Alcona County's libraries offer so much more than books

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

"The very existence of libraries affords the best evidence that we may yet have hope for the future of man."

~ T.S. Eliot

In today's fast-paced world, libraries can be a mystical oasis offering all ages a mix of old-fashioned literary standards still organized according to the Dewey Decimal System to live video streams, movies, music, events and much more.

The Alcona County Library's versatility is what draws people in, especially in the winter when people are feeling the effects of cabin fever.

It offers a bevy of programs including ukulele lessons with the library loaning some of the instruments, movie nights, online classes, book clubs, cooking club, tai-chi and stretch yoga classes, walking club, Dining with Doctors lunch, knitting/crochet club and special events such as conversations with Michigan gemstone experts, documentaries with the historical society, art instruction, and notable author events.

For youth, story time/crafts for kids, Dungeons and Dragons for teenagers and a kid's Spring Fling Celebration and other parties throughout the year, keep family time together in a positive way.

According to Alcona County Library Director Denise Bearre, circulation is up and all is well at all the branches. "People enjoy coming to the library and the friendly staff here works hard to make our branches run efficiently while offering as much as possible," she said.

Bearre said there was a significant increase in audiobooks this past winter. "People don't always have time to read a book anymore. Audiobooks are a great way to pass time during a long car ride or while doing chores," she said.

The Alcona County Library system includes branches in Harrisville, Mikado, Lincoln, Caledonia and the Curtis Township Library branch in Glennie.

Bearre explained in the past, the Curtis Township Library was its own entity and not a part of the Alcona County Library system, however, that changed a few years ago when the Curtis Township Library board needed a certified director and qualified staff to keep its library doors open. Bearre and the Alcona County Library system stepped in to fulfill that need.

Bearre initially hoped all five branches could combine and become a district library, but, it just couldn't happen. "It came down to economics. We had wanted to keep everything for all staff the same and when we priced out the health care insurance it came to $15,000 more than I estimated.

"Also, our retirement system with all three full-time staff having a pension was an issue. We would have had to stop having a pension. It just wouldn't work at this time," Bearre said.

The Curtis Township Library is now on the same library system as the Alcona Library and can process books available through any of the other four branches. Like the Alcona branches, it offers patrons inventory access to Michigan E-books, Hoopla, and Libby, opening a world of news, education, and enjoyment to patrons at their convenience wherever they are.

One of the differences between the Alcona Library and the Curtis Township Library is that the Curtis Township Library still operates under a separate library board of directors.

Bearre explained unlike the library board affiliated with the Harrisville, Mikado, Lincoln and Caledonia branches, which have sporadically spaced term end dates for board seats, the Curtis Township Library board seats all expire each presidential election day.

"When board terms are spaced out, they never have to worry about a whole new board coming in and trying to figure things out. Operating a library is a lot of work and it takes time to understand it all. That could happen with the Curtis Township Library,

Roscommon spoils Tiger's bid for district championship

By Ben Murphy
Sports Writer

For a good portion of last Friday's Division 3 district championship game, it appeared as if the Alcona boys varsity basketball team was poised to take home the trophy.

The Tigers scuffled down the stretch however, allowing a second half double digit lead to disappear and turn into a disappointing 64-51 season ending loss at the hands of tournament host Roscommon.

"The environment for the district final game was something every kid dreams about playing in," head coach Alex Cole said. "Trophy on the line. Packed house. Loud student sections that make the place explode after every bucket. It's the moment that we preach about when we start training in the summer. Unfortunately, after a very hard fought battle, we came up short."

A pair of first quarter threes by David Sharboneau gave the Tigers an early spark.

Collin Walker knocked down a couple of shots in the paint in the opening frame, as did Evan Borsvold. The Tigers led 14-11 after one. Four more points by Walker in the second and field-goals by Sharboneau, Cayden Hebert, Borsvold and Jacob Renchenski kept Alcona in front at the half, 27-26.

The third quarter started well for Alcona also, as Sharboneau hit a three and Walker knocked down six more points in the paint. The Tigers built a lead as big as 13 points at one point. The Bucks got hot in the final minutes of the frame though, and they pulled within 45-42 entering the fourth.

Roscommon kept the hot hand, while Alcona seemingly couldn't reclaim its offensive touch, scoring just six points in the quarter. This allowed Roscommon to not only claim a lead but pull away down the stretch.

"Our game plan was to pound it inside and try to use our size to our advantage, for

Tulips are another early sign of spring and the rebirth of the season after winter. They often indicate feelings of love. To The Editor,
As a kid I was taught "common sense" which leads me to ask questions about global warming/climate change.

Why would PBS and NPR claim we have a serious problem but not tell us to turn off our TVs and radios? In fact, they encourage us through shows by Rick Steves, Joseph Rosendo and others to travel more. Common sense says they don't really believe there's a problem.

Google, Apple and others spread fear about the climate but never tell us to turn off our devices. Common sense says they don't care whether there's really a problem.

Some politicians claim the climate issue is the greatest threat to mankind, but they don't threaten military action against the biggest polluting factories in China and India. Don't they believe what they tell us?

Common sense says that if a gas like CO2 can bounce heat back toward the earth it can also bounce incoming heat from the sun back to outer space to the same extent.

Common sense says we can choose where to get our information and what to believe. It intrigues me that the same people telling us we have a climate crisis are also telling us that a man can become a woman.

To the Editor,
I apologize for naming the 4-H Club as the beneficiary of the proposal voted down in November. I should have named the FFA, Future Farmers of America, as the main beneficiary of the proposed structures.

I'm thankful that Mrs. Cordes and Mr. Hubbard promote learning and leadership development over and above agribusiness assisted by the FFA alumni. One should never quit learning.

I'd appreciate Mr. Hubbard, the agri-science teacher, explaining the science involved in Patty Thomas' world of "clean energy." Electric tractors, like electric school buses, would be highly inefficient and very costly. What is the planting scheme/layout of crops in relation to wind turbines and solar panel arrays on the arable land?

You could save money and promote consumer health by eliminating pesticides from the planting protocol(s). The wind from the turbines and the installation of electric bug zappers like those found at Dairy Queens would keep the bugs away or kill them.

This whole clean energy agenda leads to horse-drawn plows and indentured servitude/slavery plus no property right or ownership.

Thanks again Mrs. Cordes and Mr. Hubbard, plus the FFA alumni. As Benjamin Franklin said, "Tell me and I forget. Teach me and I remember. Involve me and I learn."

What's happening at the library?

The Alcona County Library, Harrisville, Mikado, Lincoln and Caledonia along with its Curtis Township branch always have a large variety of events and offerings for all ages.

Library director Denise Bearre said they are currently planning for the upcoming events and the summer youth reading program.

In addition to weekly and normal bi-monthly events, there will be a celebration of International Women's Day on Friday, March 8 with a plant giveaway to all ladies while supply lasts. Ladies also have an opportunity to win a free garden basket.

On March 13 at noon Dining with Docs will be held at the Harrisville branch. On Saturday, March 16 is the annual kid's Spring Fling with cookie making and crafts, bikes and other age-appropriate toys will be raffled for free. Bearre said the Spring Fling will be geared toward 12-year-olds and younger.

The Alcona Book Club will meet on Tuesday, March 19 at noon at the Harrisville branch. Also, at the Harrisville branch at 6 p.m. on March 19, the Alcona Historical Society will be presenting its second in a series of three Cabin Fever sessions. This session will be with Ric Mixter, an award-winning producer, author, pilot, scuba diver, skydiver, and Great Lake historian who will share rare footage and interviews with the men and women who made history at our local airbases.

The month will close out with the Glennie Book Club meeting on Wednesday, March 27 at the Curtis Township Library. On the 28th the Harrisville branch will host Rock Painting with Judy Sullivan at 3 p.m., reservations necessary with a limit of 15 in the class. There is a $10 fee for supplies to be collected.

Bearre said they are still working out a day and time between April and June for notable author, Erin Bartels, to come and discuss her 2024 Michigan Notable Book "Everything is Just the Beginning."

The summer youth reading program which annually begins the week school is dismissed for the summer, will have the theme: "Adventures at your Library" and will include an animal act, Nerf war with Joel Tracy, Drummunity, reading challenges, prizes, a party and more. Details on weekly events will be made available before the program begins.

A Friends of the Library book sale will be held at the Harrisville branch from Thursday, April 25 to Saturday, April 27. The Curtis Friends will hold its annual book sale on July 4.

but it hasn't so far. Luckily, most board members renew their seats," Bearre said.

Also separate is how the two libraries are funded. The Curtis Township Library relies heavily on a millage paid by Curtis Township residents which will be up for renewal again this year in August. The Alcona County branch libraries: Harrisville, Mikado, Lincoln and Caledonia, rely on a millage paid by county residents, including those living in Curtis Township, which will be up for renewal in 2025.

Bearre said a few building issues have come up in the past six months including furnace issues at various branches. She said of the seven furnaces within the library system, six were repaired and one got replaced at a cost of about $23,000. "We were glad the money was available in our general fund or we would have had to scramble," she said.

They hope to recarpet the Lincoln branch this year, but Bearre said it would be dependent on what kind of bid prices they get for the job.

She is also excited about the possibility that the Caledonia branch may have a new space inside the proposed community center yet to break ground. She explained once the building has broken ground the library will start working on grants to furnish the new 1,200 square-foot space.

The 27th annual Great Backyard Bird Count (GBBC) took place February 16-19. Worldwide, 209 countries participated tallying 7,842 recorded species. The United States ranked eighth in the world with 672 species being documented.

Local bird watchers in both Alcona and Iosco counties turned out in good numbers and observed a variety of water and land species. Many open areas of lakes and rivers in both counties attracted a wide range and high number of waterfowl.

At the harbor in Harrisville 250 Canada geese were present along with smaller numbers of long-tailed ducks, red breasted mergansers, common mergansers, herring gulls, trumpeter and mute swans, mallard ducks, common goldeneyes, and one rarely seen Ross's goose. Open waters on Tawas Lake, Tawas Bay and along the AuSable River in Oscoda also hosted numerous species including greater scaups, hooded mergansers, ring-billed and herring gulls, American black ducks, common goldeneyes, Canada geese, trumpeter swans and an uncommon snow goose and a tundra swan.

As for the land-based birds, there was a noticeable absence of evening grosbeaks, common redpolls, Bohemian waxwings, ring-necked pheasants and snowy owls. Also, fewer numbers of snow buntings, ruffed grouse, brown creepers and horned larks were recorded.

Fifteen participants in Alcona County tallied 45 species. The top 10 highest single sightings observed included Canada goose (250), cedar waxwing (151), mallard duck (87), European starling (31), American goldfinch (30), pine siskin (30), blue jay (30), American crow (22), American robin (21), and mourning dove (20).

Thirty-one participants in Iosco County totaled 50 species. The top 10 single sighted species observed were European starling (200), rock pigeon (120), mallard duck (107), pine siskin (80), American goldfinch (70), trumpeter swan (67), common goldeneye (24), wild turkey (22), common merganser (22) and blue jay (18).

"With this many participants, we certainly helped put our counties on the world map," said Peggy Ridgway local ambassador for the event.

The 2025 GBBC will take place February 14-16. Additional information and statistics for 2024 can be found on birdcount.org.

From trash dump to treasured attraction

In early May 1959, a small group of Michigan State Police troopers practiced their diving and recovery methods, probing the clear, cold waters of the state's largest natural spring, located 12 miles northwest of Manistique—the Big Spring called Kitch-iti-iki.

Outfitted with wool mittens and socks, insulated underwear and heavy rubber suits, the troopers carried onion sacks with them to the bottom of the 40-foot depth to retrieve beer cans, pop bottles, a toy pistol and a golf club.

But to really get to the bottom of the Big Spring, you need to go back in time a few more years to uncover the efforts of John Ira Bellaire, a former schoolteacher and native of St. Joseph County, who came to the Upper Peninsula pursuing a newspaper classified ad that sought a store salesman in Seney.

In spring 1893, Bellaire became a salesman for the Morrison and Schneider general store in Seney. He purchased the store three years later. Bellaire then spent a decade during the wildest days of the white pine bonanza in Seney—a then drinking and whoring lumberjack town nicknamed "Hell" by some.

"In 1904, shortly after robbers blew open his safe, Bellaire sold the store building and moved the business to Germfask where he had previously operated a branch store," the Escanaba Daily Press reported. "Ten years later, he sold the Germfask business and went to Blaney to become manager of the Wisconsin Land and Lumber Co. general store."

In 1925, Bellaire moved to Manistique, purchasing the Riverside Coal and Produce Co. when it went bankrupt. About this same time, Bellaire began his nascent efforts to promote the Big Spring.

"Bellaire fell in love with the Big Spring when it was still a black hole all but hidden in a tangle of fallen trees," according to a state park brochure.

The 300-foot by 175-foot oval pool gushes more than 10,000 gallons per minute from numerous fissures in the underlying limestone. "Vegetation grew lush, draping the piles of trash dumped into the pool by the lumber company which operated nearby," the brochure stated.

In years past, the spring—with its constant 45-degree temperature and emerald-tinted waters—had been a popular picnic place. Visitors crossed Indian Lake—the eventual destination of the spring's outflow—by boat and then hiked to the spring.

At one point, a narrow-gauge railroad brought visitors to the spot from Thompson.

Bellaire—who became thoroughly enchanted with the spring—collaborated with a poet and writer to produce "Namesakes" and "Medicine Water," two booklets which sold in the thousands, describing the beauty of the area and the supposed American Indian legends surrounding this placid pool—the "Mirror of Heaven."

"The Big Spring wasn't too different in formation from the other sink holes in the area, except that it was tapped to a fast-flowing spring," the brochure said. "Bellaire saw through the debris, saw the beauty of the emerald bottom of the pool. He watched the sand bubble and roll as some hidden hydrostatic pressure forced water through the narrow opening left when the slumping occurred in the glacial drift near Manistique."

Bellaire, who could have purchased the spring and surrounding roughly 90 acres for himself, instead arranged for a sale of the property by the Palms Book Land Co. to the State of Michigan for $10.

A deed stipulation required the property to be used "forever" as a public park—Palms Book State Park.

Around 1930, Bellaire op-

According to the packets containing them, the sand and water from Kitch-iti-kipi are used thus: "The sand as an all-around good luck powder, and the water as a prevention against Bad Spirits. The sand, when mixed with a kind of bark the Indians smoked, becomes Takosavos, 'Love Powder.'"

Four years later, after an illness of several months, Bellaire died at age 87, roughly two months before the state police divers swam among the sparkling waters of "The Blue Sky I See" - one of numerous supposed Chippewa translations of Kitch-iti-kipi.

among the encrusted branches of the cedar trees that guard the rim of the spring. At the bottom, coins dropped by visitors for luck lie half-buried in the churning sands.

Last fall, members of the Manistique Lions Club, in coordination with the DNR, cleaned up the Bellaire stone memorial at the park and erected a new interpretive sign to bring more attention to Bellaire and his work at the Big Spring.

Now decades after his altruistic efforts began, Bellaire's waters of the Big the most part, we did just that." Cole said. "We knew they were going to be scrappy and tough on the defensive end. For most of the game, we controlled the tempo and took care of the basketball. Unfortunately, there were a few possessions in a row where we compounded errors and gave them the lead and momentum that we couldn't overcome."

Walker finished the game with 15 points and 12 rebounds. Borsvold added 12 points and five boards. Sharboneau netted 12 points as well. Renchenski finished with seven points. Hebert netted four and Ricky Schott added one.

"I give my congratulations to those in the Roscommon program," Cole said. "They've built a tough squad over there and I wish them nothing but the best in the next round."

On Wednesday, Feb. 28 the Tigers won a district semifinal contest over the Charlton Heston Academy (CHA), 67-47.

"Huge team win as we kicked off the state tournament in Roscommon against Charlton Heston Academy,"

Cole said. "Garrett Somers and Collin Walker kept attacking their defense and led us in scoring while all 11 guys locked in on the defensive end and really did a nice job executing our game plan."

Alcona and CHA split their regular season meetings and this one proved to be a close one through much of the night. An early three-pointer by Hebert helped the Tigers take a 13-7 lead in the first quarter, though a pair of Patriot buckets trimmed that to 13-11 after one.

The contest was tied at 13-13 and 15-15, though Alcona got three straight hoops by Somers, Walker and Hebert to lead 21-15.

A bucket in the paint by Borsvold kept Alcona ahead 23-16, but CHA continued to hang around. Alcona led 25-21 at the half.

CHA scored the first two baskets of the third quarter to tie things up at 25-all. Alcona responded with 12-2 run, giving them a 37-27 advantage; capping the spurt off with a three-pointer by Sharboneau. The Patriots pulled to within five points late in the quarter, but Somers put an exclamation point at the end of the frame with a three-pointer at the buzzer to make it a 43-35 Tiger lead entering the fourth quarter.

Another three by Somers moments into the final stanza pumped the Alcona lead to 46-35 and their lead was not seriously threatened from there.

Somers hit three treys on the night and finished with a game-high 23 points. Walker scored 17. Hebert and Borsvold scored eight points apiece. Sharboneau added five points. Schott, Sawyer Seminoff and Jacob Renchenski scored two points apiece.

Alcona finished the season 18-6 overall and won the North Star League Big Dipper with a 9-1 league mark.

"While it is never easy for the season to come to an end, this year is especially difficult," Cole said. "We lost in the district final for the second straight year. To the seven seniors that move on, I could not be more proud. They have put so much time and effort into basketball and have really helped to shape the culture of our program. They will be greatly missed, and I wish them nothing but the best."

Alcona girls play to late season loss at Standish

By Ben Murphy
Sports Writer

The Alcona girls varsity basketball team wrapped up regular season action on Thursday, Feb. 29 by taking on host Standish-Sterling. The Lady Tigers were unable to pick up a win over the strong Lady Panther squad, falling in the non-league game, 58-33.

Alcona got a first quarter three from Sage Gauthier and two points each by Jena Wambold, Kaylee Wambold and Emma Travis. But it was Standish that took a lead after one, 17-9. In the second, the Lady Tigers managed a two point field-goal by Gracyn Tracy and a pair of free throws by Travis, but they fell further behind by the half, 28-13.

A three-pointer by Gauthier in the third highlighted that quarter for Alcona, as they faced a 40-20 deficit entering the fourth.

Travis hit a three-pointer for part of her six fourth quarter points and tallied a team-high 10 points on the night. K. Wambold and Gauthier scored seven points apiece. Hannah Renchenski scored three points and adding two each was J. Wambold, Tracy and Olivia Borchardt.

The Panthers were led by Jensyn Machala with 14 points with Addison Walker and Charlotte Daniels adding 10 points apiece.

Alcona (11-10 overall) opened up Division 4 district action on Monday in Hillman, taking on Fairview. The winner of that contest played in the semi-finals on Wednesday, against Hillman.

The finals are set for Friday, March 8 with Posen, Atlanta and Mio also in the district. The winner of this district competition plays in a regional semi-final game on Tuesday, March 12 in Kalkaska, Mich.

Plans underway to restore Lincoln train depot

March 3, 1999 ~ By Cheryl Peterson

It isn't just a "Little Engine That Could," there is also a train depot and community that could, and will.

About two years ago the Lincoln train depot was doomed to become a pile of rubble, and now plans are being drawn up to restore the building to its original form.

The depot, which was built in 1886, was in jeopardy of being demolished just two years ago because it had become an eyesore. Now, after a group of individuals expressed an interest in saving the building and the historical value for the community, it has become one of the focuses of the Lincoln Downtown Development Authority and the Alcona Historical Society.

George Byelich, Michigan State University Extension director, was one of the first people to recognize what would be lost if the building was torn down. He rallied for support to save the depot, and with that support has been working with interested residents, the Lincoln DDA and the Alcona Historical Society to bring about the restoration of the building.

In June 1997 the Lincoln DDA purchased the building, located on Lake Street in Lincoln, and two city lots for $8,000. Members of the community worked together to clean up the depot, inside and out, with numerous hours of volunteer work.

"Load after load of stuff has been hauled out of there," Byelich said. "It's been scrubbed clean on the inside too. We are planning some structural changes this summer and it could be used by late summer or fall."

The structural changes being planned include siding the exterior, removing a portion of the building to restore a freight room that had been removed in the 1930s, and changing the windows of the building to what they were when it was a depot. "We want to bring it back to its depot days," Byelich said.

The restoration plans will be helped with the Lincoln DDAs pledge of $10,000 to the project. Duane MacNeill of MacNeill and Associates in Alpena is working on the plans, Byelich said.

While all of the manual labor at the depot site was being conducted, members of the community were trying to decide how best to proceed with fund raising and the legal issues involved.

After much discussion, Friends of the Lincoln Train Depot was formed as an arm of the Alcona Historical Society. Dick Gillies was appointed as chairman of the Friends group.

Alcona Historical Society President Don Sawyer said he was interested in the project, on a personal level, from the beginning and is pleased with how it has developed to date. "At the annual meeting last May, historical society members in attendance voted almost unanimously to support the effort to save the depot.

There is no reason why we shouldn't be involved," Sawyer said. "There are advantages to both sides in establishing an affiliation between the two groups," Sawyer said. "It's an advantage for the historical society because it has been narrowly focused on the lighthouse, and now the Bailey School. This gives us an opportunity to branch out, as we are a countywide entity.

"It is an advantage for the Friends group, too, because being under the umbrella of the historical society lends for a good reputation when it comes to grant writing and the legalities of receiving donations, as we are a 501C3 tax exempt group and chartered nonprofit corporation," Sawyer said.

He explained the affiliation with the historical society is a trial for one year and can be dissolved by either group. "This is a good way to keep everyone's options open," Sawyer said.

In order to become an official Friend of the Lincoln Depot, individuals or families can join the Alcona Historical Society and those memberships, donations or pledges made to the depot will be used only for that purpose. "It's important, if you aren't using a preprinted membership form, to specify that you want to be a Friend of the Depot," Sawyer said of individuals who want to join the historical society.

Anyone interested in joining will pay $10 for a single membership or $20 for a family, or they can be a sponsor for $35 or more," Sawyer said. All contributions are tax deductible and can be sent to the Alcona Historical Society, P.O. Box 174, Harrisville, Mich. 48740.

The depot also has the state behind it now, too. In January 1998, application was made to have the depot become a state historic site, and in December 1998 it was accepted as a historic site.

Friends of the Lincoln Depot will meet next on March 11, 7 p.m. at the Lincoln Village Fire Hall. Anyone is welcome.

Gothic Revival

Despite the technological and manufacturing advancements of the 19th century, many artists of the time looked to the past for inspiration. Visual artists developed the Pre-Raphaelite style. Architecture and decorative arts had the Gothic Revival.

While it started earlier in England, the Gothic Revival lasted from about 1840 until 1860 in America. Buildings and furniture were decorated with towers, pointed arches, tracery and other features borrowed from medieval castles and cathedrals.

Of course, imitating medieval style didn't mean sticking to medieval technology. Homes in the Middle Ages would have been heated by hearths, but the Victorian era had more efficient and effective ways.

Cast-iron stoves were being made about 1728, and cast iron became popular for furniture in the mid-1800s. This box-shaped Victorian wood stove sold at a Conestoga auction for $354. The designs embossed on its front, back and sides show the decorative potential for cast iron and provide an example of Gothic Revival style. There is a row of pointed arches, also known as the Gothic arch, on each side. As arguably the most distinctive feature of Gothic architecture, this arch was often incorporated into Gothic Revival designs.

Q: My kids all have character lunch boxes. When I was in elementary school, everyone had lunch boxes with their favorite cartoon character, movie or band. When did they start making these and are old ones valuable?

A: The first character lunch box was made in 1950 when one was marketed with the cowboy movie star Hopalong Cassidy. The fictional hero walked with a limp in books, movies and television. Aladdin Industries was the first company to produce a lunch box and thermos with a licensed character. More than 60,000

This cast-iron wood stove kept a 19th-century room warm. Its embossed designs, especially the rows of pointed arches on its sides, were meant to evoke medieval architecture. Review photo courtesy of kovels.com

Hopalong Cassidy lunch boxes were sold in the first year, starting the character lunch box craze that continues to this day. Vintage metal lunch boxes recently have been selling for $200 to $775.
