help.

St. Gabriel celebrates quasquicentennial

By Mary Weber

Staff Writer

A large white frame country church stands today, much as it did when it was built 125 years ago. It is the home of the St. Gabriel Catholic Church parish, a welcoming and friendly group of about 44 families living in the Black River and surrounding

Like much of Alcona County, the church began during the lumbering era when the Alger, Smith Company, which owned 50,000 acres of land, donated an acre of land and the lumber to build the church in 1894.

Under the direction of Fr. Julien Doucet, volunteer labor constructed the church with seating capacity for 150. The total cost of the church was $1,375.80 and during its first year, it held 30 first communions, 32 confirmations, 21 baptisms, five marriages, and one funeral.

Parish members Norma Ludwiczak and Linda Hastings recently sat together and looking through memorial books written about the

"We are a happy parish," Ludwiczak said, "We welcome everyone. People come from all over to attend our church and all comment on how friendly we are. We are like family. In the summer we get a lot of visitors and tourists, at times the church is packed.'

Hastings enjoys being part of the parish because everyone is very close. "It is very family-oriented. We have parties when it's father's birthday, dinners, luncheons, and ice cream socials. It brings everyone together, some who come are not even parish members, they just come to visit," Hastings said.

Hasting explained how she had moved away and when she returned to the area could

Black River was first settled by French trappers and fishermen. In the latter 1870s it became the headquarters for the lumbering firm of Alger, Smith and Company, which was known as the largest producer of timber spars and masts in the world.

At the time about 2,000 people had settled in the area, many of them men who worked around the clock in shifts to produce the pine tim-

Going deep during the dog days of summer

By Gregg Schefferly

Outdoor Writer

Every summer, as the days get longer, and the temperatures climb into the 80s or higher — beaches are overrun with those looking for relief from the heat. While warmer water temperatures are a welcome relief for humans, the opposite is true for

As the temperature rises on the water's surface, the fish retreat to deeper water. Depending on the depth of the lake, the fish may go to the bottom or suspend 10, 20, or 30 feet below the water's surface.

Anglers casting or trolling stick-baits are suddenly either fishing areas void of fish or aren't in the zone because their lures they're using don't dive deep enough.

The good news all is not lost, they just have to change tactics to get into the zone. Some anglers will pull out their jigs and start working deeper water. Years ago, the only option available for reaching deep fish trolling was downriggers, which wasn't only expensive, but they took come in different sizes which will determine ultimately how deep tackle will go.

Leadcore is another option for anglers. Leadcore line is a thin lead line encased in a woven material. Lead core is often sold in 100-yard spools and, at times, is called 10 color. This is because the color of the line changes every 30 feet and on a 100-yard spool of lead core there are 10 colors. Every color let out will take a lure down five feet in depth. So, if an angler lets out three colors of line from his level wind reel whatever he is trolling will dive 15 feet deeper. If pulling a diving crankbait then add the depth the lure dives to the depth the leadcore is taking the lure down. To be effective get the

on a line.

A snap weight kit, which can be purchased, comes with a variety of different weight lead pieces and the clips. Normally, they run from half an ounce up to three ounces. One of the more popular methods with snap weights is the 50/50 method which requires an angler to let out 50 feet of line, attach the weight and let out another 50 feet. This is yet another method to help anglers get tackle down to the fish. Inline weights are similar and are used with crawler harnesses to get them down to suspended fish as well.

In the last 40 years there have been tremendous technological advances for fishermen. Anglers who are new to the sport should go fishing with someone who's already out doing it. I've been fortunate to have some friends take me under their wing and who've both taken me fishing and who will readily share with me what and how they're catching fish. A lot of gas can be burned pulling tackle through the water to no avail. It's amazing the difference in one's confidence and how quickly a live well can be filled when you're in the zone.

dog days of summer is very effective at catching fish. All that is needed is an old Great Lake rod and level wind reel. There are a lot of them lying around from the days of the downrigger fishermen.

For those who are not in a position to purchase the rods and reels for leadcore; snap weights or inline weights are a cheap alternative to getting tackle down deep where the fish are. Snap weights are simply lead weights that clip up a lot of real estate on the back of the boat. Since then, much has changed.

The dipsy diver was one of the first economical advancements to the troller's arsenal. Dipsy divers are attached directly to the line. They have a dial that allows how to set them to dive down and away from the boat. They come in different sizes which will determine the depth they'll dive.

More recent is a device called a tadpole, while it doesn't dive away from the boat it goes deep. They too lure either at their level or, preferably, slightly above the fish because a fish can see up, but not down.

Anglers fishing trout and salmon this time of year are often fishing in or near 100 feet of water and will use an entire spool of leadcore on one reel. Anyone fishing in shallower water but still requires leadcore instead of using the entire spool might only put on 20 to 50 yards of leadcore, this all depends on how deep they want to get their presentation. Of course, ologist at Wild Goose Chase, a goose and pest control business in Illinois.

"(Collies) start to stalk a gull, get really low and stare it down," Taylor said. "They kind of mimic the posture of what a natural predator would be for the gulls.

Dogs making eye contact with gulls scares them away, Taylor said. The act of staring down gulls and slowly creeping toward them will make them feel like they're about to be hunted.

In the beginning of training, collies are on a 20-foot leash, Taylor said. Once a dog has been fully trained and trusted to come back, they roam free.

"Over time, if (dogs) are there every single day chasing them, (gulls will) think, 'obviously there's a predator here every single day, maybe we should go find somewhere else to be," Taylor said.

The Milwaukee County Parks Department in Wisconsin has experienced better water quality due to collies controlling gulls for 30 hours each week.

Collies are a good management option because of their effectiveness at keeping gulls off beaches, Alm said. They are a nonlethal way to reduce gull waste. The birds don't get used to them or ignore them like they do other deterrents. "Border collies are arguably more attractive than, for example, wires." Alm said.

Border collies were easy to train and had no interest in the sea gulls after chasing them away. Photo courtesy of CNS.

Harrisville ballfields will be rededicated Sunday as Ki Cuyler Field

Clarissa Sansone

At 1 p.m. on Sunday, August 7, the newly revamped Harrisville Recreation Areawhere local youth baseball teams hold their games—will be formally renamed Ki Cuyler Field, after the athlete who in 1925 led the National League in runs scored, and, on four occasions, led the league in stolen bases.

Put simply, "Kids love a famous ballplayer," said Barbara Moore, three-year treasurer of the Harrisville Recreation Improvement Association, the group responsible for raising funds and completing most of the improvements. Perhaps even more in spring to young local ball players is the fact that Hazen "Kiki" Cuyler is not merely "Northeastern Michigan's most famous sports celeb-

Harrisville honors late KiKi Cuyler

August 7, 1969 ~ The City of Harrisville honored the memory of one of its late citizens Saturday morning, August 2, with the unveiling of two roadside signs on US-23, one at the north and the other at the south city limits of Harrisville.

The attractive signs convey to visitors the message: "Welcome to Harrisville -Home of Baseball Hall of Famer, KiKi Cuyler".

They were erected in honor of the late Hazen S. Cuyler, one-time baseball star in the National League, whose name was recently added to the baseball greats in the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, New York. He is also listed in the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame at Cobo Hall in Detroit.

Attending the unveiling ceremony, along with city officials, were Mrs. Cuyler, widow of the honored native son, her son Harold and his wife Jacqueline also is her daughter, Kelly June Kruttlin and her husband, Ted.

A noon luncheon was served to the group at Muehlbeck's Bavarian Inn following the unveiling ceremony.

Local artist, Bruce Hartman, designed and painted the signs.

Alderman Richard McCullough was in charge of the project.

Alpena News article), but, more specifically, is a hall-offamer who was born and raised in Alcona County.

Moore said the development of the recreation area started about four years ago, when "a group of women raised Cain with the county commissioners" to have new diamonds installed. This group, however, disbanded after a few improvements were made. Moore explained that she and other citizens felt that more had to be done; since "the county just never showed any interest" in the park's upkeep, Rita Kaiser, an acquaintance of Moore's, finally said "Let's not talk about it: let's see if we can do

The Moores, the Kaisers, and other community members accepted donations from individuals and local businesses, and sponsored a chuck wagon at the Harrisville arts and crafts fair, in order to raise money to purchase 45 new uniforms, replace fencing, and install benches for the players and bleachers for the fans. "We developed a park," said Moore, and emphasized that "With-

She credits community businesses with giving "100%" toward the cause, and cites much support from county commissioner Ken Bundy. In addition to the aforementioned aid, Harrisville township donated $500 to the improvement association to paint and repair bathrooms at the park.

At last Wednesday's county commissioners meeting, are solution was passed that specified that supervision of the park be the responsibly of Harrisville Township— an entity that Moore claims shows a great deal of interest in the park's maintenance and no longer be under county jurisdiction.

The Namesake of the Park Hazen Shirley "Kiki" Cuyler was born at Sturgeon Point in Alcona County on August 30,1898, the son of a probate court judge. His nicknamen derived from the first half of his last name; as a boy, he was known as "Cuy." When he played for Nashville in the Southern Association during 1922 and 1923, newspapers spelled his name "Ki." When shortstop would call "Ki," and the second baseman would do the same, so Nashville fans knew him as "Kiki," and the name stuck.

After Cuyler graduated from high school, during 1915 and 1916, he played for the Alpena Indies. He served in the army in World War I, and upon return played first for Flint's Buick Motors team and then, in 1919, for the Bay City Wolves in the MINT (Michigan-Ontario) league.

His break in to the major leagues occured at the end of the 1921 season, when he was sold to the Pittsburgh Pirates for $3,000. He was "farmed out" by the Pirates to Nashville. While playing on Nashville's team, Cuyler was voted Most Valuable Player and awarded a new car. He began playing with Pittsburgh's team in 1924. In 1926, Cuyler was traded to the Chicago Cubs. In 1935, he spent two seasons with the Cincinnati Reds, and finished his career as a ballplayer with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1938.

Cuyler began working on the other side of the baseline in 1939, when he became a ball was his to catch, the manager of the Chattanooga Lookouts. In 1940, he was a coach for the Chicago Cubs, and after three years with the Cubs he managed the Atlanta Crackers. In 1949, Cuyler became a Boston Red Sox coach, and had signed a contract to coach the team in 1950. Cuyler suffered a heart attack while ice fishing in Glennie in February of 1950, and died shortly thereafter, on February 11.

His name lives on, and not only as the new title of Harrisville's ballpark. In 1953, he was inducted into the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame. In 1968, Cuyler was named to the Baseball Hall of Fame, and, in 1992, to the Bay County Sports Hall of Fame. His lifetime batting average was .321.

Kiki Cuyler is best remembered for his winning contribution to the 1925 World Series, when he was a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Pirates and the Washington Senators were tied at three games apiece. At the end of the eighth inning of the seventh game, the score was tied 7 to 7. With bases loaded and two outs, Cuyler hit the double that gave Pittsburgh their 9 to 7 win over Washington.

Kovels: Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Tazza Celadon

There are many unfamiliar names for antiques and even vintage collectibles. What is a collectible "dumbwaiter," a "finger vase" or a "swift"? And what is a "tazza" and how was it used? The tazza was originally a large basin for bathing. But the meaning changed and by the 17th century -perhaps earlier -- it became the name of a piece often used at a dinner party. It is a shallow bowl or platter that is on a stem or footed base. It was used to display or to serve small foods or even for drinking. In other words, it is a dish on a pedestal. The dish was decorated, and the pedestal was an elaborate and shapely piece of metal.

Cakebread Auctions sold a tazza that was a celadon, a Chinese export porcelain dish, on a giltmetal mount with scroll-shaped legs. The tazza sold for $1,615. If you're wondering, the dumbwaiter is a wooden stand with round trays of graduated sizes held by a center pole. It has been in use since the 1720s. The finger vase is a Dutch Delft vase with five tube-like holders for flowers arranged like the fingers on a hand. And a swift is an adjustable reel for winding yarn made of wood or ivory.

Q: I bought a rectangular glass dish with a lid at a garage sale. The owner said it came in a refrigerator she bought years ago. The sides are ribbed, and there are pictures of corn and other vegetables embossed on the lid. The dish is about eight inches long, three inches wide, and three inches deep. What can you tell me about it?

A: Refrigerator dishes are sometimes called "leftover" dishes and were made in glass and pottery by several companies beginning in the 1920s and '30s. Some were given away with the purchase of a new refrigerator. Your glass dish was made by Federal Glass Company, which was in business in Columbus, Ohio, from 1900 to 1980. Federal made refrigerator dishes in rectangular and square shapes, in different sizes and colors, and with different embossed decorations. Not all Federal glass was marked, and marks on glass can be hard to find. Look for the letter "F" in a shield on the bottom of dishes.

5 factors to consider when buying a home

Home ownership is a dream for many people. In fact, buying a home is considered by many people to be a major life accomplishment.

Various factors determine what makes a home an attractive place to live. While some considerations may overlap, others may be unique to individual buyers. Those new to the real estate arena may want to consider the following factors as they search for a new place to call home.

1: Property taxes

Property taxes can greatly affect the overall cost of living in a particular home. The real estate company RedFin says property taxes are generally levied by each county and often include taxes paid to schools, utility companies and municipal governments. Property taxes will usually be factored into a monthly mortgage payment, and how high (or low) taxes are can turn an affordable mortgage payment into something that can break a budget. When calculating payments, be sure to include property taxes in your estimates.

2: Job security/availability

The financial resource Fortune Builder says to consider your job security before taking the home ownership plunge. Before committing to an investment as substantial as a home, ensure that you are secure in your job. Similarly, if you are relocating for job prospects, verify that the new location has a thriving job market.

For potential homeowners with children or those planning on becoming parents, area schools should merit significant consideration. Research school rankings and reviews, but know that rankings can change. American Family Insurance Company says to also look at the school budget history of towns youOre considering to see if residents prioritize funding for education. This can be a measure of how important education is in a given community.

4: Commute times

Home ownership involves both lifestyle and financial decisions. Calculate the time it will take to travel to and from work when considering a certain town or neighborhood. Find out if there is mass transit and what options are available for off-hour travel needs.

5: Lifestyle options

Quality nightlife, arts and history, community events, proximity to cultural centers or cities, and other factors are at play in choosing a home. Make sure your new community allows you to still enjoy the things you Ore passionate about.

Buying a home involves considering various factors that can affect your budget and quality of life. TF198192

Water Warriors, a group of individuals who ride wave runners to raise money for Special Olympics, make an annual stop at Harrisville Harbor last week. Harbor staff fueled 15 machines and three support boats and served lunch that was prepared by the Harrisville Harbor Grocery deli, and donated by the Harbor. According to Harrisville Harbormaster Jim Ferguson, the Harrisville stop is where the Special Olympic athletes join the Water Warriors and ride in the support boats into Tawas harbor. "This is my fourth straight year hosting this very special event. It's a great time, and my crew loves the opportunity to be a small part of it," Ferguson said. Courtesy photo.

of Harrisville, reported he attended Black River every fifth Monday and counted 51 Catholic families, including four Bohemian, 10 English, 35 French, two German and five Polish families. About 90 people attended church services.

In 1950, the church was remodeled and enlarged. A new altar and organ were added, and space was increased for a sacristy and confessional. The refurbished St. Gabriel could accommodate 200 people.

Today, Black River is a residential and recreational area with many summer inhabitants who enjoy the outdoor amenities that forested land and lake life offer. The church is still well maintained, and activities include an altar sodality and men's club.

For nearly 40 years the parish members have held a big Halloween party for handicap citizens. They also have a giving tree to help children of Alcona Elementary School. To help fund these projects, annually, during the Black River Bridge Walk on Labor Day, they hold a large bake sale, which is popular with the walkers.

To honor the 125th anniversary, a celebration took place last Saturday with the unearthing of a time capsule buried during the church's centennial celebration. The capsule contained many old books, family photographs and church missals.

A dinner was held at the Alcona Township Hall prior to a Mass given at the church. Presiding the Mass were Bishop Steven Raica from the Diocese of Gaylord, Fr. Robert (Bob) Bissot, current pastor of St. Gabriel, Fr. Stanislaw Bereda, former pastor of St. Gabriel and Deacon Scott Landane with 77 people in attendance.

St. Gabriel Catholic Church is located at 5570 N. Lake Shore Drive in Black River. Mass is held each Saturday at 6:30 p.m.

To accurately target suspended fish, anglers need the proper tools. A few things needed to target fish at a certain depth are, of course, a good fish finder, GPS combo with a chip that preferably shows the bottom in one-foot

Additionally, good trolling rods equipped with line counter reels are a must have. All this is for nothing if an angler doesn't have the Precision Trolling app on their phone. With this he can quickly determine how much line he'll need to let out to get lures to where the fish are. This app gives a database of most all the stick-bait lures and a lifetime of free updates.

Finally, fishermen are a secretive and competitive bunch. While some might be only too happy to share all they know, others are not only tight lipped, but some will give false information.

Why would they do that? Because, nothing will get an angler in hot water quicker than having an angler hear from another fisherman something they shared with a beginner. So, keep what is shared a secret.

Anyone not able to find an experienced angler to take them fishing — all is not lost. There are hundreds of videos about fishing on the Internet. "The Next Bite" and "Fishing 411" are but a couple of many good sources for "how to" tips from the pros.

Good fishing.
