Serving Alcona County since 1877

Harrisville, Michigan 48740

Michigan State Police Trooper Jacob Strong (left) receives a Citation for Bravery on February 17 during a ceremony in Lansing. The award was presented by Inspector Frank Keck from the MSP Seventh District Headquarters. Strong was awarded this citation for the rescue of two people trapped inside a burning home on September 22, 2021. Strong, who works out of the Lincoln detachment office, was on his way home after work when a call came in at 11:44 p.m. about a hospice patient and his wife unable to get out of their home that was on fire. He was near the E. Swede Road residence in Caledonia Township. After arriving on the scene, Strong went into the smoke-filled home and helped both individuals get out safely. The Citation for Bravery is awarded when a member knowingly performs an act in the line of duty which endangers or exposes that member to serious injury and when, because of the nature of the action, a life may be saved, a serious crime prevented, or a person arrested who has committed a serious crime. Photo courtesy of Michigan State Police.

District Health Department No. 2 purchases new site on Main Street

After more than 50 years of leasing space in Harrisville, District Health Department No. 2 (DHD2) has purchased the former Richard's Pharmacy on East Main Street in Harrisville.

"In December 2021, the DHD2 Board of Health voted unanimously to purchase the building. I do not see it as a purchase but an investment, an investment in the communities of Alcona County, the residents, and visitors we serve, and the dedicated staff of DHD2," said Denise Bryan, health officer for DHD2.

She explained the current space (located on Lake Street in Harrisville) was too small to meet the growing demands of the health department and was often difficult to access for visitors living with disabilities.

Under Bryan's leadership, DHD2 has not only grown in staff – an increase of seven in just the past year – but value-added programs and services. "When I started at DHD2 nine years ago, my goals with public health were to remain nimble and work smarter not harder in identifying gaps in services, building community capacity and resiliency

The sale of Richard's Pharmacy in Harrisville is complete and the new owner, District Health Department No. 2 (DHD2), is finalizing plans for renovation and eventual move-in by year end. around the gaps, and connecting residents to resources," Bryan said.

According to Bryan, these goals have led to the addition or expansion of more comprehensive health services offered to DHD2 residents, such as maternal and infant home visiting, health education, food safety and water quality, environmental health, harm reduction and prevention, emergency preparedness, and immunizations.

"The new, larger, more accessible space in Harrisville will allow for more robust and frequent service offerings in Alcona County, and less travel to for some residents," Bryan said.

"I am excited for the staff and community. Until the pandemic, we often flew under the radar in public health, working quietly behind the scenes, said Devin Spivey, DHD2 deputy health officer who is based out of Harrisville. "With the relationships we have fostered and new partnerships we have created over the last three years, we want to make sure we are never invisible again. The new building, being more centrally located in Harrisville, will definitely help with that."

Incidental aspects such as environmental, asbestos and site surveys have been completed and Bryan expected all renovations to be complete, and staff to move in to the Main Street location by end of year. Preliminary plans

Lady Tigers share Big Dipper title with Oscoda

By Ben Murphy
Sports Writer

With a share of the North Star League Big Dipper championship on the line, the Alcona girls varsity basketball team didn't disappoint in Rogers City on Thursday, Feb. 10.

The Lady Tigers had to overcome a slow start to do it, but ultimately came away with a 31-15 victory, and a share of the league title with Oscoda. The two teams have the same 5-1 record and they split games against each other.

"I'm just very proud of them. I have told them all along that it is difficult to win league titles and district titles," said head coach Mark Feldhiser. "It has been a while since NSL basketball trophies have made it to Alcona so, for this team to pull it off in a year where many were counting us out, is really special. It is a testament to the hard work they have put in."

The Lady Hurons led 7-3 after the first quarter and the game was knotted up at 13-all at the half. It was all Alcona from there on though, as it led 21-13 entering the fourth quarter and continued to dominate from there.

"We were having trouble scoring, so the pace of the game was in Rogers City's favor," Feldhiser said. "About halfway through the second, I challenged the team to step it up and show me what they were made of, and they responded by holding Rogers City to two points over the last two and a half quarters. Emma Travis hit a couple of huge three-pointers before halftime to even things up and we were able to use that momentum to get the win."

Emma Travis led the Lady Tigers with 12 points and Hannah Tanner added six.

On Monday, Feb. 14 Alcona lost to Oscoda, 55-21.

"They beat us, and they played really well," Feldhiser said. "When they are hitting their threes like that, it is a real challenge to defend, and to keep yourself in the game mentally. Kind of strange, we won there and they won here with each visiting team getting out to a great start. We will look at that game, work to get better, and focus on playing better the next time."

Oscoda led 13-5 after the first quarter and put the game away by hitting five second quarter threes to lead 29-12 at the half. The Lady Owls also led 40-19 entering the fourth quarter.

Leading the Lady Tigers was Carmen Dellar with 10 points and Travis scored six.

Alcona (13-5 overall, 5-1 NSL Big Dipper) hosted Pinconning on Monday, Feb. 21. Was at home against Hale on Tuesday, Feb. 22 and hosts a Division 3 district next week.

The winter landscape can be brilliant. Trees and shrubs with ornamental bark, such as red twig dogwood or river birches, look striking against a blanket of snow, as do ornamental grasses and evergreens. While providing contrast for winter gardens, snow cover serves as insulation for the soil beneath it, protecting the root systems of trees, shrubs and plants within the soil from any severe surface temperature fluctuations, and also helps to conserve and replenish moisture within the soil through the winter months. - Brenda Weaver

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,
Battered women, who faced "kill or be killed," are still suffering in Michigan prisons for extended terms after defending themselves from their abusing husband's intent to kill them.

Most citizens of Michigan would be shocked to learn that until 1989 a husband could rape and batter his wife repeatedly without criminal penalty. That cultural attitude still persists in too many of our courts where the abused wife has been treated as a hardened criminal for killing to save herself and, in many cases, her children.

I have just published "I Killed Sam," a novel based on my defense of an abused wife who killed her psychotic husband in 1956 to save herself and their three-year-old daughter. Unfortunately, that case is still relevant since for years I have watched male-dominated courts, effectively disregarding abuse, fail to understand the battered wife is more victim than criminal.

I urge our governor and state parole board to investigate the 175 or so women in Michigan prisons currently serving long terms, including life for defending themselves and their families. For in-depth studies of the issue, check my website, robertsteadman.net.

Robert Steadman
Traverse City, Mich.

To the Editor,
My family and I would like to thank the Barton City Improvement Association and its many volunteers for hosting a kids fishing tournament last Saturday on Jewell Lake.

My two granddaughters from Ohio and grandson from the Metro-Detroit area had a blast on the ice despite cold winds and a lack of willing fish. They made the winter trip specifically to participate in what was their first ice fishing experience.

Clearly, it took a community coming together and generous commercial donors to host and coordinate such a successful event. The volunteers ran an ice shuttle, drilled fishing holes, set the kids up with the necessary fishing tackle and even baited their hooks. The sponsors also set up a warming shack, offered free hot dogs and hot cocoa, and had participation medals and substantial door prizes for the kids.

My grandchildren proudly wore their participation medals around town afterward. The next day, they put some of their door prizes to work ice fishing on Cedar Lake. I think it's safe to say they are "hooked" on ice fishing.

At a time when children are glued to the TV or hooked on gaming and social media, it's encouraging to see them be anxious about outdoor winter activities. My grandkids are already looking forward to next year's fishing tournament.

Thanks again Barton City, you made some kids (and parents) happy.

Saturday, March 15 is ice shanty removal deadline

As spring weather starts to penetrate winter, ice conditions fluctuate and can be unstable. Ice shanty removal is approaching in a week or so locally, according to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

Regardless of the set removal dates, changing ice conditions could require the removal of fishing shanties before those dates. This is a possibility every year, because all shanties must be removed once ice can no longer safely support them.

Lower Peninsula

Ice shanties on Lake St. Clair, located northeast of Detroit, must be removed before sunset Sunday, Feb. 27.

Shanties in the northern Lower Peninsula must be removed by midnight Tuesday, March 15. Those counties include: Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Arenac, Bay, Benzie, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Clare, Crawford, Emmet, Gladwin, Grand Traverse, Iosco, Isabella, Kalkaska, Lake, Leelanau, Manistee, Mason, Mecosta, Midland, Missaukee, Montmorency, Newaygo, Oceana, Ogemaw, Osceola, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle, Roscommon and Wexford.

Ice shanties in the remaining counties of the Lower Peninsula must be removed by midnight Tuesday, March 1.

Upper Peninsula

On Michigan-Wisconsin boundary waters, ice shanties must be removed by midnight Tuesday, March 15.

All other bodies of water in the Upper Peninsula must have ice shanties removed by midnight Thursday, March 31.

Daily use of ice shanties is permitted anywhere in Michigan if ice conditions permit and if the shanties are removed from the ice at the end of each day.

Shanty owners whose structures fall through the ice are subject to penalties of up to 30 days in jail, fines up to $500, or both. If a shanty is removed by a government agency, the court can require the owner to reimburse that agency for up to three times the cost of removal, according to the DNR.

People venturing onto the ice should use extreme caution as temperatures begin to rise or fluctuate. The repeated thawing and refreezing of ice weakens its strength, decreasing its ability to support the additional weight of people, snowmobiles, ORVs and shanties. Deteriorating ice, water currents and high winds increase the probability of pressure cracks, which can leave anglers and others stranded on ice floes or at risk of falling through the ice.

How to convince an elderly parent to stop driving

Dear Savvy Senior,
What is the best way to deal with older drivers who probably shouldn't be driving anymore? My dad, who's 86, is bound and determined to keep driving as long as he's alive.

Backseat Daughter

Dear Backseat,
For many families, talking to an elderly parent about giving up the car keys can be a very difficult and sensitive topic. While there's no one way to handle this issue, here are a few suggestions that can help evaluate your dad's driving and ease him out from behind the wheel when the time is right.

Take a Ride

To get a clear picture of your dad's driving abilities, a good first step, if you haven't already done so, is to take a ride with him and watch for problem areas. For example: Does he have difficulty seeing, backing up or changing lanes? Does he react slowly, get confused easily or make poor driving decisions? Does he drive at inappropriate speeds, tailgate or drift between lanes?

Also, has your dad had any fender benders or tickets lately, or have you noticed any dents or scrapes on his vehicle? These, too, are red flags.

If you need some help and your dad is willing, consider hiring a driver rehabilitation specialist who's trained to evaluate elderly drivers and provide safety suggestions. This type of assessment typically costs between $200 and $400. To locate a professional in your area, visit AOTA.org/older-driver or ADED.net.

Transitioning and Talking

After your assessment, if you think it's still safe for your dad to drive, see if he would be willing to take an older driver refresher course.

These courses will show him how aging affects driving skills and offers tips and adjustments to help keep him safe. Taking a class may also earn your dad a discount on his auto insurance. To locate a class, contact your local AAA (AAA.com) or AARP (AARPdriversafety.org, (888) 227-7669). Most courses cost around $20 to $30 and can be taken online.

If, however, your assessment shows that your dad really does need to stop driving, you need to have a talk with him, but don't get carried away. If you begin with a dramatic outburst like "Dad, you're going to kill someone!" you're likely to trigger resistance. Start by simply expressing your concern for his safety.

For more tips on how to talk to your dad about this and evaluate his driving skills, the Hartford Financial Services Group and MIT AgeLab offers a variety of resources to assist you. Visit TheHartford.com/lifetime and click on "Publications" on the menu bar, then on the "We Need to Talk" guidebook.

Refuses to Quit

If your dad refuses to quit, you have several options. One possible solution is to suggest a visit to his doctor who can give him a medical evaluation, and if warranted, "prescribe" that he stops driving. Older people will often listen to their doctor before they will listen to their own family.

If he still refuses, contact your local department of motor vehicles to see if someone there can help. Or call in an attorney to discuss with your dad the potential financial and legal consequences of a crash or injury. If all else fails, you may just have to take away his keys.

Alternative Transportation

Once your dad stops driving, he's going to need other ways to get around, so help him create a list of names and phone numbers of family, friends and local transportation services that he can call on.

To find out what transportation services are available in your dad's area contact Rides in Sight (RidesIn-Sight.org, (855) 607-4337), and the Eldercare Locator (800) 677-1116), which will direct you to his area agency on aging for assistance.

Tigers regroup to tame Hurons

By Ben Murphy

Sports Writer

After dropping two prior games, the Alcona boys varsity basketball team bounced back with a win last Friday, taking down visiting Rogers City 60-37 in a late season North Star League Big Dipper battle.

"It was a great all-around team effort on both ends of the court," said head coach Alex Cole. "Mike Basner played exceptional defense turning steals into points. Garrett Somers really stepped up at point and led the team in scoring. He is really developing as a freshman and you can see him getting more comfortable every game. DJ Howe made a huge impact in the second half."

In the opening quarter,

Somers hit a three and had seven points total. Basner also hit a three as the Tigers led 16-11 after one.

Basner and Somers had six points apiece in the second quarter as the Tigers pushed their lead to 32-21 by the half.

DJ Howe had a big second half. He netted six points in both the third and fourth quarters, helping Alcona to 47-32 entering the fourth.

Leading the way was Somers with 15 points. Basner netted 14. Howe finished with 12 points and nine rebounds. Hayden Johnston and David Sharboneau were good for six points each. Collin Walker had four points and Ryken Wallenmaier added three.

On Tuesday, Feb. 15 the Tigers lost a NSL Big Dipper game 59-45 on the road to league champion Oscoda.

Oscoda led 8-7 after the first quarter, but things turned into Owl leads of 28-18 at the half and 49-36 entering the fourth quarter.

Somers scored all 15 of his points in the second half to lead the Tigers. Howe and Sharboneau had seven points apiece. Johnston netted five. Gavin Walker chipped in with four. Hunter Rigby scored three. Basner and C. Walker had two points apiece.

Alcona (9-6 overall, 4-3 NSL Big Dipper) was at Tawas on Monday, Feb. 21 and hosted Roscommon on Tuesday, Feb. 22. The Tigers host Mio on Friday, Feb. 25 and stays at home to take on Fairview on Tuesday, March 1.

Bowling scores

The Alcona boys varsity bowling team had its final league game and finished strong. High game scores: Sam Prince, 151 (127); William Brozowski, 150 (111); Logan Bates, 146 (136); Jacob June, 133 (123); Waylon Nedwash-Long, 123 (102). The team is on to Regionals on February 25 and 26.

The Alcona girls varsity team bowled strong all season even with a few challenging weeks. High game score: Rylee Manning, 167 (121); Samantha Nordstrom, 163 (131); Jerzey Brown, 146 (116); Morgan Munsey, 142 (121); Elly Keyser, 109 (91). Nordstrom and Manning qualified for the league's all conference second team. Next is Regionals on February 25 and 26.

Child mental health declining

By Hope O'Dell

Capital News Service

Student mental health has become a top worry for Michigan educators, according to a new statewide survey of 2,600 educators.

The Michigan Education Association survey found that 88 percent said they were very concerned about student behavioral problems and mental health.

That was the second-ranked concern among educators, with staffing shortages taking the top spot. Pay and benefits came in third.

"This is the first time I haven't seen educator pay and benefits as top-ranking," said Doug Pratt, MEA's director of public affairs. The MEA is the state's largest union of teachers and other school staff.

As the concern over student mental health grows, districts and the state are looking for programs to help them. Kristina Hansen, the student success coordinator for Bark River-Harris Schools in the southwestern Upper Peninsula, said the lack of social and face-to-face interactions during the COVID-19 pandemic hurt students' mental well-being.

Hansen creates systems for academic, behavioral and social-emotional support for Bark River-Harris' 740 students. "Those students that already struggled seem to struggle more, and then some students who maybe were fine prior to the pandemic, or appeared to be okay, also had some struggles," she said. "So, it kind of became this universal thing that everyone needed some additional support."

According to the Children's Hospital Association, which represents 220 children's hospitals across the country, over 25 percent of parents have sought professional help for their child because of the pandemic.

In the first half of 2021, cases of self-injury and suicide in children ages 5-17 were up 45 percent nationally compared to the same timeframe in 2019, according to children's hospitals that self-reported.

In response to the situation, Bark River-Harris Schools started using the University of Michigan's Transforming Research into Action to Improve the Lives of Students (TRAILS) program rooted in cognitive behavioral therapy, a psychological treatment based on the concept that symptoms can be improved through learning coping skills.

Ann Arbor Public Schools and Detroit Public Schools are among other districts that also use the TRAILS program.

Hansen said all Bark River-Harris teachers were trained at the beginning of the school year in lessons ranging from empathy to cognitive coping. They then pass those lessons on to their students.

Each week, Hansen said, teachers of every grade teach include a spacious yet private clinic area, inviting environmental health area, several staff offices, and a large community education and staff training room with state-of-the-art technology. "I'm exhilarated by this momentous

"DHD2 is grateful and excited to continue the long-standing tradition of proudly serving Alcona County in a a lesson based around the same topic. Hansen gave the example of empathy, where every lesson taught is about empathy in a way that is age-appropriate "so that the conversations that adults were having around the building with students could go back to that core idea of that week."

For students struggling with intense mental health problems like suicidal thoughts, she said the lessons give adults the language and skills to help them too.

For students who are really struggling, Hansen said the district has also used a small group TRAILS program. Hansen has noticed an improvement in students' ability to identify their thoughts and emotions, and change their behavior due to TRAILS.

"It's not perfect," she said. "This is not some utopian society that we've created. But the kids really have some skills now that they didn't have before."

According to the National Association of School Psychologists, students who receive mental health support do better in school than those without such support.

Gov. Gretchen Whitmer's new budget proposal calls for an expansion of TRAILS and investing $361 million in student mental health. That includes hiring more mental health professionals.

Hansen said she would love to have more mental health professionals available for her students. "Part of the problem that we're running into is that just because we would like to hire more, and if we had the money to hire more, they're not necessarily out there to hire," she said.

According to the Michigan State University Institute for Public Policy and Social Research, there should be one counselor for every 250 students, but there's only one for every 693 students in the state. There's one school social worker for every 1,051 students and two school psychologists for every 2,184 students.

Michigan Education Association President Paula Herbart said mental health professionals are part of the larger educator shortage the state faces. "This is adding to the already overwhelming pressure caused by meeting students' academic, social and emotional needs while also dealing with COVID-19, unfair evaluations, standardized testing, the threat of school violence and so much more," Herbart said.

Part of filling that shortage is providing education funding for those who want to go back to college to prepare to become mental health professionals in schools, which is included in Whitmer's budget proposal, she said.

If higher salaries and better benefits become the norm for educators, including mental health professionals, more people will want to go into education for a career, Herbart said.

School district welcomes new nurse

By Mary Weber
 Staff Writer

A new nurse is working at the Alcona Middle and High School campus, something the school has not had available for students for a long time.

Kimberly Carter, a registered nurse who got her bachelor's degree from Michigan State University nearly 30 years ago, is getting used to her new surroundings and meeting students.

Carter explained she has been at the school for a month, and still doesn't have all the finishing touches arranged in either her office or the attached student tranquility and reset room, but it hasn't stopped students from visiting her. She is seeing around 20 students a day.

"For many years I worked for a plastic surgeon. I worked at a dialysis center and, more recently, worked the night shift at Jamison Nursing Home. Working as a school nurse is very different than anything I have done before and I am loving it," Carter said.

Most of the students Carter sees come to her with minor issues such as a head ache or stomach ache. "They have symptoms of stress, usually they just need a little quiet time to reset and they can return to class quickly. There are a lot more symptoms of stress in students these days due to the pandemic," Carter said.

Carter's job as a school nurse is limited to assessing a student to see if they should stay in school or go home. With parental permission, she may administer a Covid-19 test or give a student over-the-counter medication such as Tylenol or a prescribed medication that a parent supplies and permits her to administer. For anything further, such as a strep throat test, arrangements can be made to send the student to the Alcona Health Center Tiger Clinic at the elementary school.

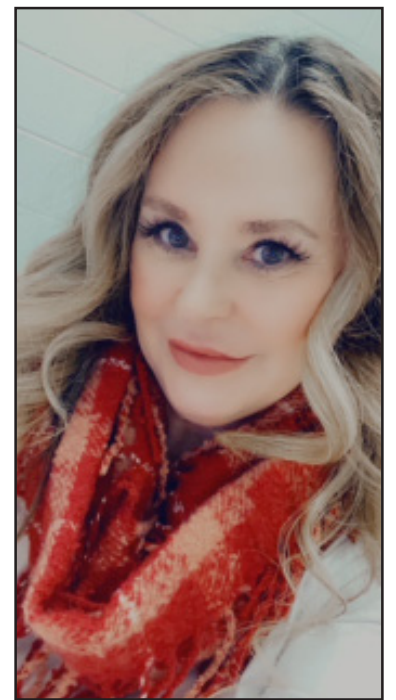

Carter said she is usually able to treat most minor symptoms, but in cases where a student comes in very sick with virus, flu or cold symptoms, they need to go home.

Interim principal Christie Thomas said all of this helps to keep students in school, which is the goal. She explained before having a school nurse, parents would have to leave work to bring their student medication.

"Kim brings many years of experience in nursing along with a positive, supportive personality that is a great addition to the supports we can provide at the middle and high school.

"She has jumped right in and has been seeing students for minor issues, getting to know students and staff, and attending athletic events to help when needed. She is building relationships with students which helps them to feel more connected to the school," Thomas said.

To get to know students,

Kimberly Carter

Carter has visited each class to meet them. She has let students know if they would ever like to have lunch with her, she is more than willing to meet them in the cafeteria. "Sitting and talking over lunch is a great way to get to know them," she said.

In addition, Carter's office is just off the old gymnasium, so she takes advantage of the proximity and joins in a ball game with students when she has time.

Carter explained many students she sees are under a lot of pressure and have been through some trauma, perhaps something is going on at home, trauma from the pandemic and worrying about COVID, perhaps a bullying incident or a death in the family. "Sometimes they just don't know where to turn. I can help guide them in the right direction to get the assistance they need," she said.

Alcona Community Schools Superintendent Dan O'Connor said the district received a state grant to cover the cost of having a school nurse. The grant covers 100 percent of the cost for the nurse during her first year, 66 percent of the cost for year

Steal from a squirrel to get cash for seeds, cones

By Gabrielle Ahlborn

Capital News Service

Strapped for cash? The answer could be waiting in your backyard.

In some states, including Michigan, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) runs an annual seed collection program. Anyone with a dry container can collect pine cones and seeds from trees and redeem them for cash.

Programs are also available in Indiana, Minnesota and Wisconsin. Requirements for collection vary by state and species, but all seeds must be collected from trees of natural origin, not planted.

"Seed source is really important in this type of work," said Mike Reinikainen, the silviculture program coordinator for the Minnesota DNR. "You need to know that the seed is adapted to the local climate."

Seeds from planted trees are less likely to survive because they're often shipped in from areas with different soil nutrients and air moisture.

Minnesota's program has been available for over 75 years, and Reinikainen said many people collect cones and seeds as a family activity. "You have like three generations of people that would do it," Reinikainen said. "So, you have that transfer of knowledge from one generation to the next."

Most species are collected in the fall, but some can be harvested as early as June, such as the silver maple, or as late as January, like the green ash. In the 2020-21 season, Minnesota purchased 2,460 bushels of cones and seeds across the state.

Besides being a fun outdoor activity, collectors can earn from $5 to $300 per bushel, which is a little over nine gallons of seeds. "It's basically a matter of how hard it is to come by," said Roger Bohringer, the manager of the Wilson nursery in

Boscobel, Wis. "If it's harder to find, we pay more for it."

The Wilson nursery is one of the many locations in Wisconsin that raises the collected cones and seeds into saplings. "Typically, we grow them for one to three years depending on the species," Bohringer said.

Purchase prices are also affected by how in-demand the grown saplings are. "In my last few years, black spruce has been at the top of the list," Reinikainen said. "It's always in demand for projects on state land and county land, so it's been in short supply."

In one drive, the Michigan DNR sought cones from red pines so foresters can "replant the forest and replenish the supply of red pine seed," a species in high demand.

The department said that "fresh cones can be found in felled treetops from recent timber sales, on state forestlands and in recently gathered squirrel caches — yes, you can steal from a squirrel."

The DNR recommends: "Make sure you're picking the right species. Red pines have craggy, reddish bark and 4- to 6-inch needles that grow in pairs. Scotch and Austrian pine cones will not be accepted."

Cones should be picked off the tree. Fallen cones are likely to be too old or wet.

Cone scales should be closed, with a little bit of green or purple tint — all brown and open, and they're too far gone."

two and 33 percent for year three.

"This is the first time since I came to the district in 2006 that we have had a full-time school nurse. The goal is to find creative ways to fund the position for the long haul, long after the grant funding expires," O'Connor said.

Carter explained while many students come to her with legitimate complaints, sometimes all it takes is the stress of math class to bring students to her door, something she caught on to quickly. "Sometimes all they need is a hug or a piece of candy. I always have candy," she said.

Carter grew up and lived in Jackson, Mich., most of her life and moved to Greenbush last year where her fiancé wanted to retire. She is the mother of a 20-year-old daughter who moved to Greenbush with her. The family has two dogs, an American Bulldog and a five-month-old St. Bernard.

Carter never dreamed she would enjoy working with students as much as she does and is looking forward to getting to know the community, "I wasn't sure if this would be a good fit for me. Working the night shift didn't allow me to meet the community. Before taking this job, I was ready to move back to Jackson, but now I can't imagine being anywhere else."

Wrecking Crew vs. Decker's All Stars

Red Hot Game and Fun for the Fans Tuesday Night

February 24, 1921 ~ Fun! Say the fans had more fun to the square inch Tuesday night than they had experienced during the whole basket ball season previously.

The occasion was a game between "Decker's All Stars" and the Harrisville "Wrecking Crew."

The Stars are all employees on the Decker road job at Roe's Corners-and they were organized by that good sport, Sherm Wilson, who is never happy unless he is starting something, preferably in the athletic line.

Well to begin with the visitors were late getting in. They had seventeen miles to drive in the face of a driving storm and to cap it all their machine broke down and they had to rustle a relief.

But they arrived. It was 9 o'clock when they broke into the hall and say they were some aggregation! Headed by big Sherm with his six feet or more of height and with little Shorty Smart who came about to Sherm's knee?, followed by Cecil Decker who is well over 225, Roy Pyne, another 200 pounder, Philip and McClure, husky chaps first names unknown.

For the wreckers. Bill Edwards, Clyde Potts, "Jimmie" Sanborn, Everett Conklin, Chas. Kearly and Russell Fox put up the fight. This team were pretty well organized and had several good basket shooters.

Quarter time was played to give the big fellows a breathing spell but by the end of the second half they were in fine trim and going strong.

The final score was 28 to 16 in favor of the Wreckers. At the end of the first half it looked like a walk away for the Wreckers who were on the long end of a 14-5 score. Kearly got 4, Conklin 3 and Matuzak 1 field baskets for the Wreckers while for the Stars Smart got a field and Wilson field and a foul.

It was in the second half that the "Stars" got right down to business and roughed things up a whole lot.

New barn and stock destroyed by fire

February 24, 1921 ~ The fine new barn of Nelson Bean of Barton City was destroyed by fire Friday afternoon. Included in the loss are seven milk cows, a span of horses and some young stock, hay, grain and other produce.

The fire occurred about 8:00 o'clock in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Bean and a grandson were in the house but could not see the barn from the room they were in. When the fire was discovered the building was too far gone to save anything.

The loss falls heavily upon Mr. and Mrs. Bean, who are well advanced in years. There was no insurance.

At one time they; were only one behind the Wreckers but the pace was too fast to keep up and the -final count showed them well to the rear in the count.

For the Wreckers Conklin made six field baskets and Matuzak 1 in the second half, while for the Stars Decker made 2, Smart 1 and Philips

2. Two foul baskets were tossed for the visitors in this half.

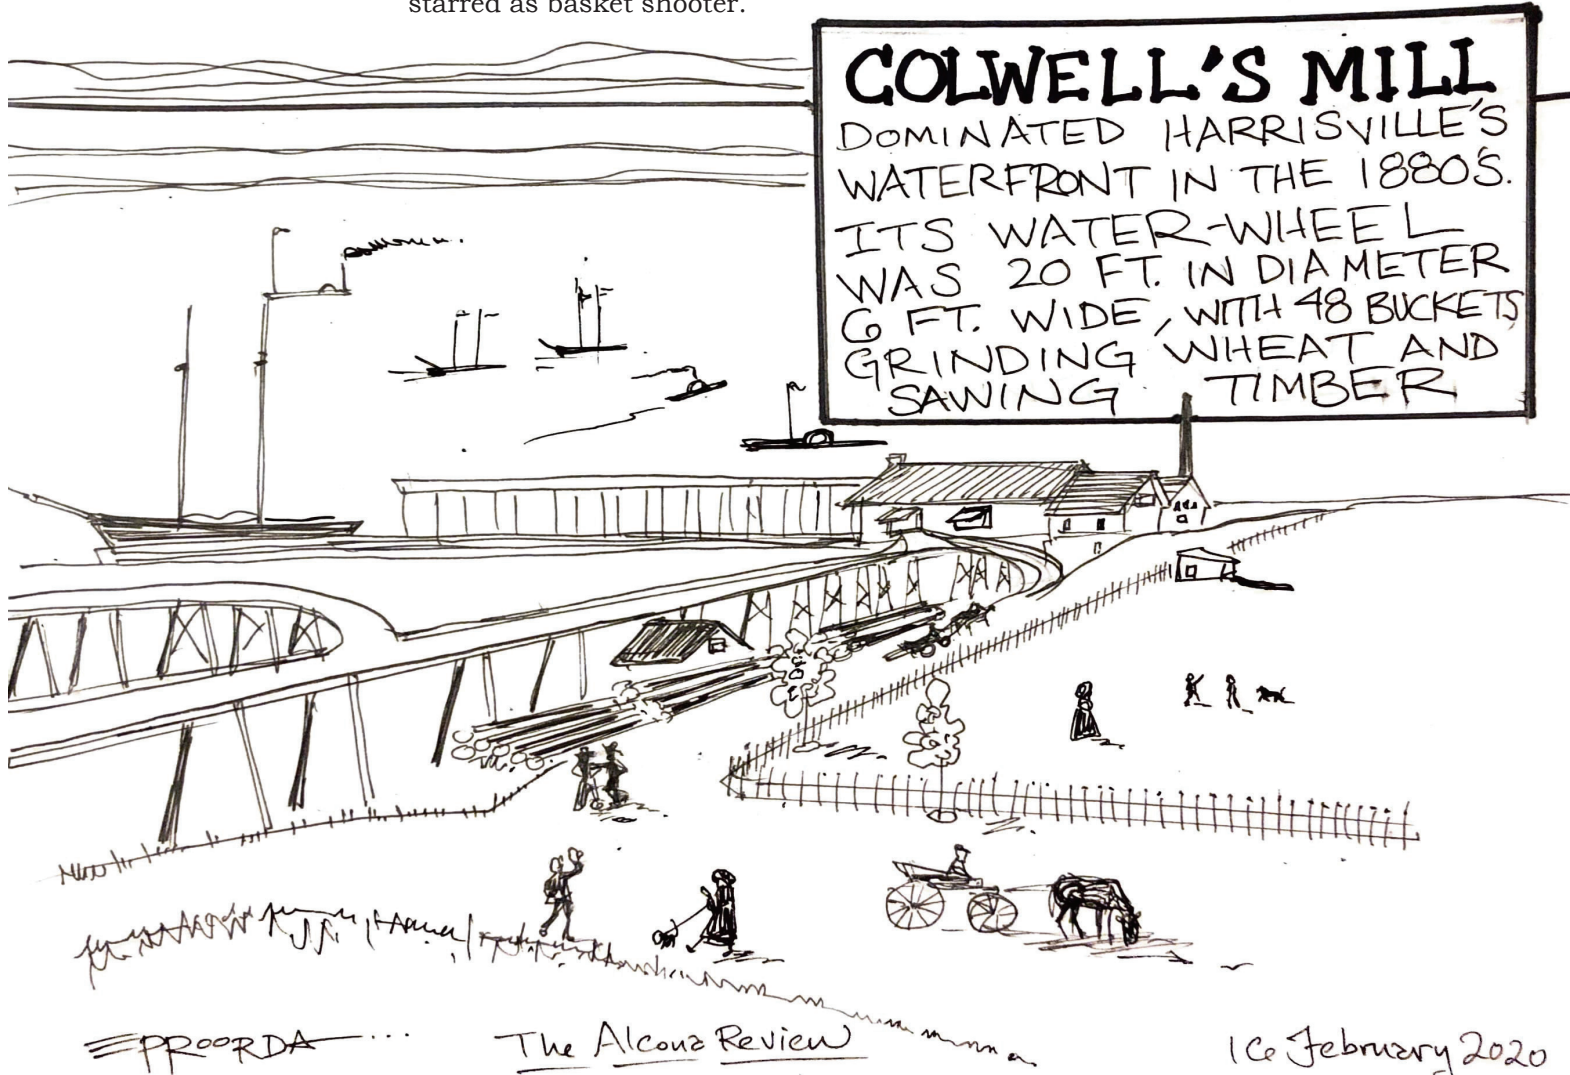

A feature of the game was the playing of Guard Smart. He is about as big as a pint of cider but he's all there. He romped around like a squirrel and was everywhere at once, to the great delight of the crowd. Conklin as usual starred as basket shooter.

Detroit party takes over Greenbush Tavern

February 27, 1947 ~ On Saturday, February 22nd., Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hecklik and Mr. and Mrs. John Boyer of Detroit, took over the ownership of the Greenbush Tavern, operated for the past three years by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Casey. The new owners expect to continue to operate as the Caseys have in the past, and wish to welcome many of the old friends as well as the new.

Mr. and Mrs. Casey have no definite plans as to what they will do, but they are in hopes of locating in Harrisville.

Gazelle furniture springs from Midcentury Modern

Artist Dan Johnson (1918-1979) designed furniture for many companies with the midcentury modern look. He worked in Rome and California, and designed a number of lines of modern furniture, especially chairs and tables, for Danish and U.S. companies.

Johnson often used thin, patinated metal, iron or aluminum for arms, legs and seats, and added caning or fabric upholstery. All of his designs looked lightweight, but a chair with a bronze or iron frame is heavy and hard to shove into place at a dining-room table. One of his most famous designs was the Gazelle line designed in Rome and then sold in the U.S. He used metal parts patinated "Pompeian Verde," a green color that was inspired by the excavations at Pompeii.

The pictured Gazelle bronze and cane chair, made in the 1950s, was estimated to be worth $4,000-$6,000 recently. Lines made for other companies were similar, including maple furniture made in 1947, Viscount made in the late 1950s of brass and ivory or nickel and walnut or other combinations, and Satyr made with thin shapely legs. They were made by Arch Industries, Selig and others.

Q: We were given a 10-inch sterling silver "Revere silver content. Solid silver (sterling) is worth at least the price of the silver it contains, the meltdown value. Silver plate is worth less because it contains less silver. A well-known maker adds value. Recent prices for a 10-inch Revere bowl range from $600 to $1,000 for a bowl made by Gorham. Silver plate sells for $50 to $300. Your bowl might sell at an auction or consignment shop.

bowl" as a wedding gift in 1948. It's in good condition with a liner (which I added). Can you tell me what it's worth?

A: Revere Silver bowls have been popular wedding gifts for years. The simple shape with slightly flared lip is based on the "Liberty Bowl," which was made by Paul Revere at his silver shop in Boston in 1768. Revere bowls have been made in silver plate, sterling silver and pewter by many different makers. The value of your bowl depends on the

Moments In Time

By The History Channel

- On Feb. 19, 1851, an angry mob in San Francisco's business district "tries" two Australian suspects in the robbery and assault of C.J. Jansen, a store owner. When the makeshift jury deadlocked, the suspects were returned to law-enforcement officials. Local authorities convicted the men at a real court trial.
  - On Feb. 15, 1898, a massive explosion sinks the battleship USS Maine in Cuba's Havana harbor, killing 260 crew members. A U.S. Naval Court of Inquiry ruled that the ship was blown up by a mine, with Spain the likely suspect.
  - On Feb. 17, 1915, after encountering a severe snowstorm, the German zeppelin L-4 crash-lands in the North Sea near the Danish coastal town of Varde. The Danish coast guard rescued 11 members of the crew; they were brought to Odense as prisoners to be interrogated.
  - On Feb. 16, 1968, the first official 911 call is placed in the United States, but 911 was not standard across the country for many years after its adoption by Congress. By 1987, only half of the nation was using the system.
  - On Feb. 20, 1974, Reg Murphy, an editor of The Atlanta Constitution, is kidnapped by William A.H. Williams after being lured from his home. For the next 49 hours, Williams drove Murphy around the city, stopping to phone in ransom demands to the newspaper. The money was finally delivered to Williams and Murphy was released. Williams served only nine years in prison.
  - On Feb. 14, 1990, 3.7 billion miles away from the sun, the Voyager 1 spacecraft takes a photograph of Earth. The picture, known as the Pale Blue Dot, depicts our planet as a nearly indiscernible speck roughly the size of a pixel. Voyager 1's journey continues.
  - On Feb. 18, 2001, racer Dale Earnhardt Sr. dies in a last-lap crash at the 43rd Daytona 500, the fourth NASCAR driver to die within a nine-month period. Earnhardt, 48, was driving his famous black No. 3 Chevrolet and vying for third place when he collided with another car, then crashed into a wall.

Strange But True

By Lucie Winborne

- Leona Woods was the only woman physicist on the team that built the world's first nuclear reactor as part of the Manhattan Project. She became a mother during the project, but hid her pregnancy as not to miss work. Afterward, as a professor, she authored more than 200 papers in physics and astrophysics.
  - A 10-second French kiss spreads around 80 million bacteria between the two smoochers.
  - Director Michael Bay ("Transformers") traced his interest in action films to when he attached firecrackers to a toy train and filmed the ensuing fiery disaster with his mother's 8 mm camera. The fire department was called, and Bay was grounded.
  - The African country of Zambia entered the Space Race in the 1960s with a plan to visit Mars and convert aliens to Christianity. The plan unraveled when one of the "Afronauts" got pregnant, another pulled out to join a local dance group and a third went missing.
  - Sharks can grow up to 50,000 teeth in their lifetime.
  - Libyan revolutionary Moammar Gadhafi had a serious obsession with Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice, showering her with over $200,000 in gifts and having a famous local composer write a song for her called "Black Flower in the White House."
  - Ever notice that the word "phonetic" is not phonetic?
  - As if job interviews weren't stressful enough, some notably head-scratching questions asked by employers include "If Germans were the tallest people in the world, how would you prove it?" (Hewlett-Packard), "Why is a tennis ball fuzzy?" (Xerox), and "Are you exhaling warm air?" (Walker Marketing)

- Thought for the Day: "Few people know how to take a walk. The qualifications are endurance, plain clothes, old shoes, an eye for nature, good humor, vast curiosity, good speech, good silence and nothing too much." -- Ralph Waldo Emerson

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

War-time service recognition with Quilts of Valor

Bill Young shows off his Quilt of Valor given to him recently by Bonnie Baker of the Quirky Quilters of Oscoda. Young served from 1956 to 1980 in the U.S Army before retiring as a master sergeant. In his time in the Army, Young spent three years in Italy, 28 months in Vietnam and three years in Alaska. Photo by Mary Weber.

Raymond Campbell with the Quilt of Valor he was recently given by a member of the Quirky Quilters in Oscoda. Campbell served in the U.S Navy from 1945 to 1946 during World War II as a seaman first class off the Marshall Islands of the Pacific. His quilt, adorned in a red, white and blue motorcycle theme, represented the 70 years has been he has been riding his Harley Davidson motorcycles. Campbell can't wait for spring to arrive so he and his wife can hit the open road again on the bike. Photo by Mary Weber.
